MATTERN AND GRIFFIN OVERDUE AT MOSCOW ON ROUND-WORLD TRIP

Set Record in Flight to Berlin

SPURN SLEEP TO SAVE TIME

Cross Atlantic in 11 Hours and Then Speed On

At 1:33 a. m. (Eastern Standard Time) today Mattern and Griffin, world fliers, were overdue in Moscow by five and one-half hours. No word of them had been received since they left Berlin at 3 p. m. yesterday afternoon. They expected to land in Moscow by 10 p. m. last night.

Berlin, July 6 (A.P.).—James Mattern and Bennett Griffin, two young Americans who are itching to girdle the globe by air faster than anyone ever has, brought their red, white and blue monoplane down at Tempelhof Airdrome this afternoon after a record-breaking transatlantic crossing, and 3 hours and 20 minutes later they roared into the air again, en route to Moscow.

They were 10 hours and 43 minutes ahead of Wiley Post and Harold Gatty, the American airmen, whose round-the-world time of a little more than eight and one-half days they are trying to beat, when they started along the brightly lighted flying route toward Koenigsberg.

Not a Bit Tired.

They wouldn't waste time to telephone to friends in New York and they spurned sleep.

"Tired? Not a bit of it," said Mattern, when they landed here at 5:40 p. m. (11:40 a. m. E. S. T.).

"What we want is a good long drink of water," said Griffin.

But they ate hefty steaks to sustain them before they hit the air again.

The fliers did not take much with them in the way of provisions when they started for the Soviet capital—only some tea, coffee, buns and a few bananas.

When they took off for Moscow at 9 p. m. (3 p. m., E. S. T.), they faced a hop of 950 miles. The sun already had set. Ahead lay good weather.

Sends Message to Wife.

"Berlin looks great, hope see you this week-end," said Mattern in a message sent to his wife back home just before the beginning of the Moscow leg of the flight.

"Why, they'll reach Moscow in no time with the weather as it is and the worst of the flight behind them," predicted Hermann Koehl, friend of Mattern and veteran of the Bremen's air crossing of the Atlantic from east to west.

Mattern and Griffin were mightily pleased when they landed here. Here's why:

They already had a margin of 2 hours and 55 minutes on Post and Gatty.

They had crossed without a stop to Berlin from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, in the excellent time of 18 hours and 42 minutes, and they had become the first transatlantic fliers to "hit Berlin on the nose."

Was Trip of Thrills.

They had made a record of 10 hours and 50 minutes from land to land in their Atlantic flight. Exact

REYNOLDS, TOBACCO HEIR, ENDS HIS LIFE

Libby Holman, His Bride, Is Prostrated at Death of 20-Year-Old Scion.

Winston-Salem, N. C., July 6 (A.P.).—Smith Reynolds, tobacco fortune heir, who packed an airplane trip around the world and two marriages into the last 3 of his 20 years of life, shot and killed himself today.

Leaving Libby Holman, the Broadway musical comedy singer, and his bride of a few months, in their bedroom at the Reynolds home here, he walked onto an adjoining sleeping porch at 1 a. m. A moment later he was lying there fatally wounded.

There was some doubt for a while whether Reynolds, the youngest son of the late R. J. Reynolds, multimillionaire tobacco manufacturer, fired the shot which took his life intentionally or accidentally. Dr. W. N. Dalton, county coroner, however, said he was recording the death as a suicide and so far as he was concerned, the investigation was closed.

Miss Holman, whom Reynolds married last winter in Hawaii while he was returning from an around-the-world trip by plane and steamer, was prostrated.

She remained tonight at the hospital where her husband died, and Dr. W. M. Johnson, the family physician, declared no one would be permitted to see her for at least 24 hours. This restriction was necessary because of her condition, he said.

She and her husband entertained at an informal dinner party last night and their guests left the home about

Britain Presses Imposts on Irish

Tariff Bill Is Given Second Reading; Measure Viewed as Temporary.

London, July 6 (A.P.).—Great Britain's plan to tax Irish Free State goods in retaliation for the Free State's failure to pay land annuities moved a step further tonight when the bill authorizing such tariffs was given second reading in the House of Commons by a vote of 321 to 41.

Second reading was moved by J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions, who said the government was reluctant to go through with the measure, which empowers the government to impose special duties on Irish goods up to 100 per cent.

Ireland, however, had broken a solemn obligation, he said, and Great Britain's only alternative was to vest in the government unlimited and drastic powers of an unprecedented nature. The power would not be abused, the minister said, and would be withdrawn as soon as the amount defaulted had been recovered.

HOUSE BODY FAVORS $100,000 FOR B.E.F.

Action Follows Hoover Plea to Send Veterans Home; Parade Tomorrow.

Strong presidential and legislative steps were taken yesterday to effect evacuation of the Capital by the bonus army.

The House ways and means committee late yesterday afternoon approved a resolution authorizing the Veterans Administration to pay $100,000 to veterans for railroad fare home and subsistence en route. Chairman Joseph W. Byrns called a meeting of the House appropriations committee today to approve the appropriation and Chairman Collier of the ways and means committee said he would ask immediate House consideration of the measure today.

The Congressional action followed in the wake of a communication from President Hoover asking consideration of a proposal to provide money to send the bonus seekers home. The Senate on June 28 already had passed the Howell resolution which was acted on by the ways and means committee.

Walter W. Waters, generalissimo of the bonus marchers, issued a statement last night expressing belief that his cohorts would not accept the transportation if proffered. He said

Four Workers Drown In Cofferdam Collapse

La Salle, Ill., July 6 (A.P.).—Four workmen were drowned late today when an Illinois waterway dam on which they were working collapsed in the Illinois River.

Engineers in charge said they could not explain the cause of the cofferdam giving way. The structure was being built at the outskirts of La Salle at a point where the river is spanned by a bridge.

Two Escape Burning Plane 1,800 Feet in Air

Brownsville, Pa., July 6 (A.P.).—Two men escaped in their parachutes from a burning plane near here today. They leaped at a height of 1,800 feet and were not hurt. The plane was destroyed.

The ship was piloted by Carl Lange, of Belle Vernon, and carried Joe Switcick, of McKee's Rocks, as a passenger. They were en route to Morgantown, W. Va., from Monessen.

New York Invites Candidates to Fair

Hoover May Address Fall Event; Roosevelt Is Usually There.

Syracuse, N. Y., July 6 (A.P.).—New York State wants both Herbert Hoover and Franklin D. Roosevelt to attend the State Fair in September.

An invitation to address the fair will be sent the President, J. Dan Ackerman, director of the fair, announced after conferring with Charles H. Baldwin, commissioner of agriculture and markets.

The New York Governor customarily attends the fair. If President Hoover accepts, the addresses of the two presidential candidates probably will be separate days, Ackerman said.

CRISIS REACHED IN REPARATIONS PARLEY RECESS

Paris-Berlin Impasse at Lausanne Breaks Up Six-Power Session.

OPTIMISTIC OUTLOOK RETAINED BY BRITISH

Germans Apparently Victors in "War Guilt" Lie Row; Delegates Gloomy.

Lausanne, Switzerland, July 6 (A.P.).—The reparations conflict reached a crisis tonight when six-power negotiations, started with confident predictions that a final agreement soon would be reached, broke up within fifteen minutes.

Spokesmen for France and Germany, whose deadlock has made accord difficult, expressed pessimism as delegates of the six leading powers abandoned for the night their attempt to get together.

The British retained their optimism, expressing hope an agreement would be completed tomorrow.

Before the delegates sat down together for what turned out to be a surprisingly brief session, it had been said that they would stick it out until dawn, if necessary. An official British statement asserted at that time that the French and Germans had arrived at an accord on virtually all points at issue.

Herriot and Von Papen Parley.

Premier Herriot of France and Chancellor Von Papen of Germany refused to yield on the amount of the final settlement and on the political clauses. They will meet alone tomorrow morning.

Failure to clinch the accord was attributed to a nervous headache from which Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain was suffering as a result of the strenuous negotiations. It was explained that the prime minister, as a result of the headache, lacked the force needed to put the accord over.

A six-power consultative pact urged by Mr. MacDonald and Chancellor von Papen was a large stumbling block, it was learned from a reliable source tonight.

Clause Herriot Rejected.

The text of the clause, which Premier Herriot was unwilling to accept, was understood to read as follows:

"The governments of Belgium, France, Germany, Italy, Great Britain and Japan hereby agree not to raise any political questions affecting interests common to any two or more Dublin, Irish Free State (Thursday), July 7 (A.P.).—The mother of Archbishop Michael J. Curley of Baltimore, Md., who had been seriously ill at her home in Athlone, died early today.

She was 92 years old.

Her distinguished son was at the bedside, having spent most of the time there since the Eucharistic Congress, which closed here on June 26 with pontifical high mass at which he officiated.

SMITH DECIDES TO BACK TICKET FOR ROOSEVELT

Third Party Would Not Be Practical at This Time, He Says.

FROWNS IN ISSUING FORMAL STATEMENT

Refuses to Commit Self on Stumping; Is Interested Chiefly in Rest.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Alfred E. Smith said today he would support the nominees of the Democratic party, after expressing an opinion that the formation of a third party would not be practical "at this time."

Smith amplified a prepared statement in the affirmative just once to say that his declaration of support for the Democratic party included support for its nominees, Roosevelt and Garner, neither of whom was mentioned by name in the statement.

His answers to all other inquiries were negative. He would not say whether he would "take the stump" for the ticket or what he thought of the party's chances in November.

He denied he intended to run for governor, and said his chief interest of the moment was to "get a little rest."

Managers Map Campaign.

While Smith was clearing the political atmosphere, Roosevelt managers were making plans for a campaign unique in modern-day politics. They intend to start their four-month drive for votes in the rural sections and leave the campaign in metropolitan centers until the end.

This is much the same strategy followed in 1930, when Roosevelt was seeking reelection as governor, and in the preconvention campaign, when the support of the delegates was being sought.

With a frown on his face, the "happy warrior of 1928" gave out the following statement in his skyscraper office:

"Upon the urgent insistence of many patriotic supporters, I entered the contest for the Democratic nomination for the purpose of fighting for a declaration of principles in the interest of the whole country as well as the Democratic party. The principles which I advocated have in part been adopted, notably the declaration favoring repeal of the eighteenth amendment and immediate modification of the Volstead act.

Appreciative of Loyalty.

"I want my friends all over the country to know that my heart is full of gratitude for the loyalty which they have displayed toward me. Since the nomination was made at Chicago and continuing to this moment, I have been receiving thousands of letters and telegrams from them looking to me for advice and suggestion; thousands more making definite suggestions to me. Obviously, it will be

Short Session Fight Is Set To 'Relieve' U. S. Workers

Bingham Announces Plans for Drive to Remedy Economy "Hardships" Opposed by Hoover; Employes Look to Ruling of Comptroller General.

By ROBERT C. ALBRIGHT.

A short session fight to win back for Federal workers advantages lost in economy legislation was presaged last night.

When Congress reconvenes in December Senator Hiram Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, will put forward a series of resolutions to remedy "hardships" under the economy act, he announced.

A resolution now pending before the Senate to forestall discharge of married workers was disclosed by him as a lead in this direction.

Meanwhile Federal employes are awaiting the Comptroller General's ruling on controversial provisions of the act, hoping here may be found some relief.

Yesterday a new question was laid before the comptroller. The Public Printer asked if leave accumulated last year can be taken now under provisions of the law.

Representative John McDuffie (Alabama), House Democratic whip, last night dashed cold water on prospects of a House vote this session on the Connecticut senator's initial move.

Any modification approved by the Senate will be referred to the economy committee, of which Mr. McDuffie is chairman, on reaching the House.

The House whip said last night he thought his committee in no mood to vote for repeal of any provisions in the bill, least of all the requirement that husband or wife be discharged first, where both are employed in the Government service.

"At a time like this, when many families are without any breadwinner, it is fair that those discharged should be chosen from a class doubly provided for," he said.

The McDuffie committee already has killed one minor Senate modification of the economy act, exempting Federal employes at Geneva from subsistence restrictions.

Senator Bingham said changes he will propose in December will be

HOOVER AND SPEAKER EXCHANGE CHARGES IN DEADLOCK ON RELIEF

Statement by President On Bill for Idle Relief

Following is the text of the President's statement on the Garner-Wagner relief bill.

I regret that the conferences in endeavor to arrive at a basis of a workable relief bill did not succeed. It is all the more regrettable, since the deliberations this morning made it clear that it was possible to harmonize conflicting views and so reach an agreement were it not for the insistence of the Speaker on one point. The bill as reported by the conferees provides:

First—Provision for expanding the borrowing authority of the Reconstruction Corporation by $1,500,000,000 to be used for temporary financing of self-liquidating construction projects of public and semipublic character to increase employment.

Second—Speaker Garner insists that the corporation shall also make loans to any individual, any private corporation, any partnership, any State, or any municipality on any conceivable kind of security and for any conceivable purpose.

Third—Provision of a fund by the Reconstruction Corporation of $100,000,000 for the President, to be disposed of either as charity or as loans, and one of $200,000,000 to be loaned to State governments who are unable to finance themselves to care for distress, but such loans to be apportioned among the States as a per capita basis of population.

Fourth, $322,000,000 of additional public works beyond the $500,000,000 of construction work now provided for in the budget.

* * * *

As to the first provision, the Reconstruction Corporation authority to make loans today is practically limited to institutions under State and Federal regulation; that is, banks, savings banks, building and loan associations, agricultural credit corporations and railways. It is serving to protect the credit structure of the Nation whose collapse would mean the complete disaster to all and the savings of all the people that directly or indirectly are in the safekeeping of the great fiduciary institutions, savings banks, insurance

President Is Fearful of Credit

HE FORECASTS VETO OF BILL

Garner Hits Aid to Few; Action Due In House Today

(Associated Press.)

The highly charged controversy between President Hoover and Speaker Garner burst vigorously into the open yesterday as they exchanged blow for blow in a verbal battle over the $2,122,000,000 relief legislation.

Each charged the other with responsibility for failure to reach a complete compromise on the Garner-Wagner measure. Meanwhile Senate and House conferees revised it to meet all the President's objections except one and planned for House action today.

Garner assailed President Hoover in a dramatic speech on the House floor, charging the Chief Executive with desiring a "select clientele" to reap the benefits of the projected $3,500,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan funds. The Speaker urged Congress to remove restrictions so any individual with security could borrow.

President Hits Back.

In a formal statement, the President hit back at the Democratic vice presidential nominee, declaring he would not accept the proposal insisted upon by the Texan and forecasting a veto for the relief measure.

That the issue between Garner and the President will be one of those heard throughout the country during the presidential campaign appeared certain.

Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, answering Garner in the House, quoted the Texan as saying the issue was "between the President and Congress," and added: "I say, it is not. It is an issue between the President and the Democratic vice presidential nominee. That is the real issue."

Striding up and down the well of the House and directing his speech particularly at the Republicans, Garner contended:

"There is a principle involved in this that I will not surrender. I will not surrender the principle that we ought to legislate for all the people rather than for a preferential class."

Hits "Class Legislation."

Garner said he told the President yesterday at a White House conference on the bill that he was "through with class legislation" and that a "Democratic administration legislates for the whole republic; a Republican administration legislates for certain special classes."

President Hoover said the insistence of Speaker Garner on provisions that loans be made by the Reconstruction Corporation to individuals, private corporations, partnerships, States and municipalities "on any conceivable security and for every purpose" caused the White House conference to fail to harmonize conflicting views.

"While I am determined that there shall be relief legislation at this ses-

TIP BRINGS FINDING OF KIDNAPED BOHN

Clew by Man Arrested on Larceny Charge Leads Police to Discovery.

Minneapolis, July 6 (A.P.).—Haskell Bohn, 20 years old, son of a St. Paul manufacturer, missing since last Thursday, when he was reported seized by two men, was found by deputy sheriffs at a lake resort near here tonight.

Acting on a "tip," the deputies went to the lake, where Bohn was said to have been found unharmed.

This development followed reports from Crookston, Minn., that Jack Thompson, alias Roy White, of Tulsa, Okla., had confessed that Bohn was being held at a farm home near Emerson, Manitoba.

When news of the finding of Bohn was received, Thomas E. Dahill, chief of police of St. Paul, and two detectives had just finished questioning Thompson and expressed their belief that he was not one of the men sought for the Bohn affair.

When Bohn was seized by the two men at the garage of the home of his father, Gebhard Bohn, a note was left with the family chauffeur, D. E. Meyers, demanding $35,000 for the youth's safe return. Later the amount was reduced to $5,000.

White, who told Crookston police he had been released from prison last April after serving a sentence for robbing a bank at Kellyville, Okla., implicated Ralph Hall and Jack Britt in the Bohn disappearance.

Because of discrepancies in his story, Crookston authorities were inclined to doubt Thompson's statements, but St. Paul detectives left for Crookston.

Thompson told Crookston police the plot to seize Bohn was hatched by Hall. He and Hall drove with Bohn from St. Paul in a stolen car and arrived at Emerson Saturday night, meeting Britt, he said.

Wife Swings at Mate And Tumbles Over Cliff

Honolulu, July 6 (A.P.).—Mrs. Leona Felix, 22, fell over a 60-foot cliff today while fighting with her husband, Edward A. Felix, Army sergeant.

She was only slightly injured, and after being rescued by police kissed her husband. She missed a wild swing and spun over the cliff, explained Felix, who suffered a black eye.

Col. Sam Walker Is Dead in Idaho

Was Born in White House in 1845, When Polk Was President.

Lewiston, Idaho, July 6 (A.P.).—Col. Sam P. Walker, 86, born in the White House and a veteran of the Civil War, in which he fought under the banner of the Confederate army, died here yesterday.

He was born in the White House June 4, 1845, when James K. Polk was President. For 30 years he was representative through the South for Wells Fargo Express Co.

Walker, a Democrat, was always prominent in politics, following the example of his father, who was secretary to Polk.

HOOVER HOME LOAN PLAN TURNED DOWN

Senate Offers Substitute Proposal, Delegating Function to R. F. C.

(Associated Press.)

President Hoover's proposal for a home loan banking system was turned down yesterday by the Senate, which substituted a plan creating a division in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to aid the home owner.

It was the first of the administration's reconstruction proposals to be rejected by the chamber, and a motion to reconsider was entered promptly by Senator Carey (Republican), Wyoming. The vote was 32 to 34.

The substitute proposal, offered by Senator Couzens (Republican), Michigan, provides for loans from the corporation up to an aggregate total of $400,000,000 to the following types of organizations:

Building and loan associations, saving and loan associations, cooperative banks, homestead associations, savings banks, trust companies and other banking institutions.

Couzens, in urging adoption of his substitute, contended it would set up no permanent agency for handling real estate paper, but would use the facilities of the Reconstruction Corporation and its 39 branches.

"There isn't a single word in the bill which will help the little home owner," he said, referring to the administration's plan, which was backed by Republican Leader Watson, of Indiana.

"It's a way for financial institu-

Lindbergh Suspect Held in Extortion

Penned Letter Saying He Could Return Baby, Police Say.

Windsor, Vt., July 6 (A.P.).—Adam Yarovich, alias Jaskevich, 30, of Franklin, N. H., was held in the State prison today charged with attempting to extort $50,000 from Col. Charles A. Lindbergh. Police claimed Yarovich said he could return the kidnaped son of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh to them.

Police charged Yarovich mailed a letter in Franklin on April 22 and then went to White River Junction where he hired a mail box at the postoffice to receive an answer to his demand. The letter received by Col. Lindbergh asked that he send the money hidden between the leaves of a magazine addressed to Jaskevich at the White River Junction postoffice.

Officers were posted at the postoffice when a fake package was left there in May. Yarovich was arrested yesterday and pleaded not guilty at a hearing in White River Junction. He was ordered held in $3,000 bonds.

HOUSE RACE IS LED BY GRANDMOTHER

Foe of Oklahoma Governor in Run-Off for Representative at Large.

Oklahoma City, July 6 (A.P.).—A grandmother who campaigned as a vigorous foe of Gov. W. H. Murray, tonight had outdistanced more than a score of men opponents in the race for the Democratic nomination for Oklahoma's new representative-at-large.

Incomplete returns from yesterday's primary indicated Mrs. Mabel Bassett, State commissioner of charities and corrections, will enter the run-off primary July 26 against E. B. Howard, of Tulsa, former First District representative.

With more than half of the precincts reported, Mrs. Bassett was 4,000 votes ahead of Howard and nearly 10,000 votes in front of Claude Weaver, former secretary to Gov. Murray.

W. W. Hastings, veteran Democratic representative from the Second District, held only a slim lead over Alexander Johnston, Okmulgee oil man, in his fight for renomination. With 61 precincts out, Hastings had a lead of 673. He will be forced into a run-off with Johnson because of the vote given a third candidate.

Upsetting preelection predictions, J. C. "Jack" Walton, ousted governor and former Oklahoma City mayor, forged slowly ahead of A. S. J. Shaw, former State auditor and treasurer, for Democratic nomination for corporation commissioner.

The State's senior senator, Elmer Thomas, while polling nearly twice as many votes as Gomer Smith, Oklahoma City attorney, will face a run-off contest for renomination. R. M. McCool, former Democratic State chairman and approved by Gov. Murray for the office, was in third place.

Leading U. S. Stone, former congressman, and James Harris, former State Republican chairman, by a wide margin, Wirt Franklin, of Ardmore, head of the Independent Oil Producers Association, had not polled enough votes to avoid a run-off contest in the Republican senatorial race.

The colorful E. W. Marland, of Ponca City, who made a fortune in oil and lost it, apparently was nominated for Eighth District congressman on the Democratic ticket. Marland will meet M. C. Garber, Republican incumbent, in the general election, the returns indicated.

Democratic incumbents were leading in other congressional districts.

Body of Infant Is Found On Bank Near Annapolis

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., July 6.—Wrapped in a piece of brown paper, the body of a white infant, apparently about a week old, was found early today on the shore of the headwaters of Severn River where the stream passes under a bridge on the Crain highway. The discovery was made by a young man seeking work.

Sheriff R. Glenn Proutt and Police Justice William E. Baldwin, of Millersville, were notified. Investigation revealed that the body had been operated on and all vital organs removed. The body was found on the west side of the road. Sheriff Proutt is of the opinion that it was tossed from an automobile.

Nickel Plate Railroad Valued at $72,882,200

(Associated Press.)

The Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday announced that the value for rate-making purposes of the Nickel Plate Railroad was $72,882,200, as of June 30, 1918.

The valuation was divided into two parts, the New York, Chicago & St. Louis Railroad Co. being valued at $47,075,000 and the Lake Erie & Western Railroad at $25,807,200. Besides the property owned on June 30, 1918, the commission found that the New York, Chicago & St. Louis used but did not own $4,739,778 worth and owned but did not use $52,860. The Lake Erie & Western used $4,493,146 worth of property it did not own and owned $36,353 of property it did not use.

Naval Leader Demands France Build Cruiser

Paris, July 6 (A.P.).—An interpellation on the government's proposal to delay construction of a 27,000-ton battle cruiser, originally designed to counterbalance a German "pocket" battleship, was presented in the Chamber of Deputies today.

Vice Chairman Detastes of the naval commission, author of the interpellation, said it was inadmissible without the chamber's approval that France should postpone, indefinitely the cruiser's construction.

tions to liquefy their frozen assets," Couzens continued, "without a word that provides they shall pass on a dollar to the little home owner or refuse to foreclose a mortgage."

His substitute, he asserted, also would provide quicker help for realty credits, as it could be put to work at once, while the Watson bill "can not be made effective inside of a year or help in the present distress."

Watson retorted the bill's purpose remained intact and that it would aid the home owner.

"Building and loan associations and others are waiting to foreclose in the hope this bill will pass so they could tide things over," Watson said.

As for remarks that the administration bill's provision for only $125,000,000 initial capital stock for the home loan banking system was too little, Watson said nearly $2,000,000,000 would be needed to meet the needs of every home owner.

Before adoption of the Couzens substitute the Senate agreed to a proposal by Senator Walcott (Republican), Connecticut, an administration stalwart, limiting the life of the system to fifteen years, with only five for active lending purposes.

Immediately after the substitution of the Couzens system, Senator Frazier (Republican), North Dakota, proposed as a "rider" an amendment to refinance the farm mortgage debt at 1½ per cent.

He thwarted a move by Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut, to present another amendment which would legalize 3.2 per cent beer. With the prospect that the relief bill will come from the House to the Senate today, leaders were not sure, when action on the home-loan bill can be completed.

companies, building and loan associations. That is, the whole people.

The provision to finance $1,500,000,000 self-liquidating construction projects for relief of unemployment comprised part of the proposals I had already made to the Congress.

The fatal difficulty is the Speaker's insistence upon provision that loans should also be made to individuals, private corporations, partnerships, States and municipalities on any conceivable security and for every purpose. Such an undertaking by the United States Government makes the Reconstruction Corporation the most gigantic banking and pawnbroking business in all history.

There are 48 States and 16,000 municipalities who could under its terms dump their responsibilities upon the Federal Government. The purpose to take care of unemployment distress in such centers is provided for in the proposals of employment and loans to the States. The Speaker's proposal in no sense contributes to relieve such distress. It would compel the Reconstruction Corporation to attempt to deal with millions of people in terms of hundreds of thousands of small and large loans. It would result in dumping a vast amount of doubtful private and corporation debts on the Federal Treasury to no national purpose of relieving unemployment. It would require the extension of branch offices in every town and county in the United States and set up a huge bureaucracy able to dictate the welfare of millions of people and at the will of its agents deal favor and disaster amongst them. No group of seven men can so organize as not to discriminate unfairly between competitive enterprises. There is no body of men who could physically administer such a gigantic project. The board of the Reconstruction Corporation, except one absent member, informs me unanimously that the making of loans to individuals is totally unworkable. It would undermine Federal credit and bring a vast increase in unemployment.

* * * *

I wish to emphasize what it means. Such a proposal means that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is to take over an impossible task and most difficult part of the banking business; that is, to deal with the doubtful credits in the whole United States. To carry out such a purpose it would be necessary, as I have said, for the board of seven men to set up branch banks in practically every community and to direct their operations from Washington. It would be dependent upon men in these thousand branches. The task of organization and of finding competent personnel would not be a matter of months but of years. From an organization and administrative standpoint, it is self-evident that the proposal is impossible of execution, and huge losses and great scandals must inevitably result from any attempt to do so.

Any attempt to carry out such a law under these circumstances must mean the squandering of hundreds of millions of dollars of public funds. The board would be flooded with hundreds of thousands of applications. There would be serious interference, if not a complete breakdown, of the vital activities it is now carrying on under high pressure. And there will be disappointment on the parts of hundreds and thousands of individuals and thousands of businesses who will have been led to believe that the credit of the United States Government was made available for their individual purposes. There will be inevitable discriminations. The organization would be subject to predatory corporations and interests everywhere.

* * * *

Aside from the utter impracticability of the proposal, no funds, or totally inadequate funds, are provided for the making of these loans. The bill as it came from the Senate provided for increasing the authority of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to borrow by $1,500,000,000 for certain self-liquidating construction projects enumerated in the bill. Presumably the Senate did not provide more than it thought was necessary for these purposes. Not one penny is to be added for the making of these individual, private, corporation and public loans. In other words, the Reconstruction Corporation is to be charged with a duty which is impossible to carry out in practice, and it is to be furnished with no additional funds with which to make the loans unless the Senate unemployment projects are to be abandoned.

Some conception of the credit needs of the people of the United States may be had from the following figures. Total bank loans on December 31 last aggregated over $31,600,000,000. This does not take into consideration loans made by insurance companies running into the billions, loans made by savings banks, mortgage companies, building and loan associations amounting to $9,000,000,000, or the funded debt of corporations running into further billions.

To hold out the hope to the people of the United States that the United States Government is prepared to take care of their credit needs with the ridiculously small sum provided, or the impossible organization urged, must be condemned, in addition to every other reason, as a deception. Furthermore, the statement of the Speaker that the board can determine if it should enter upon such loans is a shifting of responsibility from the Congress to the board which is itself misleading the hopes of the people.

* * * *

Under the provisions of the bill as it came from the Senate, the funds available to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation were increased from $2,000,000,000 to $3,800,000,000. Of this the Corporation must borrow $3,300,000,000. The Corporation can only borrow such sum because its debentures are guaranteed by the United States, or, in other words, because the credit of the United States is pledged to secure its obligations. To sell any such vast amount of securities at a time like this is a difficult enough task, strong as is the credit of the United States Government. But it can only be done and done without danger to break down of the credit of the Government if the purposes for which the funds are to be used are economically sound and if the loans be made under such safeguards that they will be repaid. In order that the transactions will not constitute a charge on the general fund of the Treasury and the taxpayers. But if these funds are to be squandered by the making of loans for every conceivable purpose, with inadequate safeguards, it will at once become evident that the credit of the Government is being misused.

We have sought during these difficult times to maintain as a pillar of unassailable strength the credit of the United States Government. It is not too much to say that the measure proposed and insisted upon even to the extent of defeat of relief legislation by the Speaker of the House threatens the credit of the United States Government and disaster to our people. The proposal violates every sound principle of public finance and of government.

* * * *

My objection to the second proposal of placing $100,000,000 at the disposal of the President was that the Federal Government should not make direct charitable gifts to individuals and that such responsibility should not be placed on the President. A further objection is that the $200,000,000 of loans to States were allocated on a population basis, or $1.66 per capita. A large part of the States are able to take care of their own and to finance their relief needs, and probably three-fourths of the total amount would be unused by such States or alternatively there would be every pressure upon State officials to demand the money even though there was no need.

The funds assignable to States where there is acute need would, when reduced to the per capita of the people suffering from unemployment in those acute areas amount to less than $10 per person for a whole year. The apparent large sums discussed would raise false hopes, would tend to destroy charity and undermine local and governmental contributions to the needy in several times the amount which would be made available. Furthermore, loans are to be made to States solely on the certificate of the governor and administered solely by him. There is no precaution that the funds are to be administered under the ordinary checks and supervisions of the State governments or Federal Government. To allocate such large sums to a public official without restriction or the necessity of proper accounting and auditing is unheard of.

As to the third point, that is the provisions to spend additional $322,000,000 on public works, my objections were that the cost of these works ultimately comes from the taxpayers and will produce a deficit in the budget by just the amount expended; that it discards to the winds every effort made to balance the budget. Many of the works designed are remote from centers of unemployment. The technicians of the Government state that it would give during the year an average direct employment to less than 100,000 out of a total of 8,000,000 unemployed.

It was, however, possible to reach a fair adjustment of the proposal as to $300,000,000 loans to the States, which may be unable to relieve distress, and to protect the Treasury in large measure in the matter of the $322,000,000 of nonproductive public works. We are in agreement in the provision of temporary loans by the Reconstruction Corporation to finance $1,500,000,000 of productive construction work for the unemployed.

There is unquestioned need for the passage of legislation to take care of unemployment and such cases of destitution as the resources of the States are unable to meet. I have recommended such legislation. While I am determined that there shall be relief legislation at this session of Congress, I can not accept the proposal up to now insisted upon by Speaker Garner as a condition to securing his support, for I do not propose to further increase unemployment by such disastrous action as is now proposed through jeopardizing the whole credit of the Government and laying our people open to every kind of injustice and loss.

Text of Garner's Speech In House on Relief Issue

(Associated Press.)

Speaker Garner, speaking on the relief question in the House yesterday, said in part:

It has not been customary since I have been a member of Congress, but when the President of the United States invites members of the House to the Executive Office for the purpose of discussing the welfare of the Union I do not see how it is possible that we could refuse.

However, I do want to say that it is not the best custom. And I do not think it is quite in keeping with the Constitution or the thought of the makers of the Constitution as to the relation between the Executive and the legislative branches of the Government for the President of the United States to wait until a conference report is completed and has been signed by the members of the conference to secure a copy of it and before that conference report is filed in the House of Representatives to summon them to the Executive Office for the purpose of telling them how to correct their work. It ought not to exist and I on this floor protest against it. * * *

Title 2 of the bill has for its purpose the lending of $3,500,000,000 to the people of the United States. That is the difference between the President and myself. Representative Rainey joined me.

Hesitant on Finance Fund.

Back in February we passed what is known as the Reconstruction Finance Corporation act at the urgent request of the President of the United States to take the place of a private corporation created by the bankers of this country to do the same thing that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is doing except that it had no limitations on what it could loan money for. We passed the act although we were hesitant.

We knew that we were launching into a field that could not be defended under the principles of the Constitution of the United States. But this country was in the throes of desperation, economically. And as the result we took it as the President wanted it, hoping and believing that it would restore confidence and prosperity.

The corporation has been functioning now for four months. It probably has been of wonderful benefit to the country. Nobody can tell. Nobody knows how many banks would have their doors closed today had it not been for the corporation. I think it has been a benefit to the country, but it has not brought about the results we hoped for.

The issue between the President and the Congress is this: We are going to broaden the base of this corporation. You say the railroads, the insurance companies, the joint stock land banks, banks of all kinds, and other corporate interests have been wonderfully benefited.

Opposes Class Legislation.

We now propose in the House of Representatives to add $1,500,000,000 to the funds of that corporation, that much of the money of the people of the United States, and we propose to say that from henceforth there shall be no class legislation and no class borrowers, but that the whole people of the United States are going to share in it.

How can you gentlemen sit here and have your taxpayers put up $3,500,000,000 and then say to a citizen in your State or to a private corporation in your State that wants to borrow money, that have adequate security, and who intend by the borrowing of that money to put labor to work—how can you say, sir, that this Reconstruction Finance Corporation ought not to make the loan?

How can you say that it is more important in this Nation that the New York Central Railroad should meet the interest on its bonds in July and August of this year than it is to prevent the sale of 500,000 farms and homes in this republic?

I undertake to say now, and I have the President's authority for it, that this country is in worse shape than it has ever been in all its history, because I heard him say so last night in reply to my question, "Do you believe that the appropriation of $332,000,000 will bring on a panic?"

Sees Threat of Panic.

He said he was afraid of it. He said it might and that it would be a shock to the country. So if the President of the United States has arrived at the conclusion that prosperity is not just around the corner and that panic is staring us in the face, I am led to the belief he anticipates what will happen in the near future if this country and wants to make some excuse for it.

I said to the President this morning as I said to him last night. I am through with class legislation. You want to provide this $3,500,000,000 and you want to give it to the railroads, the insurance companies, the mortgage companies and the immense wealth of the country.

They said to me, "Why, all the people will get a benefit out of it." My friends, it is too high. The drippings do not reach down to the earth.

I want to start at the bottom. I want these seven men who control this corporation to have the right to say that this money is lifted into their keeping by all the taxpayers of the United States.

The railroad companies, the banks and the insurance companies do not pay all the taxes in this republic, so why should you go out and gather from all this audience here $3,500,000,000, then say we have got to take care of this small bunch over here, and then let them have the benefit of this wholesome policy and leave out all the balance.

Now on the Democratic side you may say, and some of you on the Republican side may think, that we ought not to trust this board with such a stupendous sum of money or with such broad discretionary powers.

Cites Alternative.

My friends, if you are going to take that position, then there is only one consistent thing for you to do and that is to say that these seven men can not be trusted either with respect to their wisdom or their patriotism and then you ought to repeal the law.

"You ought not to put this trust in the hands of men that you are not going to give an opportunity to serve all the people, the same as you give them the opportunity to serve a certain class or a certain interest.

If you can not trust them to lend to an individual or to a private corporation why did you trust them to lend to the particular class enumerated in the present law? I say that if you can trust them to lend to one and exercise discretion in that particular you can trust them to lend to all.

I believe this is the safe thing to do. I believe it will be helpful to the country. I believe it will restore confidence even in the banks, because the people will know they have one place where they can get some money to keep from being closed out by those they owe, if they have adequate security.

Congress Acts to Raise Fees on Money Orders

(Associated Press.)

Congressional action was completed yesterday on a bill to increase the fees on domestic postal money orders.

The Senate receded from an amendment under which the Postmaster General would be given authority to revise the rates and agreed to specific increases voted by the House. These would raise from 5 to 6 cents the rate of money orders up to $2.50 and make the rate on those from $2.51 to $5 8 cents instead of 7.

TWO ANSWER HYDE'S VIEWS ON FORESTRY

Ovid Butler and Chairman Jones Back Roosevelt's Job Aid Claims.

(Associated Press.)

Ovid Butler, executive secretary of the American Forestry Association, yesterday wrote Secretary Hyde that a national forestry project at this time would provide work "for a very large number of men."

Mr. Butler was answering a statement by Secretary Hyde Tuesday discounting Gov. Roosevelt's suggestion that a million men could be put to work by a reforestation program.

"It is true," Mr. Butler said, "that if reforestation is viewed in the narrow sense of merely planting trees, such a project has its limitations due to insufficiency of nursery stock. * * * To give the impression that forestry offers only the possibility of tree planting is in the judgment of the American Forestry Association to dismiss the subject without fair consideration of the very large and diverse possibilities which the field offers."

Replying to Secretary Hyde's attack, Chairman Jones of the House agricultural committee, said "the Secretary, as everyone knows, understands more about politics than he does about agriculture."

"Reforestation is a problem which Gov. Roosevelt understands," Jones said in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee.

"Farmer Hyde has an apparent idea that reforestation consists of going to a nursery, buying a seedling and planting it. He overlooks entirely the great problems of flood control and soil erosion, which are gripping the attention of the people today. He does not understand the immense amount of work connected with the preparation of the soil, the problems of drainage, and especially the matter of reforestation of cut-over land, which means the thinning out of thick underbrush, the preservation of the useful trees and the elimination of the useless varieties.

"If Secretary Hyde did not hold such a high position in our Government, his lack of information expressed in such elementary language—in the thought that reforestation is sticking a twig into the ground and waiting for it to grow—would be amusing."

McAdoo on Way Here En Route to California

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—William G. McAdoo left for Washington by train tonight en route back to California, where he will open his campaign for the Democratic nomination for senator.

He probably will confer in Washington with Speaker Garner and proceed West from there tomorrow night to board his private airplane at Akron, Ohio.

HOOVER AND GARNER IN RELIEF EXCHANGE

sion of Congress, I can not accept the proposal up to now insisted upon by Speaker Garner as a condition of securing his support, for I do not propose to further increase unemployment by such disastrous action as is now proposed through the jeopardizing of the whole credit of the Government and laying our people open to every kind of injustice and loss," Hoover said.

Attack on Proposal.

"I wish to emphasize what it means," he continued. "Such a proposal means that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is to take over an impossible task and most difficult part of the banking business—that is, to deal with the doubtful credits in the whole United States.

"To carry out such a purpose it would be necessary, as I have said, for the board of seven men to set up branch banks in practically every community and to direct their operations from Washington. It would be dependent upon men in these thousand branches. * * *

"Any attempt to carry out such a law under these circumstances must mean the squandering of hundreds of millions of dollars of public funds. * * *

"Aside from the utter impracticability of the proposal, no funds or totally inadequate funds are provided for the making of these loans."

Garner explained that in order to obtain relief legislation he had receded from his stand on other sections of the bill.

Sees Danger of Riots.

"I believe you have got to have some reservoir of relief, Federal in its nature, or you are going to have riots in this country," Garner said. "You might as well be plain about it. I want to see the legislation passed and therefore I am willing to make the concession.

"I am willing to make a surrender, and then I would like to give the assurance that Congress desires to serve the whole people of the United States while the President says, 'I will take my select clientele or you will take nothing in the way of relief.'"

After the Republican and Democratic leaders and conferees had failed to reach an agreement with President Hoover at the White House Tuesday night in all phases of the relief measure Garner attended the second unsuccessful conference yesterday. Its outcome virtually ended hopes for an agreement between Congress and the President and indications were a bill would be passed which the President would veto unless he yielded.

Other Disputes Eliminated.

Other controversies in the huge measure were eliminated at the conference. It was agreed that a $300,000,000 relief fund for loans to States be allotted on the basis of need as Mr. Hoover wanted, with a 15 per cent limitation to each State.

Municipalities may borrow through State governors.

Another compromise was reached on the public works section. The President wanted it stricken from the bill, but agreed to let the $132,000,000 for highway construction stand, and the remainder of the $322,000,000 program to remain with the stipulation that the Secretary of the Treasury determine whether the fiscal condition of the Government would allow the expenditure.

Snell charged that Garner "in his speech here today has made more direct appeal for class distinction and class discrimination than any speech that has been made on the floor of the House in this session.

"If the distinguished Speaker ever made a demagogic appeal he made that appeal today."

NOMINATION BY DRYS DECLINED BY BORAH

Asks Party to Pick Another Pending Convention of Prohibitionists Here.

Indianapolis, July 6 (A.P.).—Senator William E. Borah, notified by telephone at Washington tonight that his name had been presented to the prohibition party as a candidate for the presidential nomination, suggested that the party nominate some one else, leaving the way open to cooperate with a greater convention later this month at Washington.

Former Representative William Upshaw, of Georgia, asked the Idaho senator to withhold any statement and await the action of a meeting of dry organizations in Washington.

Borah was assured that if that meeting took no action on the situation, then the prohibition party would seek another nominee if he did not care to make the race.

The Idaho senator was proposed by Miss Ethel Hubler, of California, who urged him upon the delegates as the strongest hope of friends of prohibition for the maintenance and enforcement of the eighteenth amendment.

Earlier the convention had adopted a platform plank declaring for adherence to the World Court, which is determinedly opposed by Borah.

Then John T. Coffin, of Florida, nominated Dr. D. Leigh Colvin, chairman of the party's national committee, who has been a leader in the movement to make Borah the nominee.

Frank S. Regan, of Rockford, Ill., was nominated by Edward E. Blake, of Wheaton, Ill.

Borah's nomination was seconded by Richard M. Cannon, son of Bishop James Cannon, jr., of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, and by Carroll Lehman, of Michigan.

Others placed in nomination were Dr. Clinton Howard, Rochester, N. Y., and William E. Varney, of Rockville Center, N. Y., the party's 1928 candidate.

The convention received the platform this afternoon from the resolutions committee and approved it.

The prohibition plank unequivocally opposes the repeal or weakening of the eighteenth amendment and condemns the Republican and Democratic parties for "their present determination to repeal that amendment on the excuse that it can not be enforced."

To restore prosperity another plank recommends the creation of an economic council for the consideration of such measures as regulation of the stock exchanges and boards of trade; stabilization of wage schedules and hours of labor; revision of tariff schedules; revision of the banking system; development of an economic plan to stabilize industry; relief of destitute; governmental unemployment and other insurance; revaluation of all utilities, transportation systems, and basic industries and other related measures "designed to assure economic security."

On taxation the party pledges an economical administration. Waste, the platform asserts, costs more than the amount required to pay the soldiers' bonus and feed the poor.

SMITH'S STATEMENT CHEERS DEMOCRATS

Most of Leaders at Capitol Say Announcement Was Expected.

(Associated Press.)

From Democrats of Capitol Hill yesterday came a chorus of pleasure at the news Alfred E. Smith would support the party ticket.

Most of them, however, said that the announcement was expected. Some of the stanchest of Roosevelt supporters at the Chicago convention, among them Senator Cohen, of Georgia, and Senator Long, of Louisiana, praised Smith for his expression.

Speaker Garner, the vice presidential nominee, said: "When anybody says they are going to support the ticket I am happy to know it. I have felt all the time that former Gov. Smith would support the ticket."

Others said:

Senator Bulkley (Democrat), Ohio: "It is no surprise to me. I never doubted that Al Smith would support the party. He is a good Democrat and always has been."

Senator Barbour (Republican), New Jersey: "It is what I expected."

Senator Long (Democrat), Louisiana: "That is a very fine expression and one that is worthy of the man. There was never any question about Al Smith's Democracy."

Loyal Member of Party.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York: "What I expected. He is a loyal member of the party. He made his fight. He got licked and now he'll stand by."

Senator Sheppard (Democrat), of Texas, a stanch prohibitionist: "I agree with what he says, save on the eighteenth amendment and the Volstead act."

Senator Cohen (Democrat), of Georgia: "Those who knew Gov. Smith felt certain that he would take the position that he has. This and other contributing causes means, in my judgment, that the Democratic party will carry 40 of the 48 States in the coming election. Gov. Smith is correct in pointing out what twelve years of Republican misrule have brought us to."

Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader and vice presidential nominee with Smith:

"I am glad to learn Gov. Smith has announced his support of the Democratic ticket. While I anticipated that he would do so, the announcement adds material support to the strength of the Democratic nominee."

Never Had Any Doubt.

Senator Walsh, of Massachusetts, one of the Smith men at the Democratic convention: "I never entertained any doubt but that Gov. Smith would support the actions of the Democratic national convention."

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, who recently announced his support of Gov. Roosevelt—"I have nothing to say."

Senator Stephens (Democrat), Mississippi—"That's fine and is very gratifying information. It is really what I had expected."

Representative Byrns (Democrat), Tennessee—"I am very much gratified, but it is no more than I expected."

Recalls Bryan's Statement.

Senator Moses (Republican), New Hampshire—"It reminds me of Bryan's statement regarding Alton B. Parker in 1904 and to go back further, Roscoe Conkling's speeches in 1880."

Senator Bingham (Republican), Connecticut—"Al is a good sport and a good Democrat."

Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio—"His statement is perfectly satisfactory to me."

Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader—"It's the utterance of a real Democrat. It makes doubly sure the victory already in sight."

Representative McDuffie, the Democratic whip—"I had no doubt from beginning that Gov. Smith, recognizing the honor the party had given him, would support the Democratic ticket. I am in no way surprised. I've always believed he was good sport enough to support the ticket."

Norris Asks Loan Report by R. F. C.

Offers Resolution Calling for Complete Details on Its Activities.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, yesterday called upon the Senate to demand of the Reconstruction Corporation a detailed report on all its loans. He introduced a resolution calling for the report. Consideration was deferred.

The resolution asks the corporation to report to the Senate "a complete and detailed list of all loans, giving the name of the person or corporation, date of maturity, rate of interest and the nature of the security held as collateral."

Saying it is impossible even for a member of Congress to obtain information concerning the corporation's loans, Senator Dill (Democrat), Washington, added "it's as secret as though it were sacrosanct and it's about time we found out whether the organization is being fair to all institutions of the country or whether there are a few institutions in the country receiving favors from the administration."

Repeal Sought of Ring Film Law.

(Associated Press.)

A bill by Representative Lankford (Republican), of Norfolk, yesterday proposed repeal of the 1912 law forbidding transportation and importation of prize fight films.

SMITH TO SUPPORT ROOSEVELT TICKET

impossible for me to reply to them individually.

"Most of the suggestions urge the organization of an independent political party. These come from people dissatisfied with the conventions of both parties. To them I say it is not practical, in our country, to start a third party at this time, as it would simply register a negative vote, which would accomplish nothing for the people in their hour of need.

"We are living under a system of two major political parties. The parties out of power should constitute the necessary check and audit upon the party in power. The question before us today for decision is, shall the record of the last twelve years of Republican administration be approved at the polls in November? As far as I am concerned, I am totally dissatisfied with that record and shall do nothing to lend it countenance. I shall therefore support the Democratic party."

Smith Study in Brown.

Smith, dressed in a complete outfit of brown, from shoes to pocket handkerchief, tossed a pile of the statements onto a table in front of nearly 50 newspapermen and then turned to go.

He was immediately besieged by a score of questions.

"Is there any significance to the fact that your statement does not mention the name of either Democratic nominee?" he was asked.

"I don't see any occasion for mentioning names," Smith replied. "This statement says I will support the Democratic party. How could any one do that without supporting its candidates?"

"There has been a report you intend to run for governor," someone began, but before a question had been put Smith cut the interrogator short and said:

"There's nothing to that. It's just dope, as we say in our business."

Has Had No Conferences.

Smith said he had not conferred with any of the Roosevelt managers, or William Gibbs McAdoo or any other political leaders.

He denied he intended to go abroad. Instead, he explained, he planned to leave Friday for a short vacation on Long Island.

There is a possibility Smith and Roosevelt will speak from the same platform at the Utica centennial celebration July 23. The governor already has accepted an invitation to speak and Smith also is expected to accept.

Meantime, prominent leaders who planned an important part in the Roosevelt victory met for a short conference, but it was said they had not formulated any definite plans. The conferees were James A. Farley, new national chairman; Arthur Mullen, Roosevelt floor leader, and William G. McAdoo.

Farley said the formation of definite plans would be postponed as long as possible in order to take advantage of the flood of suggestions that already has begun to pour in from all corners of the country.

Will Meet With Advisers.

Farley was in constant communication with the governor by telephone, but said he had no definite plan for a conference with him. Louis Howe, Roosevelt's confidential secretary; Charles Michelson, publicity manager for the national committee, and others who will play important roles in the campaign are expected to discuss plans with the governor at Hyde Park over the week-end.

Albany, N. Y., July 6 (A.P.).—Gov. Roosevelt's comment tonight on former Gov. Smith's statement that he would support the Democratic ticket was: "Gov. Smith's statement confirms my confidence that he would support the Democratic party."

CAMPAIGN OF G.O.P. IS FORMALLY OPENED

Headquarters in Chicago Is Established; Sanders to Visit Hoover Soon.

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—The Republicans formally opened the campaign to reelect President Herbert Hoover today, establishing national headquarters in the Palmer House.

Everett Sanders, chairman of the national committee and generalissimo of the field forces, conferred with the publicity director, former Gov. Henry Allen of Kansas.

The entire sixth floor of the hotel was occupied by the campaign forces, which for the first time in the party's history will be directed from the West.

One of the first pronouncements by Sanders was that whatever the President had to say would come direct from the White House. All speaking tours, other than the President's, would be planned in Chicago.

The first objectives were:

The perfection of State and local organizations, directed by Sanders, and the mammoth spread of publicity that will be unending until November 8.

In past campaigns, Chicago has been the Western headquarters for both Republicans and Democrats. This will be true again this year. J. Bruce Kremer, Democratic national committeeman from Montana, will soon open the Western Roosevelt-Garner headquarters in the Congress Hotel.

Sanders, Secretary to former President Coolidge, leaves tomorrow to open the Eastern headquarters in New York. Before returning to Chicago, he will go to Washington for a conference with President Hoover.

The national committee chairman said the major speakers of the campaign had not yet been chosen.

"Do you think Coolidge will stump the country?" he was asked.

"I do not know," he replied.

Hoover Democrat Gets Threats of Losing Job

Gulfport, Miss., July 6 (A.P.).—Declarations of W. L. Guice, a Mississippi delegate to the Democratic national convention, that he would not support Franklin D. Roosevelt, but would offer his services as a stump speaker for President Hoover, brought threats today against several appointive State offices he holds under the Democratic regime.

Petitions were circulated in Gulfport asking for his removal as attorney for the Harrison County board of supervisors and as counsel for the State oyster commission. They asked that "a good Democrat" be appointed in his stead.

ONLY 12 HOURS NEEDED TO CATCH THESE—AND MORE

MRS. BARNEY FREED IN DEATH OF SUITOR

Daughter of Wealthy British Baronet Collapses on Hearing Verdict.

London, July 6 (A.P.).—A jury of ten men and two women found today that Mrs. Elvira Dolores Barney, 26-year-old daughter of a wealthy baronet, was not guilty of the murder of Thomas William Scott Stephen, her sweetheart, who was shot to death in her bizarre flat after a cocktail party May 31.

The verdict, reached after 1 hour and 53 minutes of deliberation, brought to a close England's most sensational murder trial in decades.

Mrs. Barney collapsed when she heard it. A short time later, wholly freed, she went to the home of her father and mother, Sir John and Lady Mullens, in Belgrave Square.

Her future plans remained unannounced.

The jury also acquitted Mrs Barney on two other charges—one of manslaughter and another of intent to do Stephen, the son of a prominent financier, grievous bodily harm by trying to shoot him during a quarrel a few weeks before his death.

Mrs. Barney, tired and forlorn, went through the final scenes of the spectacular three-day trial as if in a trance.

Her mother screamed with joy and then fainted when she heard the jury's verdict. But the defendant uttered no sound. Staring straight at the judge, she collapsed and was carried unconscious from the courtroom.

The verdict substantiated the defense case, conducted by the famous Sir Patrick Hastings, that the fatal shot was fired as Mrs. Barney and her sweetheart, whom she testified she had supported for two years, were struggling for possession of her revolver, with which she had threatened to kill herself.

Stimson Is Firm On Soviet Policy

State Department Does Not Expect Change in Relations.

(Associated Press.)

Unofficial negotiations looking toward resumption of diplomatic relations between the United States and Soviet Russia have produced no responsive echo at the State Department.

Col. Frederick Pope, the New York industrialist who is negotiating with the Moscow government, talked with Secretary Stimson on May 27. At the State Department it is said that neither Secretary Stimson nor any official of the department indicated any change in the American Government's policy toward Soviet Russia.

Col. Pope represents the Nitrogen Engineering Corporation which has built chemical plants at Beresniki, in the Ural Mountains, and at Bobrski. His company is also designing a similar plant for Durbent.

Edmonton Gives Permit To Mattern and Griffin

Edmonton, Alberta, July 6 (A.P.).—Permission for James Mattern and Bennett F. Griffin, round-the-world fliers, to use Portage avenue as a take-off has been granted by the City of Edmonton. The airmen are expected to stop here before starting the last lap of their flight back to New York.

This wide paved road, said to be the longest paved highway in the world within a city limits without a residence on either side, made a perfect take-off runway for Post and Gatty in their round-the-world jump a year ago after their flight threatened to end in disaster in a mud-bogged airport here.

World Fliers Face Test on Nome Hop

3,100-Mile Jump From Mid-Siberian City Is Most Perilous.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Bennett Griffin and James Mattern, round-the-world fliers, will meet their crucial test when they start the homeward half of their spin around the rim of the earth. Clarence Page, one of their representatives, explained today that the Southwestern pilots must push the Century of Progress 3,100 miles on a nonstop jump from the mid-Siberian city of Irkutsk to the Alaskan city of Nome.

"The boys must take on an enormous quantity of gasoline at Irkutsk," Page said, "and make that dangerous hop across the most barren expanse of land and water on earth without a hitch. If they falter for an instant it's all up."

He pointed out that Wiley Post and Harold Gatty on their record-breaking venture had the advantage of two additional landings in Siberia—at Blagoveschensk and Khabarovsk—before they tackled the perilous hop across the Bering Sea to Solomon Beach, Alaska. That left them a non-stop water jump of 2,400 miles.

Mattern's Folks Tensely Follow News Bulletins

Fort Worth, Tex., July 6 (A.P.).—Womenfolks of Jimmie Mattern, smiling but a little worn from sleeplessness, were as brave tonight in their small world of puzzling maps, a telephone and a radio as the fliers winging their way around a big world.

Mattern's wife, his mother, Mrs. Caroline Mattern, and sister, Mrs. G. H. Muller, were at their home, fingering a cablegram from Berlin, smiling, joking, knitting their brows over maps, but listening always for flashes of news.

Akron Passes Over Bermuda.

Hamilton, Bermuda, July 6 (A.P.).—The United States Navy dirigible Akron passed over Bermuda tonight in search of the ketch Curlew, missing since June 25. There was much excitement among the populace.

ACCUSER OF HUTTON FAINTS DURING TRIAL

Maternity Surgeon Testifies He Operated on Her Several Years Ago.

Los Angeles, July 6 (A.P.).—Myrtle St. Pierre, accuser of David Hutton in a $200,000 breach of promise trial, fainted late today as a maternity surgeon was testifying that he performed an operation on her several years ago.

Partially restored, she was led from the courtroom moaning, "They're crucifying me."

Hutton, the husband of Evangelist Aimee McPherson Hutton, sat scowling.

"What does she know about crucifixion?" he muttered. "I'm the one that's getting it, and for no reason at all."

The witness was Dr. Louis Levin.

Excitement that stirred the crowded courtroom when Miss St. Pierre collapsed mounted later when Eugene Eben, a radio organist named by the defense in attacks on Miss St. Pierre's reputation, testified that on two occasions he accepted $500 from a maternity hospital for posing as the "husband" of a motion picture star and a wealthy Pasadena widow while they were in the institution.

Eben admitted he was once engaged to Miss St. Pierre, but denied that his relations with her were improper.

He said he had never seen Miss St. Pierre take a drink.

George D. Ayube, who was named by Joseph Levi, a defense witness, as an escort who brought Miss St. Pierre to the cottage where Levi and Ayube once lived and remained there, whispering, late into the night, repudiated assertions that he made love to her.

Testimony of Mrs. Lillian Casey, Louise Gibney, of the musical comedy stage, that attempts were made to bribe her to testify against Miss St. Pierre in the latter's $200,000 heart balm suit against Hutton, was practically all ruled out today by Superior Judge Lester Roth.

The court held testimony concerning an alleged attempt to bribe was not material in the suit.

Mrs. Casey had testified yesterday that she had been approached by Dr. Paul A. Marshall, Reno physician and an important Hutton witness, and Roy Watkins, Angelus Temple worker, with a proposal that she testify against her friend, Miss St. Pierre.

Madden, 'Enemy No. 2,' Gives Up in New York

Ossining, N. Y., July 6 (U.P.).—Owen Madden, New York's "public enemy No. 2" and Broadway night club owner, surrendered at Sing Sing prison late today to serve an uncompleted term for manslaughter.

Madden had been on parole, and the question of an alleged violation of the parole laws had been fought through to the appellate division two weeks ago.

TWO ROUND-WORLD AIRMEN LEAVE BERLIN FOR MOSCOW

comparisons are not possible, but that probably is the best time ever.

It was a trip of thrills and it ended in an excited welcome as the Century of Progress—the name they have given their ship—taxied to a halt at Tempelhof.

The plane was quickly inspected by Lufthansa mechanics, who pronounced it in perfect condition.

But Griffin wasn't that lucky. Motor fumes had been blowing in his face and an eye was badly inflamed.

The airman waited for a physician in one of the airdrome's dining rooms, where they had supper—big steaks, salad and coffee. They drank nothing alcoholic.

Eye Not Seriously Hurt.

Mattern pleased his German hosts by telling them his father was born in Mannheim, Germany. Pretty soon an oculist arrived and he found that, although Griffin's eye was inflamed, it was perfectly safe for him to continue.

Weather experts assured the airmen that, except for one brief spell of rain, they would encounter perfect flying conditions on their way to Moscow, and soon they were off again.

Questioned shortly after the landing here, Mattern explained why he and his partner were not overtired.

"We've got double controls," he said, "and we stood regular watch. While I was working, Griff slept, and when he took over, I curled up.

"It was 10 hours and 50 minutes on the dot after we left Harbor Grace that we sighted land. We kept on and from there—I guess that was Ireland—we got to Berlin in 17 hours 40 minutes flying time all together.

(Editor's note: This apparently is a miscalculation.)

"We'd have got here sooner, oh, hours sooner, but we missed the town and veered off to the north. Griff spotted the name on a little railroad station—I think it was Soldin—and we turned around and came south again.

"For all we saw there might not have been any ocean at all. We were flying blind in fog and, believe it or not, our altitude ran from 6 inches to 10,000 feet.

"Well, we went south of Scotland and then we hit the North Sea. Just where we struck the continent of Europe I don't know."

The fliers amazed their welcomers by turning down beer, thrust at them in great scuttles as their ship taxied to a stop.

"What we want is a good long drink of water," said Griffin. "That beer looks good, but it might not set so well. We haven't had anything but oranges since we left New York."

The Post and Gatty round-the-world mark at which Mattern and Griffin are shooting is 8 days 15 hours and 51 minutes.

First Seen Over Ireland.

For a time during the afternoon there was apprehension that they had run into serious trouble right off the bat.

The ship was first seen at 4:31 a. m., Eastern standard time, flying over Rosapenna, North Donegal, Ireland. The next report came at 8:22 a. m., Eastern standard time, when she was seen over Bremen Germany. At 9:15 p. m., Eastern standard time, she was sighted over Hanover. Then there was a wait of almost 2½ hours before she appeared over Tempelhof.

Reports of bad weather increased this apprehension. There was a violent storm in Muenster, 100 miles west of Hanover, and it was accompanied by a wind spout which uprooted trees and unroofed houses.

But all these fears ended when the red, white and blue ship dipped over Tempelhof.

CUB STAR WOUNDED BY SCORNED WOMAN

Bill Jurges, Young Chicago Shortstop, Shot as Girl Attempts Suicide.

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—A woman scorned almost took the life of Bill Jurges, star shortstop of the Chicago National League Baseball Club today.

Brooding because the youthful baseball player had rejected her attentions, Miss Violet Popovich, a pretty brunette, forced entrance into his hotel room, made one final plea for his love and then attempted to commit suicide. In the struggle for the gun, both were wounded, but not seriously.

Jurges, in a wild lunge for the gun, a .22 automatic which the woman pulled from her purse, was shot twice, one bullet struck him in the right side, ricocheted off a rib and came out the right shoulder. The second ripped the flesh about the little finger of his left hand. Miss Popovich was struck by the third shot, which entered the left hand and traveled up the arm 6 inches.

Cub Physician in Lobby.

Dr. John Davis, Cub physician, was standing in the lobby of the hotel where the shooting occurred—the Hotel Carlos, two blocks from Wrigley Field—and gave immediate attention to the wounded couple. After a thorough examination he said Jurges probably would be able to return to the game in about three or four weeks, barring unexpected complications.

Beyond the statement that she intended to kill herself, Miss Popovich refused to answer questions of the police. She first gave her name as Violet Valli but a check revealed her identity. She gave her age as 21. Jurges, too, refused to speak of the shooting except for the reluctant admission the girl attempted to shoot herself because he rejected her attentions.

Removed to Hospital.

Police said the woman would be removed to the Bridewell Hospital and that a charge of disorderly conduct would be placed against her.

Employes of the hotel told police that Miss Popovich had made repeated complaints against Jurges and his treatment of her. They said the couple had been friendly, living at the same hotel, until a few weeks ago, when they quarreled.

Manager Rogers Hornsby was shocked by the news of the temporary loss of his young star, whom he rated as one of the greatest major league finds in years.

"Jurges unquestionably is one of the finest shortstops in the majors today," Hornsby said, "and his loss at this time, when we are in the heat of the pennant fight comes as a great blow. Elwood English will be returned from third to shortstop and Stanley Hack will take over third base until he returns.

Joined Team Last Year.

Jurges came to the Cubs in 1931 but was sent to the Reading International League farm for most of the season because of his light hitting, returning to the Cub bench late in the 1931 campaign. So far this year, he has been playing brilliantly and batting about .260, or 50 points higher. He is 24 years old and his home is in Brooklyn.

The Jurges shooting today recalled the mortal wounding of another major league player, Pitcher Ed Morris of the Boston Red Sox, who was fatally stabbed in a farewell party last spring.

"I loved him and I thought he loved me," Miss Popovich finally said, yielding to persistent questions. "I went there to shoot myself. The Lord only knows why. I don't now. He tried to stop me and the gun went off."

"Were you engaged?" she was asked.

"No, but we were going together for a year. I want to live now."

Prison Slaying Inquiry Begins at Chillicothe

Chillicothe, Ohio, July 6 (A.P.).—Stanley R. Hooker, 20, inmate of the United States Industrial Reformatory here, was being held in close confinement today while officials investigated the fatal stabbing of Paul Roy Battle, 32, of El Paso, Tex.

Hooker, sentenced to the reformatory from Fero, N. Dak., in October, 1931, is alleged to have killed Battle last night following an argument over a tug of war game held Independence Day. Both men were convicted of automobile stealing.

$42,000,000 DAMAGE SOUGHT BY DOHERTY

Oil Magnate Accuses Kansas City Star of Gas Rate Conspiracy.

Kansas City, July 6 (A.P.).—Henry L. Doherty, utilities magnate, filed two suits for a total of $42,000,000 today against the Kansas City Star, alleging conspiracy in connection with the newspaper's campaign for lower gas rates in Missouri and Kansas.

George B. Longan, president of the Kansas City Star Co., termed the actions "smoke screens" and said the Star was not concerned about them, or threats of other suits.

Doherty asked $12,000,000 personally for alleged libel in a suit filed in district court at Topeka, Kans., the same amount named in a libel suit filed a year ago and pending at Kansas City. The Cities Service Gas Co., of which he is president, sued for $30,000,000 in the Jackson County (Mo.) Circuit Court, alleging conspiracy to injure its business. The three actions total $54,000,000.

A conspiracy between the Star and "persons unknown to the plaintiff to injure and destroy the plaintiff's business" is alleged in the suit of the Cities Service Gas Co., which also charges the Star influenced Gov. Harry Woodring of Kansas to refuse to enter an agreement on rates.

The newspaper further is accused of instigating action by officials of both Kansas and Missouri to harass the Doherty companies. The petition also charged the Star had compared Doherty by inference to the pirate, Capt. Kidd. In a statement, Doherty assailed the Star as an "industry-wrecking newspaper."

Wines and Beer by 1935 Forecast by Horoscope

Hollywood, July 6 (A.P.).—A horoscope of the Nation presented at the National Astrological Association's convention today forecast light wines and beer will be available legally by 1935.

It was forecast that the economic situation will reach its lowest ebb in 1936 and will be ended by a civil war in 1937.

Captor of Girl, 17, Taken By Posse in Ohio Hills

Batavia, Ohio, July 6 (A.P.).—After abducting a 17-year-old girl and fleeing into the hills with her, James Bowman, 25, was captured late today by a posse of 20 men, headed by Sheriff Robert Roberts, and placed in jail here. The girl had not been harmed.

Bowman, who came here from Harlan County, Ky., abducted the girl, Irene Bannel, of Cumberland Gap, Tenn., after threatening to kill her and a cousin with a shotgun when she refused to leave with him, Sheriff Roberts was told.

Chicago Fair Head Felicitates World Fliers

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—Rufus C. Dawes, president of Chicago's century of progress exposition in 1933, cabled congratulations today to the two American round-the-world fliers at Berlin.

Their plane is named the Century of Progress as a gesture of courtesy to the Chicago world's fair, although without official connection.

Griffin Won Acclaim For '27 Landing Feat

San Francisco, July 6 (A.P.).—Bennett Griffin, who flew across the Atlantic in record time today with James Mattern, won acclaim in aviation circles here for an exploit in the Dole flight in 1927.

Griffin and Albert Henley, also of Oklahoma City, were the first to take off in the Oakland-Honolulu race. They sailed out over the Golden Gate and were 25 miles out to sea when the motor suddenly "froze." Griffin promptly dumped his heavy load of gasoline and glided the disabled plane back to the Oakland airport, making a successful dead-stick landing though forced to dodge another plane than was just then taking off.

Friends in San Angelo Congratulate Mattern

San Angelo, July 6 (A.P.).—San Angelo friends of Jimmie Mattern sent him cables today congratulating him on his successful flight to Berlin and in anticipation of his successful hop to Moscow. He is flying a ship formerly owned by Carl Cromwell, of San Angelo, who was killed in a Pennsylvania car accident last year.

Friends here feel Mattern's success is now assured as his experience in flying over the Bering Sea and over Alaska last year should make the hazardous last lap from Japan to Edmonton, Canada, much easier for him than for Post and Gatty.

Grandmother Certain Flier Will Set Record

Omaha, Nebr., July 6 (A.P.).—Among those most certain that Jimmy Mattern and Bennett Griffin will shatter the existing globe-girdling records is 83-year-old Grandmother Barbara Mattern, who often "spanked Jimmy."

It was in Omaha that Jimmy attended grade school and was a star fielder on the Vinton Street Sluggers. Tonight at the home of his aunt, Mrs. F. A. Jacobson, grandma and other relatives were gathered to receive newspaper reports of the Berlin-Moscow hop.

Fliers' Ocean Crossing Hailed in Berlin Papers

Berlin (Thursday), July 7 (A.P.).—The flight of James Mattern and Bennett Griffin was featured in Berlin morning newspapers today. Their fast crossing of the Atlantic to Berlin was described as a fantastic achievement.

The newspapers wished them the same luck on the further stages of the attempt to circle the globe and a "happy conclusion to the big feat."

EXIT RADIO FOOTBALL.

EASTERN colleges have voted to bar radio broadcasts of football games this fall. This means that confusion over what is happening on the gridiron will be confined to the cash customers.

• • • •

College officials have found that radio broadcasts have cut down attendance at all games. They were afraid that unless somebody called a halt the Yale-Harvard game might soon be a mere feature of a cigarette hour.

• • • •

Hundreds of thousands of football fans stayed home last year and by merely sitting in front of a loudspeaker with a flask they could enjoy everything the spectators did and skip the pneumonia and the rush to locate their parked cars.

• • • •

And they didn't have to do their drinking out of paper cups.

• • • •

There was a time when the colleges listened to the argument that radio broadcasts were good publicity for the football industry, but that was before the customers began swapping raccoon coats for four-bulb sets.

• • • •

As a matter of fact radio developed a new type of football fans: The fellow who leaped from stadium to stadium, hurtling from the 10-yard line at Colgate to midfield at the University of California, and zooming from a 30-yard run by Notre Dame to a goal from placement at Tulane by a mere wrist motion.

• • • •

America was getting full of indoor football fans who knew all the players but had never seen the inside of a stadium.

• • • •

There were people who thought football was a game in which Graham McNamee played Ted Husing.

• • • •

And in the public mind the game was coming to be regarded as nothing more than a rival air attraction to Kate Smith, Amos 'n' Andy and Floyd Gibbons.

• • • •

But now it is all over. There will be no broadcasting in the stands this year.

• • • •

People who want an erroneous impression of what is taking place on the field will have to pay $4 and get it the regular way.

• • • •

BEER VOTE DRIVE SET BY G.O.P. WET BLOC

House Group Will Petition Garner and Snell; Ballot in Senate Due Today.

(Associated Press.)

A campaign to marshal House sentiment behind a demand for a vote this session on beer for revenue legislation was opened yesterday by Republican antiprohibitionists.

Meanwhile in the Senate the beer forces looked for a vote today on the Bingham proposal—advanced as a "rider" on the home loan bank bill—to legalize 3.2 per cent beer.

The beer drive in the House took the form of a plan to petition Speaker Garner and Representative Snell, of New York, the Republican leader, for an immediate vote, emphasizing the Government's need for the revenue that would be derived.

"The petition to the Speaker," said Representative Britten (Republican), Illinois, "will say, for example, that the Speaker should appear before the rules committee and ask that modification of the Volstead act be made the immediate order of business in the House and that Congress should not adjourn until a beer-for-revenue bill is passed."

Repeal Drive Also Set.

The meeting of the House wet bloc also went on record for repeal of the eighteenth amendment and agreed to urge a vote on that question also this session if possible.

Called by Representatives LaGuardia, of New York, and Britten, the group caucused for nearly two hours behind closed doors. The job of drafting the petitions was given to a subcommittee of five headed by Representative William E. Hull, of Illinois.

Petitions will go to the chairmen of the rules, judiciary and ways and means committees as well as to Garner and Snell, Britten said.

At the Senate end of the Capitol Republican Leader Watson said he was confident of sufficient votes to relegate the Bingham beer rider to a committee. Such a motion is expected to be made by Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader.

Hits Dry Party's Plans.

Among the day's prohibition developments was the comment by Deets Pickett, of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, that "as a practical proposition" he "simply can not see" the program adopted by the Prohibition party meeting in Indianapolis.

At the same time he said he had "every sympathy" with the position of the party. Pickett's remark followed that of Edwin Dinwiddie, executive secretary of the prohibition board of strategy yesterday, that he had "seen and heard nothing" to indicate the Prohibition party might receive the united support of the temperance groups.

A second move for a Senate beer vote was begun late yesterday by three Democratic senators, who jointly introduced an amendment to the home loan bank bill measure to legalize 2.75 per cent beer.

Its sponsors were Tydings, of Maryland; Bulkley, of Ohio, and Walsh, of Massachusetts.

Case 9 Years Old, Man Faces Term

Suspect Thought Charges Were Dropped; Built Up Good Reputation.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—William J. Ettinger, 42, will appear tomorrow or next day in Federal court for sentence on a charge to which he pleaded guilty in 1923. He was brought from Chicago and is now in the Federal House of Detention.

Ettinger was indicted in 1926, under the name of William J. Sardo, for violation of the customs and narcotics laws in the theft of opium from a Government warehouse. After pleading guilty he testified for the Government against two accomplices. Conviction of the latter two was reversed and Ettinger could not be found to testify at a second trial. They were released.

Ettinger said he supposed the charges against all had been dropped. He moved to Chicago and bore a good reputation.

London, July 6 (U.P.).—President Hoover's plan for disarmament was reviewed at a special cabinet meeting today and it was decided that Acting Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin shall make a statement concerning it in the House of Commons tomorrow.

The injunction was issued by Federal Judge Walter C. Lindley in an endeavor to conserve the assets of the Corporation Securities Co. and the Insull Utility Investments, Inc., when they were placed in receivership.

Grain Board Now Holds 28,000,000 Bushels

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—The Farmers' National Grain Corporation reported today that the cash wheat stocks of its marketing subsidiary, the Grain Stabilization Corporation, were, on July 1, less than enough to supply the nation's average demands for three weeks.

Authorization by Congress for the American Red Cross to procure 45,000,000 additional bushels of farm board wheat for relief, George S. Milnor president of the Grain Stabilization Corporation, said, has reduced the company's cash holdings to approximatly 28,000,000 bushels.

Colorado Murder Case Will Reopen

Son, 10, of Woman in Prison, Thought to Have Slain Stepsister.

Denver, Colo., July 6 (A.P.).—Acting on stories that have come out of the State Penitentiary at Canon City, Denver police today prepared to reopen the two-year-old murder case involving Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, sentenced to life imprisonment for the slaying of her 10-year-old stepdaughter, Leona.

Douglas Millican, 10-year-old son of the convicted slayer, is to be asked by Chief of Police Albert T. Clark to tell all he knows about the death of his stepsister. The reports started in the women's division of the prison.

Stories have reached Chief Clark that Douglas and his stepsister quarreled, that he struck her over the head and that Mrs. O'Loughlin smuggled the dead child from the house and then threw the body into Berkeley Park Lake, where it was found two days later, October 16, 1930. Mrs. O'Loughlin, who was the wife of a Denver detective, denied all through the trial she had any part in the killing. She said she was shielding another person, but refused to take the witness stand during the trial.

EXILED IBANEZ BACK IN CHILEAN AFFAIRS

Former President Flies to Santiago; Talk With Davila Starts Rumors.

Santiago, Chile, July 6 (A.P.).—Former President Carlos Ibanez, Chile's long-time strong man, flew from exile in Argentina, back to Santiago today and became the man of the hour just a year, lacking a fortnight, since he was overthrown.

Coming by airplane from Argentina, he hurried to the home of his wife's relatives opposite the presidential palace he left on July 26, 1931, in flight from a popular uprising against his dictatorship. Then he went to the palace and conferred with Carlos G Davila, head of the new Socialist government.

Rumors immediately sprang up that Senor Ibanez would be named minister of defense or a member of the ruling junta in an effort to strengthen the government of Senor Davila, who formerly served under Ibanez as Chilean Ambassador to the United States.

Other reports said that Senor Ibanez might have an understanding with the recently deposed president, Juan Esteban Montero, his fellow-exile at Mendoza, Argentina, under which Senor Ibanez would become minister of interior and thus, under the constitution, vice president.

Senor Ibanez left Mendoza last night by train, with a remark that he planned to spend a vacation in northern Argentina. He alighted from the train, however, at Villa Marcedes, 2½ hours west of Buenos Aires, and caught a plane for Santiago.

Third Man Wounded When Roadhouse Is Invaded by Gunman.

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—Two men were shot to death and a third wounded tonight in what police described as a revival of gang strife for control of the South Side beer trade.

James ("Red") McGee, operator of the Del Rio roadhouse, and Vernie ("The Goat") Larkin, satellites of Edward ("Spike") O'Donnell, were slain when three gunmen invaded the resort. A man known as Jim Kennedy, a waiter, was seriously wounded by the assassins who escaped in their automobile.

The Del Rio, which was formerly operated by "Buck" Weaver one of the "Black Sox" baseball players, is in the South Side territory in which O'Donnell, Frank McErlane, Danny McGeoghegan and other hoodlum king pins have sought to dictate the manufacture and sale of illicit liquor.

Drive on Revolts Set.

Buenos Aires, July 6 (U.P.).—Subversive activities will be sternly suppressed in the future, the government declared today in announcing details of a revolutionary plot discovered during the investigation into the recent shooting affray at Curuza Cuatia, in which Maj. Regino Lezcano, retired, was killed.

5-Day Week Gives Time To Plan Sunday Program

By JOHN J. DALY

IT begins to look now as if the five-day week will soon be in vogue with the heads of some Government departments planning to eliminate all work on Saturdays.

Ever since the beginning of the world, or when it was first laid out in biblical times, the seven-day week has been entirely unsatisfactory.

In the current scheme there is, of course, one day for rest; but that is not enough in these strenuous times. After a man has slept late on Sunday, read the funny papers and tuned in on a crooner or two, it's time to get back to the daily grind.

* * * *

THE five-day week has this advantage: It will give at least one day for recuperation after one full day is lost in determining what to do with it. That has always been the trouble. The work-a-day world waits, patiently, for Sunday to roll around. Sunday rolls around and then comes up so unexpectedly that nobody is prepared for it.

It just isn't right, the way that one day disappears. So, naturally, it will have to have a substitute—another day to take its place, either Monday or Saturday, but preferably Saturday. Later on there can be some negotiations made for Monday, too.

* * * *

ONE by one the days will have to be stricken off the work calendar. When the five-day week gets set up and is functioning on the grand scale there will be loud calls for the four-day week, and after that the three-day week and then the two-day week and then the one-day week or no week at all, life turned into a phantasmagoria of pleasure.

Aided and abetted by man's inventions, which are now helping to destroy the six-day week, it will be no trick at all for humanity to get what it wants in the machine age.

All you have to do is stick around long enough and anything can happen.

SHORT SESSION FIGHT IS SET TO 'RELIEVE' U. S. WORKERS

aimed at "hardships" mentioned by President Hoover when he signed the economy bill.

These will include modification of the "superannuated clause" forcing retirement of veteran workers, some extension of the $3,000 compensation limitation on retired military officers employed in the Government, liberalization of 15-day annual leave limitations, and a broadening of the "impounding clause" under which money saved from the furlough plan may not be used for salaries.

It is barely possible some of these issues may be met in the Comptroller General's ruling, expected before the close of the week.

There is much at stake in the comptroller's interpretation. He must determine whether employes may take a payless vacation of 30 days, go on a flat five-day week with no leave other than for sickness, or take time off in small amounts accumulated week by week, only after it has been earned.

The act specifically precludes all leave with pay for the rest of this year. Although the comptroller must decide whether leave already accumulated this calendar year may be taken after July 1, the bill provides that after 1933 leave accumulated in one year may be carried over to the next.

Public Printer George H. Carter, in calling yesterday for a ruling on the leave issue, made known that the Government Printing Office has gone on a five-day-week basis. Per diem Navy Department workers have been ordered on a similar program and other department heads are debating like action.

Asphalt Tax Exemption Approved by House Unit

(Associated Press.)

A resolution amending the new tax law to exempt asphalt from the tax on imported petroleum was approved yesterday by the House ways and means committee.

In addition to exempting asphalt from the petroleum levy, the resolution, sponsored by Chairman Collier, also would exempt precious metals for dental and medical surgery from the tax on jewelry. Collier said he would seek immediate action.

Portsmouth, Ohio., July 7 (A.P.).—Three southern Ohio counties—Pike, Adams and Scioto—were threatened with serious flood situations today. Many homes in Pike County were inundated, and the Scioto and Ohio rivers were rising rapidly. No loss of life was reported. Damage to live stock and growing crops was reported heavy.

The Ohio River was rising at the rate of 5 inches an hour.

North Dakota Dry Repeal Sought.

Bismarck, N. Dak., July 6 (A.P.).—Petitions for initiating a constitutional amendment to repeal a section of the North Dakota constitution providing for State prohibition were filed today with the secretary of State.

JAHNCKE'S BROTHER PLEADS NOT GUILTY

Denies Assault Charge in Row at Fashionable New Orleans Club.

New Orleans, July 6 (A.P.).—Paul Jahncke, sr., prominent New Orleans business man and a brother of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke, today appeared in criminal district court to enter a plea of "not guilty" to a charge of assault growing out of a fistic encounter among members of the Yacht Club set several weeks ago.

The charge was preferred by Nolan Maurin in May, when the Orleans Parish grand jury returned indictments against Mr. Jahncke, his son, Paul, jr.; Denton Wilmot and others. All are members of socially prominent families and well known in yachting circles. The younger Jahncke and Wilmot previously pleaded not guilty. No trial date has been set.

Maurin, in his complaint to the district attorney, said he and young Jahncke had had a difficulty, the nature of which he did not disclose, and that he received a message April 26 to meet Jahncke at a boathouse near the Southern Yacht Club "and have it out."

He went alone, he said, expecting a single-handed fight, but the charge alleged he was set upon and severely beaten by both the Jahnckes and several of their friends.

Banks Reflect Relief As June Failures Fall

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—Banks throughout the country this week reflected the relief brought by the passage of June, critical month in banking operations, Rand-McNally & Co. reported tonight. Only seven bank closings in the United States took place the first five and one-half days of July as compared with 29 the last two days of June, included in the present week.

Closings for the week were 37.3 per cent under the previous week, and total closings for June were 12 per cent under the number for June, 1931.

Man Leads Detectives To Body of Sweetheart

Cleveland, July 6 (A.P.).—Led by her sweetheart, detectives today found the body of Miss Margaret Kish, 21, whose home was believed to be in McKeesport, Pa., in a room where it had lain since Monday night.

Peter Christos, 51, told detectives the girl shot herself to death when he informed her he was going to leave her. They had been living in the same apartment building two months, police quoted Christos as saying.

Former Aid Identifies Alterie as Kidnaper

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—Louis "Two-Gun Louie" Alterie, former gangster pal of Dion O'Banion, squirmed uncomfortably in his chair today as an erstwhile companion identified him as a kidnaper.

Alterie lounged lazily as his alleged victim, Edward Dobkin, told of the kidnaping and admitted inability to identify the kidnapers, but he fidgeted uneasily when Gus Sanger testified he received from Alterie and his codefendant, Charles "Buster" Brown, St. Louis and Kansas City hoodlum, a share of the $8,000 Dobkin ransom.

Mail in Chicago Takes Big Jump

3,500,000 Pieces Are Sent Out of City, With Stamp Windows Swamped.

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—This city's postoffice, one of the busiest in the world, was busier than ever today. Inauguration of higher postal rates served to stamp the workers with millions of pieces of mail whose senders hoped—often unsuccessfully—to beat the 1-cent raise in first-class rates.

The flow of stamped outgoing mail, Superintendent of Mails George N. Malstrum said, was far heavier than on an average day—3,500,000 pieces compared with the usual 2,000,000—but only about 1 per cent bore too little postage. Metered mail, Malstrum said, from firms using postal meters also ran about 1,500,000 pieces more than usual.

The stamp windows did a land-office business in 1-cent stamps, selling 1,700,000—1,500,000 more than on an ordinary day. Most of them undoubtedly will be used with old 2-cent stamps and on envelopes bearing 2-cent stamps.

Welland Canal Record Set.

Port Colborne, Ontario, July 6 (A.P.).—A new record for the Welland Canal was set today by the S. S. Ashcroft, grain-carrier of the Canada Steamship Lines, when the vessel passed through en route to Kingston with 360,000 bushels of grain.

True economy—

and Why Electric Cookery Assures It

Everyone is interested in economizing these days. That's just one of the many reasons why Electric Cookery is becoming so popular. Its economies are so much greater that savings soon pay for the initial cost of your Electric Range. After that, the money you save is a definite and regular item on your household budget.

The average Washington family enjoys the benefits of Electric Cookery for less than $3 per month. That's one reason why you economize when you cook electrically. Further savings are made possible because you actually cook most of the time on stored heat—with the current entirely shut off. We go even another step in economizing . . . foods cooked electrically have much less shrinkage, and you save money in food purchases. No other cooking method gives you these three important economy features.

Investigate the modern Electric Range and the other economical electrical appliances that comprise the modern Electric Kitchen. Your electrical dealer will gladly tell you the details.

DOCTOR SAVES LIFE OF SAILOR BY RADIO

Ships 100 Miles Apart, Case Is Diagnosed by Air and Treatment Prescribed.

Baltimore, July 6 (A.P.).—The story of a five-day battle with death, with physician and patient never nearer than 100 miles, was told here today when the Baltimore mail liner, City of Hamburg, docked.

A sailor on the British freighter Aracataca was the patient and Dr. Vernon H. Condon, medical officer of the City of Hamburg, the physician.

The Baltimore liner was off the Grand Banks of Newfoundland when a radio message from the Aracataca was intercepted. The message said:

"Seaman aboard critically ill. Temperature 104½. Delirious. Breath short."

Dr. Condon radioed for further information and then diagnosed the ailment as pneumonia.

As both vessels were moving eastward, they were almost abreast for five days. Dr. Condon several times each day received information and prescribed for his long-distance patient.

On the fifth day this message was received:

"Patient resting well. Pulse, respiration and heart normal. Thanks for your help."

"Slander" on Ballet Held Cause of Dancer's Suicide

Famous Russian Master Believed to Have Plunged to Death Over Niagara Falls After Writing of "Persecution" of His Art.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Nicoli Semenoff's motive for suicide concerned not himself, but his beloved ballet.

The famous Russian dancer, a teacher in Cleveland for the last eight years, is believed to have plunged to his death over Niagara Falls today.

"I am ending my life by suicide because I can not bear any longer the slander and persecution of the ballet," he wrote in Russian, a ten-page airmail letter, which his friend and one-time master, Michael Fokine, received here yesterday.

Fokine quickly dispatched a telegram to his temperamental friend in care of the station agent at Niagara Falls.

"Wait my important letter," he pleaded.

He sent two more, to the police of Cleveland and Niagara Falls, but all, apparently, in vain.

Early today two persons saw a man wade out above the falls. They called to him, but the man waded on, was caught in the swift current, dashed over the crest.

A coat and a walking stick were left on the bank. To identify the suicide as Semenoff there is only the fact that he announced he would destroy himself in that manner.

"It may be," he wrote to Fokine, "that my jump into the Niagara Falls will sufficiently disturb you and others to set back the self-inflated modernists."

Semenoff was about 50 and unmarried. He became associated with Fokine in 1909, studied ballet dancing under him and later became an instructor and managing director of the Diaghilew Ballet, which was produced by Fokine.

ATTORNEY IN JERSEY GETS KIDNAP THREAT

Wilson, Whose Daughter Was Slain by Former Fiance, Intended Victim.

Camden, N. J., July 6 (A.P.).—A kidnaping and extortion plot was revealed today by police who named John O. Wilson, Moorestown attorney, whose daughter was slain by her former fiance three years ago, as the intended victim.

Wilson told police he received a letter at his Camden office yesterday threatening him with kidnaping and death if he failed to pay $10,000. He took the missive to police headquarters and detectives immediately laid plans to capture the plotters.

Two men, whose names were not revealed, were arrested on suspicion but later released.

Details of the letter were not revealed and police declined to say whether any reason was given for the demands.

On June 1, 1929, Wilson found the unclad body of his daughter, Ruth, on her bed with a bullet through the head. Horace Roberts, jr., of Moorestown, her former fiance, lay nearby, also shot through the head.

It was revealed that the couple had been engaged, but that the young woman broke the engagement several weeks before the tragedy.

A verdict that Roberts, who was 26, had killed the girl and then shot himself was returned by a coroner's jury. Miss Wilson was 25.

PARK AREA VALUES REPORTED TOO LOW

Judd Interests Here Declare $18,000 Price Put on $45,000 Land.

Special to The Washington Post.

Luray, Va., July 6.—Mountain lands in this county owned by Washington interests show that the price appraisal boards will place on them—later to be used for the Shenandoah National Park—are "ruinous and far below what they cost their owners."

A mountain tract of land formerly owned by the late George H. Judd, jr., of Washington, originally cost Mr. Judd $20,000. Four years ago Mr. Judd dropped dead while spending his vacation on this land. Mr. Judd had improved the land to the extent of $25,000.

These improvements consist in the erection of bungalows and cottages and the installation of modern water and light systems, running the total up to $45,000.

Phile the Page County appraisal board has not publicly announced the valuation it will place on the Judd holdings, George H. Judd, jr., a representative of the Washington interests, declares that he has been informed that the valuation has been set at $18,000.

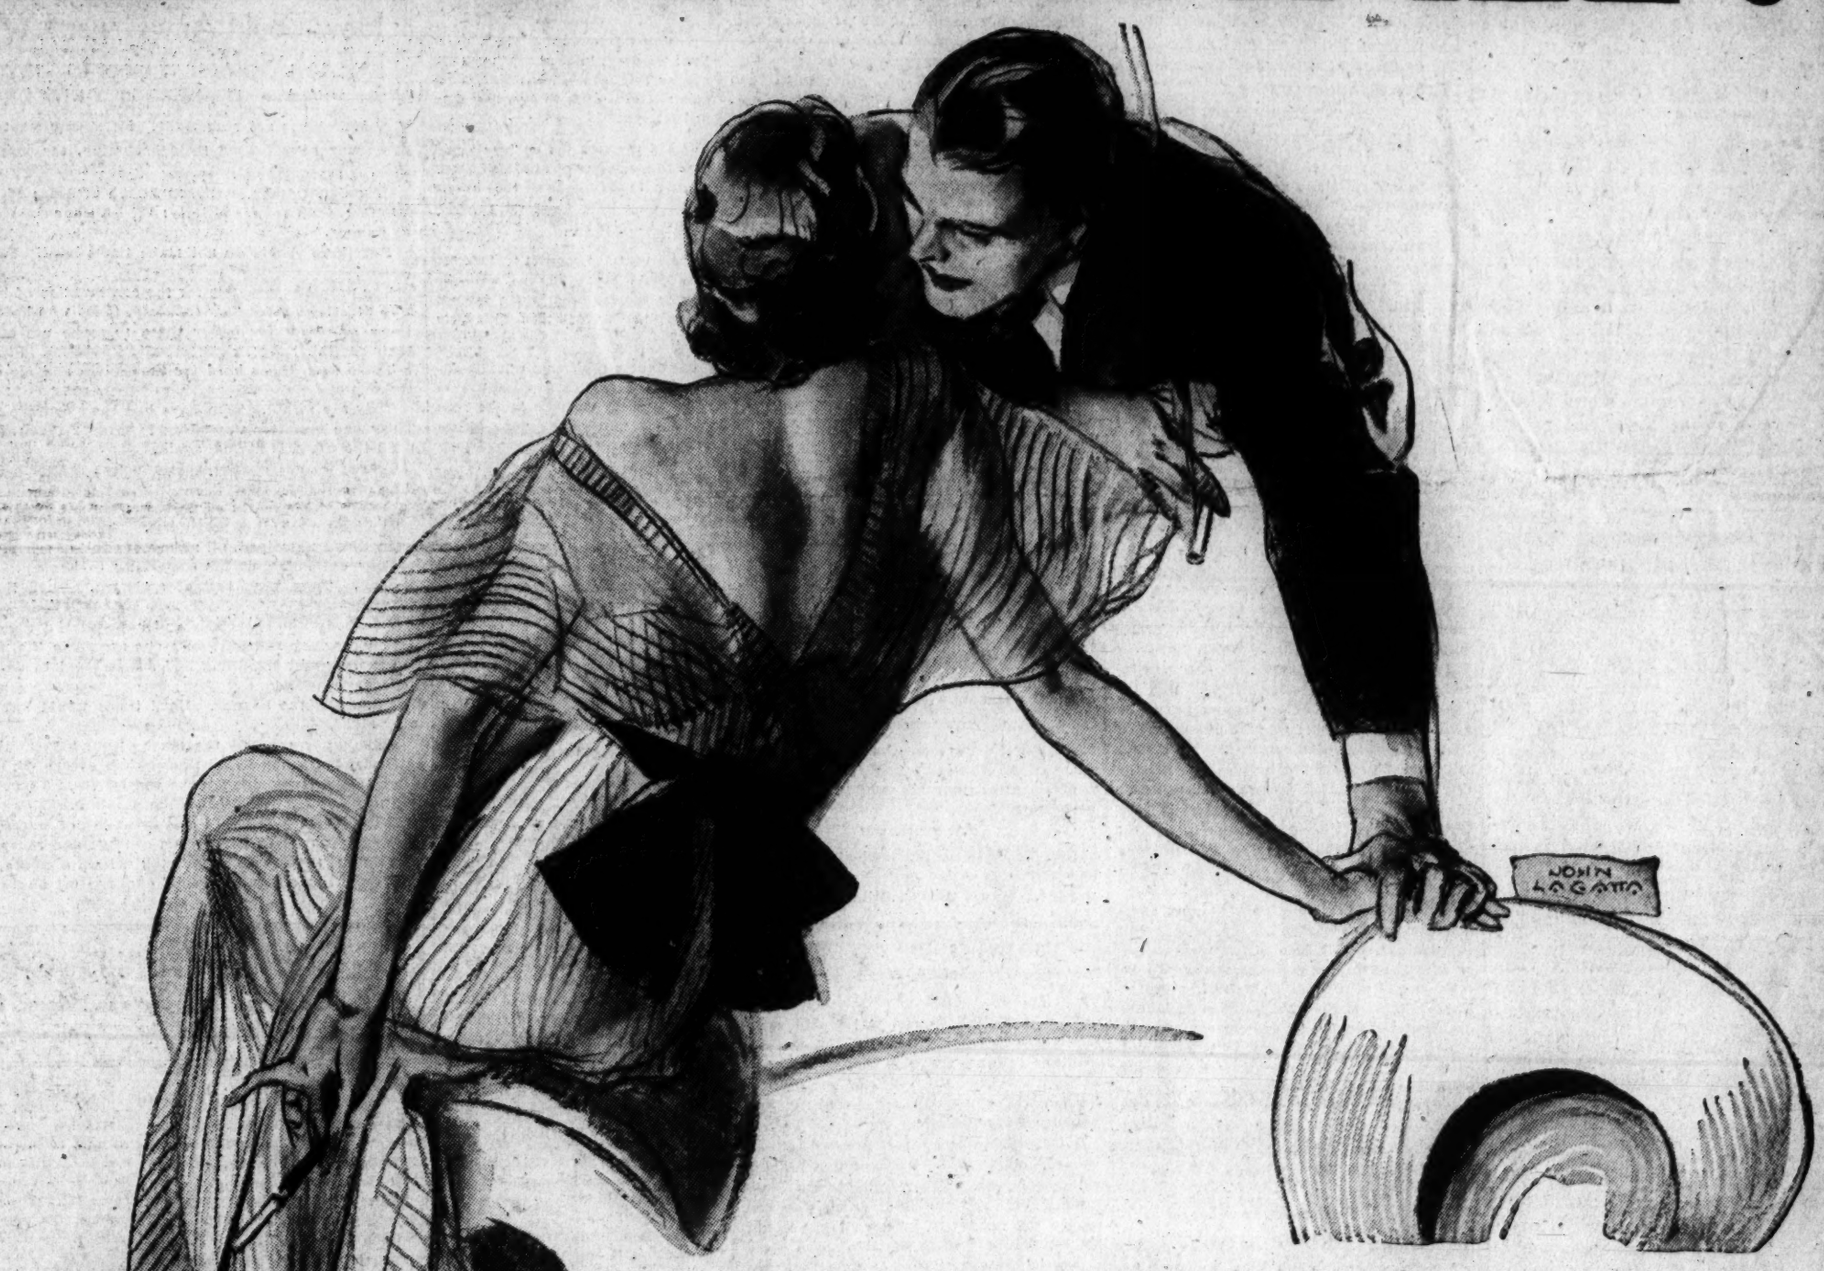
DO YOU INHALE?



"We've spilled the beans"
in the smoker's interest

Do you inhale? "You've spilled the beans!" said the cigarette trade when first we asked this simple question—a question which long has been treated with silence that would "shame a Sphinx!"

Why? Wasn't the subject vital enough to pursue? Or, was there a hidden reason for the general avoidance of the question by others?

Do you inhale? Lucky Strike has chosen to raise this question . . . because certain impurities concealed in even the finest, mildest tobacco leaves are removed by Luckies' famous purifying process. Luckies created that process. Only Luckies have it!

Do you inhale? Of course you do—and so, in the smoker's interest, Luckies have not feared to "spill the beans."

SPEAKER GARNER'S BLUNDER.

Speaker Garner makes an early start upon the traditional Democratic task of throwing away victory by blundering. He has chosen to play politics with unemployment relief. He aims his shafts at President Hoover, but the barbs stick in the skins of other Democrats, who are appalled at the prospect of going into the campaign with the handicap which Speaker Garner would impose upon their party by his demand that the United States Government shall create a bank from which all individuals in the country can borrow money.

The essence of the plan favored by the President is that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation shall loan money on good security, to institutions and industries which will undertake to spend the money for self-sustaining and reproductive enterprises, so that there will not only be general provision for employment, but repayment of loans, thereby protecting taxpayers against ruin, and preventing destruction of the Government's credit.

The essence of the plan insisted upon by Speaker Garner is that the Reconstruction Corporation shall serve as a bank, prepared to lend money to any individual upon his promissory note. Democratic members of the board of the Reconstruction Corporation are as much opposed to Speaker Garner's plan as are Republicans, and for the same reason. All of them assert that the Garner plan is utterly unworkable. The Garner plan, as President Hoover points out in a public statement, would require the setting up of a vast Federal bureaucracy to take the place of banks. This work would take years, and the cost would be ruinous. Moreover, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is not granted any money for private loans in the bill, notwithstanding the fact that it is expected to lend hundreds of millions to millions of individuals.

Mr. Garner makes much of his charge that President Hoover seeks to confer the benefits of the Reconstruction Corporation upon a "selected clientele," instead of transforming the corporation into a bank from which any citizen can borrow money. The Garner plan would enable individuals to make a direct raid upon Government funds. The Hoover plan would devote these funds to industries and enterprises furnishing employment on a national scale, in projects which would yield a profit and thus insure a return to the Government of moneys advanced.

The political object of Speaker Garner's demand is very clear. He hopes to convince the country that President Hoover and the Republican party are favoring "the interests" and denying relief to the "common man." But many Democrats stand with President Hoover in this matter, including senators and members of the House who will vote upon the unemployment measure. Speaker Garner is not supported by his party in his ill-advised attempt to use the unemployment relief bill for political purposes. Other legislators in both parties are straining every nerve to complete the bill in order to expedite unemployment relief. The man who is holding up national unemployment relief is Speaker Garner. But he can not delay it long.

The Democratic nominee for Vice President did not indicate in his speech yesterday whether Gov. Roosevelt approves or disapproves of the Garner idea of delaying unemployment relief while an effort is made to stamp President Hoover and his party as dispensers of Government money to a selected few. Perhaps Gov. Roosevelt has formed no opinion. He is not in a position to pass judgment upon these matters, not having sufficient information upon which to base an opinion. If he should inquire among Democrats in Washington he would find that Speaker Garner is not supported in either house of Congress in sufficient strength to override the President's veto.

That a veto will be forthcoming if Congress should adopt the conference report is made clear by this remark in the President's statement:

> While I am determined that there shall be relief legislation at this session of Congress, I can not accept the proposal up to now insisted upon by Speaker Garner as a condition to securing his support.

The country demands unemployment relief legislation. It wants legislation that will grant relief and not merely squander Government money on a vast scale in loans that will never be repaid. President Hoover has a great advantage over Speaker Garner in the fact that Democrats as well as Republicans join in support of workable legislation and are not trying to make political capital out of the unemployment situation.

Congress must remain in session until an unemployment relief bill becomes law. If Democrats should make the mistake of committing themselves to Speaker Garner's blunder they would merely invite overwhelming rebuke from the country. The prudent course for Democrats in Congress to pursue is to save their party from the disaster which Speaker Garner would precipitate. Nonpartisan action in passing a sane unemployment bill on the lines advocated by President Hoover will do much to save the Democratic party as well as relieving the country of distress. It is too late to save Speaker Garner.

ARMAMENT HYPOCRISY.

At the moment when Great Britain, France and Germany are trying to work out a formula which will bring about cancellation of the debts to the United States, the disarmament conference at Geneva prepares to shut up shop in the face of President Hoover's proposal to reduce armaments by one-third. The nations of Europe insist upon spending billions for armaments while trying to squirm out of paying their debts to the United States. Le Temps, of Paris, sounds the old threadbare note of world chaos unless the United States will agree to cancel the debts; but Le Temps finds no fault with the overtaxation of Europe for financing armaments.

The adjournment of the disarmament conference brings to a close a disgraceful exhibition of hypocrisy. All the lip-service paid to President Hoover's proposal, and all the promises of further consideration of the subject later on, merely affront the world's intelligence in view of the refusal of European powers to reduce their armaments.

It will be useless for the reparations conference at Lausanne to concoct a plan for relieving Germany of reparation payments according to the relief granted by the United States on debt payments. No such plan will even be considered by the President or Congress in view of Europe's expenditures for armaments. Public opinion in the United States, without regard to parties, has been unmistakably expressed. If Europe overtaxes itself for armaments and fails to pay debts, it will be held in America that the people of this country are being compelled in part to finance a fresh foreign war in which they will become involved sooner or later. European statesmen who fail to take into account the deep feeling in the United States against the practice of squandering debt money on armaments are not contributing to the cause of confidence and good relations. If these statesmen count upon a change of American policy as a result of a change of administration after the November election they have but to read the Democratic platform to be disillusioned. That platform squarely opposes cancellation of the war debts.

SOVIET RECOGNITION.

A new movement has been launched in Moscow to secure American recognition for the Soviet Union. No new arguments that might induce the United States to exchange ambassadors with the red dictatorship are advanced, but a novel method of approach to the problem has been concocted. Col. Frederick Pope, who is trying to make himself a go-between for the Soviet and American governments, suggests that this Government should send an "unofficial" commissioner to Moscow to pave the way for recognition.

The reds are under a stigma in the United States. Moscow officials think this disrepute might be mitigated if they could establish diplomatic relations with Washington. That attitude doubtless accounts for the willingness of Soviet chiefs to discuss the question with an opportunist who has not the slightest right to speak for the United States Government, and who may run afoul of the Logan act.

Aside from the general desire of the reds to communize the world, there are other motives behind the propaganda to obtain American recognition. Against the advice of the Government, some American business concerns have become involved in the communistic experiment. They have sold goods to Russia on long term credits, and have aided the Soviet in the construction of large industrial plants that are being ruined by incompetent engineers and blundering peasants. These interests are naturally anxious to have Uncle Sam put a prop under the Soviet five-year plan.

Certain large industrial interests would like to dump their surplus and their inferior goods upon the Soviet under a trade agreement between Moscow and Washington. They wouldn't object to competition between American workmen and Soviet slave labor, so long as a market is provided for their wares. This attitude is responsible for a good deal of the propaganda that is heard in favor of recognizing the reds.

Against this organized greed the American people stand firmly united in their determination to eschew the Communist state and all that it represents. Working men realize that competition with the forced labor of Russia would reduce them to peonage. Farmers know that Russia's chief exports are agricultural produce that would come into direct competition with their own surplus crops. The people generally are well aware of the fact that recognition of the Soviet would give the reds an official headquarters in this country from which to disseminate their subversive propaganda. It is unthinkable that the State Department would consider recognizing the Soviet. The mere lapse of time does not make red propaganda any more desirable, nor competition with Communist monopolies using forced labor any less destructive.

CEMENT GARDENS.

Gardens of the future may require no weeding or cultivating. The surface of the ground being completely covered with a hard substance, with occasional openings for plants to grow through, there will be no place for weeds to sprout. The Department of Agriculture is now experimenting with permanent mulches of cinders, concrete, zinc, iron and other materials. Though the investigation is yet in its infancy, being an outgrowth of the successful paper mulch experiments, many interesting results have been recorded.

Tests made on beans, peas, strawberries and various other small fruits have established the fact that these plants grow as successfully under the permanent mulch as with the usual type of cultivation. In some parts of Japan strawberries have been grown between blocks of cement or stone fitted about the plants. This method has been used for several years to force the fruit for mid-winter market.

The Department of Agriculture has shown that soil covered in 1928 has continued to be productive. Blocks of cement a few inches thick and nine by twelve on the surface cover the ground, with but one and one-half inches between. This covering is found to conserve the moisture, besides eliminating the weeds and all necessity for cultivation. By painting the blocks black, or coating them with asphalt, they are made to absorb more heat than would a lighter color, besides retaining warmth longer in the fall and heating the ground earlier in the spring. Rainfall is able to reach the ground through the rows between the blocks. Though these experiments are incomplete, the possibilities already revealed are interesting and important.

OH, OH, MR. LANKFORD!

"I like the brevity of the Democratic platform. I admire the way Governor Smith locates our real trouble and offers the correct remedy."—Rep. Wm. C. Lankford, of Georgia, in House of Representatives, July 5.

Dear old Santa Claus Garner loves the people so much that he wants to lend them a few billions of dollars on promissory notes to cheer them up a bit before election day.

Senator Norris comes out for Roosevelt. Oh, well, no man can expect to pull through a presidential campaign without some embarrassment.

Senator Thomas, the bonusite, seems to be winning in Oklahoma. But that is not strange. So did Alfalfa Bill Murray.

TRAINING OF CITIZENS

By W. N. DOAK, Secretary of Labor.

The basic, and to me, irrefutable argument in behalf of the value of the citizens' military training camp is that it prepares at least a part of the youth of our country for the task of defending that country from assault from without.

I have literally no patience with those who argue that preparation for defense makes for war. The merchant, the landowner, or whoever you will, who has reaped the benefit of his own labor would be criminally foolish not to take some means to protect, in case of necessity, that which he honestly has acquired.

There is another side to this matter of providing military training for the young citizens of this country. It has been proved beyond cavil that military training in the schools makes not only for physical, but for moral integrity. The first lesson in military training is honor. The value to the youth of outdoor life hardly can be estimated. It makes for physical vigor and for that kind of enjoyment which can not be found within the confines of a city's walls.

These military training camps for the citizens of this country teach not only discipline of body, but discipline of mind. In the camps are inculcated lessons of love of country, regard for fellow man and a respect for the rights of all people. They are military, but not at all militaristic. The lesson is defense and not offense.

Records of these training camps have proven their worth. They should be continued as an asset not only to the youth of the country, but to the country itself. Paraphrasing, one might say that a sound Americanism loves the military camps for the enemies they have made. Many of the opponents of the citizens' military training camps are of disruptive tendencies. In their sight, nothing that is is good and, therefore, nothing that is is worth defending.

If the American people ever get into a mind to believe that what they have is not worth a fight to keep it from the hands of the aggressor, the people are lost and with them the country is lost.

Kitty, Kitty!

POST HASTE.

Said the Governor of North Carolina: "It won't be long now until it's shorter between——" but Kansas replied: "I can drink to you only with my wet eyes."

If a 5 per cent tax on beer would provide a revenue of $1,000,000,000 it is easy to figure that the thirsty would only have to spend $20,000,000,000 to raise it.

Since Gov. Roosevelt's 1,000,000 men could plant all the available trees in one day he evidently intends to apply the furlough plan while more grow.

The Geneva conference will also adjourn until fall, determined not to be outdone by Lausanne in the hope that Uncle Sam may be more witless after election.

France is always agreeable to the generous compromise that Germany need not pay what the United States does not collect.

Cleveland will stage a five-mile perpendicular airplane race. Yes, they are going to start up first.

"Hogs reach new 1932 high." This is a pork bill against which no economic objections can be raised.

The way some folks kick you would think they were obliged to give up that new automobile because of 3-cent postage.

Al Smith may well consider that another race for the New York governorship would retrieve him from the discard.

"Senator Johnson's praise of Roosevelt stirs Washington." But, of course, it didn't excite the Capital like the double-header the Senators won from the Yanks.

Wall street odds are heavily against Roosevelt's election. Prejudiced, doubtless, but W. S. doesn't often back sentiment with cash.

Mr. Raskob peruses his IOU's and inquires, who is the forgotten man now?

Tammany gets its best laugh in a long time over the proposal of a city manager for New York.

Senate Republicans are unfeeling. The Democratic beer plank was table dressing for the campaign, not to be eaten now. PAUL HUDSON.

JANET AND I DISCUSS SPELLING.

You find it difficult to spell
Such simple words as "their" and "prey,"
Yet what of little girls who dwell
In Wales three thousand miles away?
If you think English hard to learn,
Filled full of words to plague and tease,
The pages of your atlas turn
And gaze upon such words as these:
Eglwyswrw,
Tanyreglwys.

Pale women faint and fighters strong
Will feint at times, deceiving foes,
And little children will go wrong,
As every worried teacher knows,
But, troubled Janet, at the board,
Remember when a word you miss,
If you were asked to spell out "ford,"
In Wales a ford is known as this:
Rhydyfuwch.

You think your spelling lessons hard,
But buckle to them with a will.
You'll learn that soldiers stand on "guard"
And properly to spell "fulfill."
But if at times your memory fails,
Think what a happier fate you own
Than all the little girls in Wales,
Who have to answer this for "stone:"
Llechyrd.

How Could Any General Win a Battle if Each Soldier Tried to Save Himself?

By ROBERT QUILLEN

HARD times are homemade. No matter what misfortune or folly may have caused their beginning, the influence that prolongs them is psychological.

When that truth is spoken in the presence of the jobless and the destitute, they answer bitterly: "It isn't our state of mind that makes us hungry."

But these people do not make times hard. They are victims, not causes.

The people responsible for the continuation of hard times are those who practice unnecessary economy, those who hoard their money, and those who wait for better times to make use of their abilities and their capital.

These keep times hard for themselves and for everybody else, and the sole cause and explanation of their conduct is their state of mind.

They are afraid. They have lost their courage and their initiative. Their one remaining ambition is to save themselves and mark time until the world is normal again.

Effects do not change unless causes change. Have you forgotten the cause of good times?

It was the cheerful and universal pursuit of the dollar.

The land was full of go-getters. Young men and old, rich and poor, trained and untrained, all alike were full of schemes to make a profit.

They did not wait for something to happen. They made things happen. They were full of ambition. They thought in terms of success.

Everybody was cheerfully and hopefully busy getting ahead.

Suppose they had quit with one accord in the midst of good times and in fear and trembling had surrendered to despair? What would have happened?

You know the answer. Hard times would have come upon them over night.

And that is precisely the cause of our present ill fortune.

No land can have good times while everybody hibernates to await a miracle. Times don't make themselves. They are made by men.

The times are dull because the people are.

If the whole people will quit dreaming of manna from heaven, and each individual will recover his courage and renew his eager pursuit of a dollar, times will be "normal" within a month.

Normal times require normal effort to get ahead and be somebody.

PRO AND CON

Press Comment Upon Acts and Actors in the Great American Show, "Politics."

McAdoo's Knife.

Philadelphia Public Ledger.

It seems that all the time Mr. McAdoo was shaking hands and having his picture taken with Mr. Alfred E. Smith and buzzing back and forth between the Texas and California delegations he was looking strictly after the interests of No. 1. He had carried California for Mr. Garner in the primary, but he had no intention of carrying the Speaker on his back throughout the convention if he saw a chance of promoting his own political future and at the same time of sticking a knife into his ancient adversary, Mr. Smith.

Defeat of his personally conducted "stop-Roosevelt" movement in straightforward political warfare might not have sent Mr. Smith sulking to his tent, however great his dejection. But he has been doubly wounded and humiliated by incurring this defeat at the hands of his old antagonist.

Why Democrats Lose.

Chicago Tribune.

There is, of course, no one explanation of the repeated failure of the Democrats to win in national elections, but it is not to be doubted that one thing which has turned the tide, time after time, in favor of the Republicans has been a profound, if often ill defined, distrust of Democratic economic programs. The people of this country, and notably of this section, have thought, rightly or wrongly, that the Democrats are peculiarly addicted to dangerous experimentation in money and banking and in industrial and agricultural organization. Perhaps the record of Democratic administrations does not entirely bear out this preconception, but as long as the notion persists the Democrats must expect to enter any national campaign at a great disadvantage.

Garner Would Make Good President.

Brooklyn Eagle.

In any case the Senate would obtain in Mr. Garner a presiding officer of experience, industry, legislative understanding and character. Apart from his qualifications to preside in the Senate he should make quite as promising a possible successor to the Presidency as many men who have held the vice presidential office. And it deserves note that those Vice Presidents who have succeeded to the higher office have on the whole made as good a record as the average for our elected Presidents.

Turncoat Norris.

New York Herald Tribune.

The precipitancy of Senator Norris in enlisting under the Roosevelt banner as soon as it was raised was not surprising. He had been preparing to do it for some time. Four years ago he bolted to the Democrats and campaigned for former Gov. Smith; but the Republican nominee carried Nebraska by a substantial plurality. Having in the meantime used the Republican label to secure reelection to the Senate, Mr. Norris now proceeds to line up with the Democrats again.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Florida Lawyer Suggests Drastic Measures to Insure Payment of Europe's War Debts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: From the Literary Digest I note that you are denunciatory of the attempt by the debtor European nations to cancel their obligations to this country, and I think you have good reason to be so. I am firmly of the opinion that the United States could easily collect these debts if it would simply take a firm stand and stop trying to be kind to the European nations.

They do not expect kindness; they laugh at us; they hate us and they ridicule us. They certainly could not feel any more strongly against us if we assert our own rights.

I suggest that if this country would adopt the three following principles within six months the European nations would be scrambling among themselves to see who could first make satisfactory arrangements with us:

1. Refuse to issue passports to any person going to a European country whose payments to us were overdue. This would particularly affect France.
2. Boycott the goods of all European nations whose payments to us were overdue.
3. Build up our own Army, Navy and air fleet.

These are only the suggestions of one who feels that the obligation of contract is sacred and that we have already forgiven Europe altogether too much.

No reason exists for relieving them any more, and it seems to me that anyone who takes a contrary view blinds himself to the fact that Europe has plenty of money to maintain expensive armies, navies and air fleets and plenty of money to loan its allies and plenty of money for its own public improvements or anything else that it needs, but has no money with which to pay its just obligations.

Father Gets Exercise and Develops Character in His Boys by Working in a Garden.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: They say every cloud has a silver lining. The question what to do with our extra time due to furlough brings many suggestions. Our nearest and dearest interest is the home, and the home grounds suggest a garden, both flower and vegetable. Much has been said as to the economic value of the garden, but there are other and perhaps greater returns than the intrinsic value of a vegetable garden.

My chief return from my garden is health, due to exercise both for my boys and myself. The association of father and sons in such work gives a contact sadly lacking in our city life. Training that will develop character and habits of industry, when imparted by the father by both precept and example, is invaluable. It is the chance to say "come on," and not "go on."

Pollution of Air, Water and Land Calls for Survey and Disclosure of Facts.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: "If the road be miry," said an old English judge, "the traveler must pluck up his hose and put on his boots." In the centennial of the first public health act, now approaching completion, municipalities in the English-speaking countries have become acutely conscious of the sanitary conditions within their boundaries. If a courageous, truth-telling, and future-foreseeing survey should be made of the pollution of the air, water, and land now going on out of sight and smell of health boards, or tolerated, as in the case of the Potomac River, because the point of intolerance has not been reached, it would admirably mark the close of the first century of sanitary science.

Democrat Thinks McAdoo Coup Will Hurt the Party's Chances.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Evidently the coup engineered by Mr. McAdoo was so that Speaker Garner might be named as Vice President, and Mr. McAdoo is to be given a place in the Cabinet if the ticket wins.

With the possibility of Mr. McAdoo in the Cabinet the party is indeed greatly handicapped. Had any other than Mr. McAdoo engineered the coup to beat Smith, the party would stand a good chance of winning in November.

The party will live to regret many of the incidents which the radical element was permitted to perform at this convention. Democrats and many Republicans who otherwise would have voted the Democratic ticket in November are disgusted to a degree that will not be overcome in the intervening months. Mr. McAdoo's effort to get even with Smith may please the former for a while, but such tactics are certainly not good for the party or the country.

VIRGINIA DEMOCRAT.

Thinks Garner Would Be President Soon if Democrats Should Win.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I suggest that you deal respectfully with Hon. John N. Garner in your comments during the campaign, because if the Democratic ticket should win the chances are a thousand to one that Mr. Garner would be President of the United States within a few months thereafter.

INDIANAPOLIS BRIDGE PAIR LEAD IN MATCH

Eastern Contract Experts in Fight to Retrieve Their Lost Honors.

Cleveland, July 6 (A.P.).—Play in the contract team of four championship event of the American Whist League started late today with some of the Eastern experts out to retrieve the honors they lost to Westerners in the contract pair championships.

Since 30 rounds were to be played in the afternoon and tonight, it was questionable whether the final standings would be known until tomorrow.

First place in the contract pair event went to W. J. Pray, an advertising man, and J. E. Cain, a young business man, comparatively new to tournament competition, both of Indianapolis. They finished with a percentage of .601. P. Hal Sims, of Deal, N. J., one of the famous "four horsemen," and Edward Hymes, also of Deal, ranked next with .585.

Just two percentage points back of them were S. B. Fink and O. S. Emerich, of Cleveland. Mrs. Ann Rosenfeld and I. B. Fried, of Cleveland, were third with .550, and Howard Schenken and David Burnstine, of New York, fourth, with .540. Sam Fry, jr., and Charles Lochridge, who led the qualifying rounds, finished up in ninth place, and Willard Karn and George Reith, of New York, who were a close second in the qualifier, landed in tenth place.

Pray and Cain vanquished some of their more experienced foes with a straightforward, steady game that had no place for psychic bids. Clevelanders also fared well with conservative bids.

Horsewhipping Upheld As Punishment in Theft

Millersburg, Ohio, July 6 (A.P.).—The horsewhipping of two men convicted of stealing a refrigerator which they sold for $3, probably the first punishment of this kind imposed in Ohio in 50 years, was upheld as "justifiable" today by the judge who pronounced the sentence.

Twenty strokes each were applied yesterday to the backs of William Wynn, 48, and his brother, Jesse, 51, after they expressed preference for the lash instead of 20 days in jail with hard labor and a bread-and-water diet.

Children to See City Industries

Neighborhood Classes Tomorrow to Visit Dairy for Inspection.

With the object of acquiring more information about the city in which they live, the summer school classes at Neighborhood House, 470 N street southwest, will be taken in a body each week to view some Washington industry or one of the many particular points of interest in the Capital. The first of these inspection trips will be made tomorrow morning, the class visiting the plant of Thompson's Dairy, Eleventh street northwest.

Neighborhood House conducts these classes every summer which results in keeping a large number of children of the Southwestern section off the streets during the hot months. Heretofore, the outdoor features have been confined to hikes, visits to parks and similar expeditions. This year, however, it was decided that the children would benefit by knowing about the various industries of their city.

The children will be transported on these trips each Friday morning in the Rotary bus loaned for the occasion, the teaching staff being supplied by the settlement with funds obtained from the Community Chest.

HAWLEY-SMOOT ACT UPHELD IN INSTITUTE

G. J. Eder Declares Decline in U. S. Foreign Trade Due to Depression.

Charlottesville, Va., July 6 (A.P.).—Denial that the Hawley-Smoot tariff act of 1930 was an important factor in the decline of the United States' foreign trade with Latin America between 1929 and 1931 was voiced here today by George Jackson Eder, formerly of the Latin-American section, United States Department of Commerce.

Addressing the Latin-American relations round table at the university's institute of public affairs, Mr. Eder said that analysis by the department, with liberal interpretation, indicates that not more than 10 per cent of the decline is attributable directly to the tariff act. The remainder of the total actual loss of trade, amounting to about 50 per cent, may be laid at the door of the depression, he said.

An optimistic note was sounded by George F. Train, Latin-American specialist of the National City Co. of New York, who predicted the resumption of foreign debt service when conditions become more favorable. Train said the drop in the commodity price level and the falling off in world trade made it impossible for debtor nations to meet their obligations with the result that today "one-half of the Latin-American bonds outstanding in this country are in partial or complete default."

Dr. Max Winkler, president of the American Council of Foreign Bondholders, Inc., New York, said America's stake in the countries south of the Rio Grande is far less adequately protected now than it was prior to the World War. There are outstanding at the present time in the United States, he said, Latin American Government, State and municipal obligations to an amount of approximately $2,000,000,000.

The Rev. Leroy P. Burney, of Charlotte, N. C., speaking before the round table on "Country Church and Rural Ministry," emphasized the importance of education for the country pastor.

Hugh J. Reber, of New Jersey, discussed county government in that State before another round table. Basing his conclusions on a survey made by a New Jersey commission, he said conditions "do not seem to warrant the existence of county government so long as such a government depends upon the functions now assigned to it."

He recommended that the functions of importance be turned over to the State to eliminate "considerable overhead expense."

Town Forms Bank To Replace Failure

Byron, Ill., July 6 (A.P.).—This community of 915 persons rejoiced today in the ending of its bankless days with the opening of the Rock River Community Bank. The new institution, which takes the place and assumes the assets and liabilities of the Byron State Bank, closed last December, represents six months' intensive community effort.

It made immediately available to depositors in the closed bank 75 per cent of their balances, but officials said much more money was deposited than withdrawn today.

When frozen assets closed the State bank, Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick Simms, former representative, who has large land holdings nearby, stepped in with a plan for reorganization. She pledged 10 per cent of the funds necessary through James W. Rogers, her financial secretary. The new bank is capitalized at $50,000.

Culbertson on Bridge

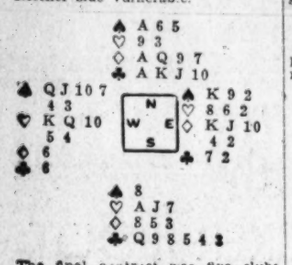
DEFEATING AN END PLAY.

ONE of the favorite subjects of those who write on Bridge is the manner in which difficult contracts are made through end-plays, elimination resulting in forced leads, and other tools of the trade of a good Contract player. Declarers, however, should have no monopoly on good plays, and players holding the defensive cards should be able to realize possible end-plays almost as soon as the Declarer himself, and take steps to prevent them when possible.

An excellent example of this situation was furnished recently in a rubber game in a New York Bridge Club in which Mr. Samuel Fry, jr., was holding the South hand given below:

West—Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.



The final contract was five clubs by South, which was doubled by East, West, during the course of his bidding, having shown both hearts and spades and thus in a measure placing probably ten cards in his hand.

In the play, West opened the spade Queen, which was won by the Ace in Dummy, and South thought he saw an opportunity to make his contract by the good old plan of giving his opponents a chance to make a mistake. He led a heart, and refused to win the trick, hoping that West would now try to cash a spade trick, and if this were done, then South could see his contract assured through eliminating hearts and spades from both Dummy and the closed hand and throwing East into the lead by permitting him to win a diamond trick and then forcing him to make a lead which would give the Declarer a ruff in one hand a discard in the other. However, West was alert, and instead of falling into the trap so neatly baited by South, led a diamond, and thereby East was saved from South's carefully planned end-play.

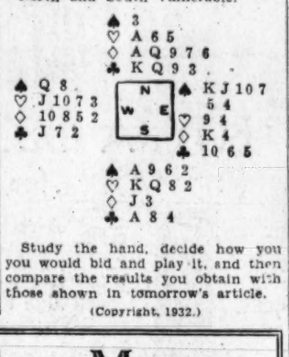
Today's Pointer.

While end-plays involving forced leads by opponents are part of the equipment of an accurate Declarer, the defense should be alert to avoid such situations.

Tomorrow's Hand.

The bidding and play of the hand printed below will be discussed tomorrow:

North—Dealer.
North and South vulnerable.



Study the hand, decide how you you would bid and play it, and then compare the results you obtain with those shown in tomorrow's article.

Interpreting the Mode

By DARE

The jumper frock and the beruffled organdy are two of the outstanding children's fashions for summer. (Selected on Fifth avenue.)

NEW YORK, July 6.—You hear so much about lace these days! 'N' if you stop to think of it, you hear a lot about lace most any day. For lace is the very breath of elegance, feminine and intrinsically lovely to the last degree. Lace, as you perhaps know, has been known as early as the fifteenth century, though it is only generally spoken of in the sixteenth century. And ever since, you can read the most glowing articles written by fashun crickets hundreds of years ago—about the style value of lace!

Lace is delightful. I have mantillas, both the three-cornered type and the long, table runner type, as I call them, which belonged to my great grandmamma and which I use with telling effect to this day. The last time I wore my white one—ah, nuff sed! It's black now, because it came into such comical contact with my opened bottle of drawing ink—that's one for my memoirs, too! Well, back to lace—then there are collars and scarfs of lace, and flounces and edgings, which seem to last forever—not always in museums, either. Always beautiful, delicate, expressive of femininity.

It pays to buy good lace. How I gee-nash my teeth when Sister Dionne brings me lingeries that the French-maid-who-was-Spanish made for me, all by hand, and I see the lace—put on, oh, ever so delicately and patiently, giving out! Nothing to do about it, either—'cept regret that it wasn't much better lace in the first place.

Of course, the lace which you use for handkerchiefs, or any flimsy thing which is more artistic than useful, need not be sturdy. But lace for lingerie and nightgowns, if you are putting any handwork at all into its fashioning, should by all means be sturdy in design and construction, and in price.

Standing up in the back collars are going to be good this autumn, you know. And I look for the advent of wired or starched lace collars a la Medici, at least in our negligee, if nothing else. Watch and see!

Little girl's togs are so very like big sister's! Of course, little sister can wear adorably gay and whimsical things all the time, whilst beeg-sis has to watch her time and place. Yet the jumper frock is as chic for big sister as for wee Mamzelle, like the one I sketched for you today. And as to organdy, and ruffles, well!

Pink and blue in combination are especially smart for this season in children's things. And one must not overlook the possibilities of plaids, odd and exaggerated buttons, belts and fancy cuffs for little sister, either. Some ideas sketched for you today.

Beware the collarless neckline, cut close to the throat! For if your neck is most "lof'ly," and your features cameo perfect, it is the most flattering frame you could possibly give them, but if they aren't—nothing will call more attention to them in less time than • • •

How to Be Beautiful

By ELSIE PIERCE

GET INTO THE SWIM OF THINGS AND KEEP YOUR FIGURE SYLPH-LIKE AND SYMMETRICAL.

YESTERDAY I started singing the praises of summer sports, and expected to run through several, but found when I got started on tennis my enthusiasm left no room for anything else. But today let us consider swimming, which is doubtless one of the best all-around exercises. Those of you who saw Johnny Weismuller in "Tarzan, the Ape Man," can easily understand how pleasurable swimming can be, how really graceful the roll of the shoulders and the rhythmic movements of the arms, what a thrilling feeling to know that you are conquering water and space as your body glides forward. Well, we can't all be champions, but we can all learn to do a few different strokes and cover enough distance to make us feel we're in the swim of things.

If you can't swim, why not enroll at your local "Y" or at any nearby pool? If necessary practice on chairs or on the beach or on an ottoman. The movements themselves are extremely beneficial in keeping the figure in trim. Take a dip in the ocean and let the waves slap and beat against you. The tingling you will feel will tell you that your circulation is being improved.

If you can swim you don't have to be told that the deep breathing is very beneficial, the shoulder and arm movements, the kick of the legs, the whole body moving, working, is whipping up the activity of the blood stream, which means a healthier system and a clearer skin, brighter eyes, stronger muscles. The complete exercise acts as a normalizer, develops scrawny parts and breaks down fatty tissues. That's why I am urging you to get into the swim of things—and that's why health and beauty authorities feel it is a good plan to go through the movements of swimming exercise the whole year round, whether you are near the surf or not.

What to Wear.

Wear a comfortable bathing suit. The simple athletic types are really best, always in good taste and they don't hamper free movement. And have a warm, comfy bathrobe handy. Remember to take your sunshine in studied doses. Don't expose the skin to the sun for more than ten or fifteen minutes at first, and gradually increase the period. Keep your beach hat or parasol handy, too.

And after a strenuous bit of swimming, you may feel tired, relax luxuriously, but don't loll about the beach too long. Why not a bit of activity—a medicine ball or some beach games? Or, perhaps you can take your dog along? Ever know what fun you can have with a dog at the beach?

Who can resist the call of the surf in the summer? Take advantage of the season. Get into the swim of things and keep your figure sylph-like and symmetrical thereby.

PLANES SET TO AID VICTIMS OF FLOODS

More Rain Is Predicted for West Virginia; Campers Are Marooned.

Charleston, W. Va., July 6 (A.P.).—Over an ever-widening area, flood waters in West Virginia continued to take toll of property today. There was no endin sight, for all weather reports predicted more rain.

Food transportation by airplane was under consideration today to aid several Charleston residents marooned at summer camps.

Airplanes were held in readiness and negotiations were under way for the use of a privately owned hydroplane.

The Elk and Kanawha Rivers raced madly, laden with small boats, chicken coops, logs and debris. The New River started to rise last night and the Greenbrier River at Ronceverte was reported to have flooded basements there.

Heavy rains added to flood damage in central West Virginia. Disrupted communication lines made it difficult to obtain accurate information of conditions in that territory.

Huntington began to feel effects of the rains when Four Pole Creek went out of its banks and flooded homes in Huntington suburbs. The Ohio River at Huntington has not yet reached flood stage.

REPARATIONS CRISIS REACHED AT SESSION

of them and arising out of treaties as an instrument to which they are parties without a preliminary friendly consultation with a view to agreeing on the manner in which such questions should be treated."

The French delegation expressed a belief that this might undermine the League of Nations and the smaller states were seeking its rejection.

The German appeared to have won one most important point. It was reported the "war guilt" controversy, which has raged since the days of the Versailles treaty, had been composed.

Focal Point of Agitation.

The treaty, which holds Germany guilty of the war and justified reparations on that guilt, has been the focal point of German agitation for years. German aspirations now have been met, according to well-informed sources, by inserting in the projected agreement this sentence:

"The treaty of Versailles, insofar as it concerns reparations, is hereby abrogated."

The amount Germany will pay as a final settlement of reparations also was an unsettled point as the delegates sat down to thrash out their differences, but this was not considered serious.

The purpose of the controversial resolution engaging the powers to preserve the European status quo is to strengthen confidence by guaranteeing that the economic system will not be disturbed by political convulsions over such problems as the Polish corridor.

Corridor Question.

The corridor question affects both France and Germany directly, as Poland's path to the sea was carved out of Germany and between Poland and France there is close cooperation.

Before tonight's meeting of the delegations both France and Germany in effect laid their causes in the hands of Prime Minister MacDonald.

The prime minister has been exerting all the pressure he could to effect a compromise. Yesterday he delivered what amounted to an ultimatum by declaring that there would have to be an accord by Thursday, because he was going home Thursday night.

Although the exact amount of Germany's final payments was unsettled when tonight's conference opened, the total considered most likely was estimated from two to four billion marks (approximately $500,000,000 to $1,000,000,000).

The German delegation was reported to be taking no adamant stand on this issue, considering the elimination of what has become known in Germany as the "war guilt lie" to be of much greater importance.

MARYLAND FIREMEN MEET AT FROSTBURG

Baltimore Chief Will Address Convention on "Salvage Operation" Today.

Special to The Washington Post.

Frostburg, Md., July 6.—The fortieth annual convention of the Maryland State Firemen's Association opened here this afternoon at the Beall High School Auditorium and will end Friday evening. Addresses of welcome were given by Mayor Gunmand A. Shuckhart and County Commissioner A. Charles Stewart, and the response was by George W. Colburn, Princess Anne, president of the association. Frank C. Ort, Midland, treasurer of the State body, presided.

The matter of reestablishing the office of State fire marshal is expected to come up. The session tomorrow morning will include an address by Chief Edward H. Warr, Baltimore, on "Salvage Operation." He is backing the fire mashal proposition and expects to address the convention in that connection also.

Mayor Howard W. Jackson of Baltimore will address the convention tomorrow night. Extensive entertainment is being provided. The bonus expeditionary forces have established a recruiting booth and are seeking donations of food and clothing. Last night the present and past officers of the association were tendered a dinner at the National Hotel, Grantsville, Md. A. N. Johnson, dean of engineering, and G. F. Pollock, University of Maryland, were among the speakers.

GENUINE DISARMING URGED BY KELLOGG

Coauthor of Antiwar Pact Looks On at Geneva as Turkey Gets Bid.

Geneva, July 6 (A.P.).—Frank B. Kellogg, former American Secretary of State, added his prestige as coauthor of the Kellogg-Briand antiwar pact and as a justice of the World Court to the American proposal for a one-third reduction of armaments at a dinner here tonight.

Guest of the United States delegation to the world disarmament conference, Mr. Kellogg talked personally with the chiefs of the other important delegations, urging the necessity of increasing security and consolidating world peace by "genuine disarmament."

He previously had been given a warm ovation when he attended a session of the League of Nations assembly as a spectator and was greeted with a cordial speech of appreciation by Paul Hymans, president of the session.

While Mr. Kellogg looked on, the assembly formally invited Turkey to join the league. A meeting later to receive the Turkish reply and to welcome that country into the league was arranged.

The disarmament conference is preparing to adjourn until autumn with a general declaration praising the one-third reduction proposal of President Hoover, naming points upon which there is virtual agreement and stating that some phases of the plan require considerable time for study by the powers concerned.

"King's" Son Weds Romany Princess

Gypsy Ceremonies Held in Open Amid Feasting, Wine and Song.

Ashland, Ohio, July 6 (A.P.).—A gypsy princess dissolved in tears tonight as she was given in marriage to a Romany king's son after a day of feasting, wine and song by Romany bands gathered for the wedding in a valley southwest of here.

Rosa Miller, 19-year-old gypsy maiden from Chicago, sobbed when the flower-trimmed wreath of ribbon streamers and the scarlet bride's veil were pressed upon her head, symbolizing the union with George Ephrim, 20, son of Steve Ephrim, gypsy king.

Her tears, murmured some, were perhaps shed for another who had not the price of a gypsy bride.

The bride, led forth to dance the wedding dance, wiped her eyes, but her face was pale and without expression as she moved swiftly to the music in the light of the campfires.

What Today Means

"CANCER."

IF July 7 is your birthday the best hours for you on this date are from 7 a. m. to 8:30 a. m., from 2 p. m. to 3:20 p. m. and from 9 p. m. to 10:45 p. m. The most adverse hours are from 11 a. m. to 12:35 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 7 p. m.

Astrological influences on July 7 will promote the wrong kind of atmosphere in which to make things shine. The day will not necessarily be dull, but most people will be unable to see things in the proper light. Opportunities will be passed by, and pleasures refused, because of crochety feelings.

Children born on this July 7 will have assertive natures and will have forceful rather than charming personalities. They will develop into enterprising, business-like individuals and should be able to make their way through the world without too many helping hands. Their moral natures will be very strong.

Born on July 7, you shun the difficult things of life, and the expensive things, if you are forced to pay the bills. You will ride "de luxe" with pleasure "in some other person's car," and nothing is too grand for your luxurious tastes. You have a vague desire to rise above mediocrity, and a stronger desire to be happy. Many of your wishes, however, will remain formless because of inertia and both mental and physical laziness. You would be the first one to buy happiness in a test tube and, as it is, you are looking everywhere for it except in the place where it belongs—in your human heart.

You never feel that you are exactly in the right spot, or doing the right work to properly show off your qualifications. To you opportunity is always at the other address and, no matter how many times you move, you never seem able to catch up with it. You want others to inspire you to effort, and grumble when your half-hearted gestures are only weakly applauded. Stop your fretful scanning of the horizon and put more enthusiasm and efficiency in the day's daily tasks and you will have taken an effective step toward higher and better things! There is much that is lovable about you, and your intelligence is far from mediocre. You do not want a bed of roses, but something sharp to spur you on. Your greatest friends are those who will help you to overcome selfishness.

Uncle Sam's Home Hints

GREEN APPLE COBBLER AND DUTCH APPLE CAKE.

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

An apple "cobbler" differs from a "deep dish pie" only in having a crust of biscuit dough instead of pastry. Neither has an undercrust. Another combination of apples and biscuit is a Dutch apple cake, baked with the biscuit dough on the bottom and the apples on top, as directed in the recipe below from the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Early green cooking apples are particularly good for these apple desserts, because they are tart. When we talk about green apples we don't mean the traditional hard, underripe apples. These early apples are small and juicy—the first of the new season's crop—and sufficiently ripe to be eaten without danger.

Dutch Apple Cake.

2 cups sifted flour
¾ teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 tablespoon sugar
4 tablespoons fat
½ cup milk or enough to make dough stiff enough to roll.
10 medium sized green cooking apples
¾ cup sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon
2 tablespoons butter

Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Cut in the shortening with a biscuit cutter or rub in lightly with the finger tips. Make a well out of the flour and add the milk gradually. Stir from the center with a fork until a firm dough is formed. Roll into a thin sheet and place in a deep square or oblong pan.

Pare, quarter, core and slice the apples. Arrange the slices in close even layers in the pan on the dough. Mix the cinnamon with the sugar, sprinkle over the apples, dot with butter, and partly cover. Bake until the apples are almost tender. Then remove the cover for the crust to brown. Serve warm.

Green Apple Cobbler.

Make a biscuit dough from half the quantity of ingredients given in the first part of the above recipe. Fill the dish with closely packed sliced apples, and sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar. Dot with butter. Cover with biscuit dough, and bake. Serve hot with hard sauce or cream.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

AVOID SUNSTROKE.

IF a person would escape sunstroke the most important requirement is that he avoid undue exposure to bright sunlight. If he would escape heat stroke the most important requirement is that he avoid becoming too hot, either because of making more heat than he can get rid of, or of exposing himself to extreme heat for too long.

Physicians try to make a distinction between these two conditions, but their success is unsatisfactory. Perhaps the safer plan is to throw the two into one group and say that to escape that form of shock which throws the heat regulatory apparatus out of working order, one should avoid undue exposure to sunlight and heat, whatever its source.

Shattuck and Hilferty made a study of sunstroke and heat stroke in the United States and parts of Canada during the first 30 years of this century. Any one who reads the report of this study sees the need of better records of the effect of heat. The only reports we have relate to fatalities. In hot weather the newspaper stories ascribe deaths from many causes to heat, and physicians reading these stories fall in line and are very careless in writing in causes in the reports made to health departments. The study shows that the records vary enormously from year to year in the toll shown as due to heat. It is the very hot summers that push the rate up. In some summers there are almost no deaths charged to heat. About once every ten years there comes a season with a record about ten times the average. These years are the ones in which the weather is extra hot.

Humidity and rainfall seem to be minor factors. Nor do winds seem to be of importance, except as they increase heat. As an illustration, there is one city where the torrid weather is nearly always in connection with southwest winds maintained for several days without change.

Sunstroke and heat stroke are tending to become less fatal all the time. Another conclusion reached in the study is that clothing is a factor in sunstroke and heat stroke. Persons who dress wisely in hot weather are not in much danger.

Drinking alcoholic beverages is another factor. There is a general notion that black people are immune to stroke. This is not correct. The records show that, proportionate to population, they have more strokes than white people. This may be because they are more exposed—they work more in the bright sunlight, and they hold the hotter jobs. British experience in India shows that where whites and Indians are exposed in the same measure the whites suffer more from heat stroke.

Babies and very young children are made more uncomfortable than adults, especially if cholera infantum is counted as a form of heat stroke. This is as we would expect, since babies have more skin for each pound of weight than adults have. But from early childhood, through youth, adolescence and maturity, there is not much fatal heat stroke. As age advances the toll mounts. Babies and old persons should be especially protected against heat.

DUE TO UNDUE RUBBING.

Miss V. D. R. writes: I have large lumps, about an inch wide, on the backs of my feet (calluses) just above the shoe. Do these come from wearing shoes that are too short or from high heels? Is there a remedy?

REPLY.

Calluses come from undue rubbing. I judge your high heels pitch your weight on the front of your foot and your shoes do the rest. I can not see where shortness of your shoes contributes. On the other hand, your shoes may be too long and your foot sliding backward and forward contributes to the rubbing. Wearing proper shoes is the cure.

Officers of Navy On Leave Payless

Radio Broadcast Employed to Inform Men of Economy Rule.

Naval officers throughout the country now taking their annual leave of absence will be surprised to learn on their return that provisions of the economy bill signed by the President decrees that after July 1 all leave must be on a nonpay basis.

In an effort to bring this ruling to the attention of officers who may be on ship or on vacation out of touch with the department, Navy officials have enlisted the aid of radio broadcasting companies and the press.

Leave is customarily granted as officers are transferred for duty, and these transfers are heavy in June and July. The nonpay rule for vacations does not affect enlisted men.

HOUSE COMMITTEE APPROVES $100,000 FOR BONUS ARMY

tht matter would be put up to the rank and file, however.

The President's letter to the Speaker of the House read:

"I have the honor to transmit herewith for the consideration of Congress an estimate of an appropriation for the Veterans Administration for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1933, in the sum of $100,000, to enable the administrator of veterans affairs to furnish prior to July 15, 1932, railroad transportation, together with subsistence, to honorably discharged veterans of the World War temporarily quartered in the District of Columbia. Further details regarding this estimate are set forth in the letter of the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, transmitted herewith."

Director of the Budget Roop's letter read:

"For the purpose of enabling the administration of veteran affairs, upon the request of any honorably discharged veteran of the World War, temporarily quartered in the District of Columbia, who is desirous of returning to his home, to provide such veteran with railroad transportation thereto prior to July 15, 1932, together with travel subsistence at the rate of 75 cents per day, $100,000; provided, that all amounts expended under this appropriation in behalf of any veteran shall constitute a loan without interest, which, if not repaid to the United States, shall be deducted from any amounts payable to such veteran on his adjusted service certificate."

As governmental wheels were moving to send the bonus marchers home, the veteran hosts apparently were still "digging in."

The left wing of the bonus army, the several hundred led by John Pace, of Detroit, obtained police permission to stage a parade up Pennsylvania avenue tomorrow morning. The march will end at the Capitol, where a demonstration is planned.

Activities Not Sanctioned.

Pace yesterday said he expected at least 2,000 to be in the procession marshaled by him. He will address a mass meeting of veterans at 11 a. m. today. The speechmaking will take place on the Federal property across the Eleventh street bridge and just outside the territory of Camp Marks, the populous bonus army center.

Regular bonus army leaders said they did not sanction Pace's activities. They denied him permission to speak from the rostrum in Camp Marks.

Food conditions in the army took a slightly improved tone yesterday, with three slim meals being portioned out. It was said last night at bonus headquarters that enough rations remained in the commissary to feed most of the veterans through today.

The meat brought by plane by Commander Waters from New York helped the bonus army mess tables yesterday, but it was gone by midday. Many of the units, however, are finding ways and means to feed themselves. This factor is proving a big help to the main commissary department of the army.

Opposed to Proposal.

"I am opposed to sending these men home," said Waters, "until something constructive has been done for the members of the B. E. F. If, then, they want to avail themselves of this plan, I will do nothing to prevent them.

"They talk of sending these men back to their homes when so many of them have no homes. The proposal looks to me like just another runaround and I do not think it will meet with much approval in the B. E. F. ranks."

A movement by a group of veterans yesterday to occupy the old Census Bureau Building at First and B streets northwest was quickly halted by police and bonus army officials later instructed against any such attempt. The building, now vacant, is the property of the Bliss estate.

Military Guard Dispatched.

There was some tension among bonus ranks last night as to the apportionment of food supplies from the commissary at 654 Pennsylvania avenue southeast. A military police guard, 100 strong, was dispatched from Camp Marks to sentry the food supplies.

Arrival of the commissary guard at the Pennsylvania avenue base caused some excitement. Some one in the neighborhood telephoned police and several squad cars dashed there hurriedly to be assured that everything was peaceable.

Commander Waters' wife, Mrs. Wilma Waters, arrived by bus yesterday after a delayed journey from Portland, Oreg., their home. The couple is staying with relatives here. Mrs. Waters was introduced by the young commander to 4,000 of the men assembled at Camp Marks. She was vociferously acclaimed.

Dr. Smith was born at Bridesburg, Pa., and was graduated from the Philadelphia public schools, the Blue Ridge College at Westminster, Md., and Princeton Theological Seminary.

McBeth, 2312 Sixteenth street northeast. Through Attorneys Lambert & Yeatman and R. H. Yeatman, jr., she claimed she was knocked down by a cab at Seventh and Y streets northwest September 11.

REYNOLDS, TOBACCO HEIR, ENDS HIS LIFE

midnight. A. B. Walker, an intimate friend, said he was closing the house when he heard the shot and then heard Miss Holman scream. He rushed upstairs, found Reynolds lying on the sleeping porch unconscious with a pistol wound in his head and took him to a hospital. Reynolds died there at dawn without regaining consciousness.

Friends said Reynolds apparently was in good spirits yesterday, although, they said, he recently had been in one of his "restless spells."

Young Reynolds was one of four children who shared jointly in the estate of their father.

His mother, who married Edward Johnson, of Baltimore, after the death of R. J. Reynolds, sr., died several years ago.

Smith Reynolds' personal fortune has been estimated in excess of $25,000,000. Neither he nor his brother, R. J. ("Dick") Reynolds, jr., was ever actively connected with the management of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co.

His romance with Libby Holman, a Cincinnati girl, whose voice caught the fancy of Broadway and lifted her to the heights of stardom, began after the collapse of an earlier marriage with Anne Cannon, daughter of a wealthy Concord, N. C., textile manufacturer. Smith Reynolds settled a million dollars upon her and their infant daughter when they were divorced in Reno, Nev., a little more than a year after their surprise marriage.

Radio Dial Flashes

By ROBERT D. HEINL

IT probably will be five to ten years before educators can tell what they want in the way of radio facilities, William John Cooper, United States Commissioner of Education, declared recently. Commissioner Cooper said educators could not at present employ the 15 per cent of the total number of channels they are now asking Congress for.

"How much time will we want for the work we have to do? This is a field in which there is no conclusion," the commissioner said. "The educational people have asked for 15 per cent of the channels. Undoubtedly they can not use them at the present time. Whether they can or can not in the immediate future remains to be seen. There is no doubt, however, that this much of the time ought to be kept from falling into hands which will not return it and for this purpose a committee is at work. It is attempting to get Congress to act in the matter.

"A bill has been before Congress during the present session, but it seems that nothing will be done. Whether one may count on a bill passing at the next session remains to be seen. At the present time, therefore, we must say that so far as progress in education is concerned there has been little during the past two years and so far as the time on the air is concerned it appears that in its present state education has enough time.

"In so far as the future is concerned, it appears that the educators themselves desire 15 per cent but no case has been made to show that they are or are not entitled to this much.

"It is doubtful, however, whether much work in radio education is in progress. If ways and means are found of using radio for the better education of people, doubtless they will go into effect as soon as the depression is passed. At least it will probably be five or ten years before we can tell exactly what we want."

THE paragraphs about the announcing of the political conventions brought forth the following comments from readers:

"Your radio article of criticism of the chain announcers—such as Mr. Ted Husing—is not agreed upon by me or my many radio acquaintances. I have just written Mr. Husing an apology for what you wrote. We like Mr. Husing's announcements so much, although we do not know him personally, that we invariably turn to his announcing, not only for political broadcasts but for other programs as well. I wish more were like him."

"A word of hasty commendation for your criticism of announcers at Chicago," another letter reads. "The public is not interested in personal opinions. One announcer in particular seemed to think he was as important as the affair he presented. His condescension as he handed over the "mike" to one of the splendid commentators during the convention was very tiresome."

"I LISTENED in with my two sisters to broadcasting during the Democratic convention," a third reader writes, "and this is not the first time we have tried to listen to such a very interesting broadcast. We have on very many occasions wished the announcer would choke. For instance, the continual conversation during some part of the time, when we and our guests would rather have heard the bands or other demonstrations. I second your motion that experienced men be sent to do these jobs in the future."

The Columbia network is watersports conscious today. The first broadcast from an aquaplane will be attempted by Gertrude Ederle as she skims along the Hudson River at 40 miles per hour behind a speed boat piloted by Mrs. Guy Lombardo this afternoon (WMAL, 1:30 o'clock). Ted Husing will describe the final, and parts of the trials and semifinals of the Olympic rowing trials to be held this week on Lake Quinsigamond, near Worcester, Mass. This afternoon's broadcast over WMAL will last for an hour, beginning at 3 o'clock.

WHAT radio announcers talk about when they are not announcing will be revealed over the air at 11 o'clock tonight through WRC when a microphone is installed in the announcer's room of the National Broadcasting Co.'s New York headquarters. This broadcast will give the public its first chance to meet the announcers in other than their official capacities.

GEN. PAUL MALONE ACCEPTS LEGION BID

Alexandria Police to Enforce Address Filing in Moving, Reports Indicate.

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
907 Prince St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 323.

Maj. Gen. Paul B. Malone, U. S. A., commanding officer of the Third Corps Area, Baltimore, has accepted the invitation of Alexandria Post No. 24, American Legion, to act as grand marshal of the parade to be held in connection with the fourteenth annual convention of the Virginia division, American Legion, in Alexandria August 1.

The convention committee of Alexandria Post, which will be host to the convention, has announced that more regular Army troops will be in this parade than have ever before been seen in Alexandria, and that the citizens military training camps of the Third Corps Area will participate. The regular troops will be from Forts Humphreys, Myer, Washington and Meade.

A meeting of the convention committee was held last night in Gadsby's Tavern, when further plans for the convention were discussed. Department Adjutant Glenn Elliott was present, and outlined the program of business for the State.

The last time the State convention was held in Alexandria was in 1926

The Alexandria Police Department will shortly, it is understood, launch a campaign to enforce the ordinance adopted by the city council several years ago, requiring the drivers of vehicles moving household goods to any place in or outside the city limits to make a report to the police headquarters, giving both the old and the new address.

The movement which resulted in this ordinance was launched by the Retail Merchants Association as a means of collecting money due them from persons who moved without leaving an address. Failure to comply with the ordinance carries a fine, but it is said that in recent years few, if any, reports have been made to the police.

Brig. Gen. William Mitchell will be the principal speaker at the weekly luncheon of the Alexandria Kiwanis Club in the George Mason Hotel today. Reports will be submitted by President D. C. Book and Secretary Everett Hellmuth, who have just returned from the national Kiwanis convention in Detroit.

Gen. Mitchell will be introduced by Robert G. Carter, and Mr. Book will preside.

James W. Jackson Council, No. 55, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, last night installed these newly elected officers: Caton Dove, councilor; H. H. Hicks, vice councilor; George Crump, conductor; L. C. Penn, warden; E. B. Lewis, inside sentinel; Arlon E. Parks, outside sentinel; S. A. Forrest, recording secretary, for the thirtieth consecutive term; W. A. Gormer, treasurer; J. F. Pettey, financial secretary; Charles R. Herbert, chaplain; Richard B. Pettit, jr., and W. A. Robey, representatives to State council.

Squad No. 1 of the Alexandria Police Department has just completed a course of revolver practice, with the following result: McDonald and Roberts, experts; Detective Sergt. James Bayliss, Corpl. Mullen, Privates Baker, Boley, Curtis, William Bayliss and John Stewart, sharpshooters. The men have received training both in Alexandria and at the pistol range in Washington, under the direction of Officer A. C. Poulson.

The city council, at its regular meeting this afternoon at 3 o'clock, will it is expected, decide whether it will enforce its recent resolution to compel Robert L. May, owner of the abandoned trolley line between Alexandria and Washington, formerly the Mount Vernon, Alexandria & Washington Railway, to remove its tracks from Alexandria streets and restore the streets. The resolution of the council required the posting of a bond of $50,000 for the work, but this bond has not, it is understood, yet been arranged.

Capt. Ernest Hopkins, of the Salvation Army in Alexandria, has issued an appeal to the public for donations amounting to $2.50 for each child who will be given an outing by his organization this summer.

Montgomery to Provide Tear Gas for Police Force

County Officials Decide to Install Equipment to Prepare for Emergencies; Will Ask Capital Men to Give Instructions.

Montgomery County Bureau of The Post, 9103 Conn. ave., North Chevy Chase, Md.
Telephone Wisconsin 4255

Montgomery County police will be equipped with modern tear-gas apparatus, Police Commissioner John B. Diamond announced last night following an inspection tour of county police substations.

Washington police will be asked to aid in selecting equipment and in teaching members of the county force the intricacies of gas warfare. Purchases of the equipment will be made as soon as possible. The commissioner said, in view of the present unsettled condition of certain elements in the country who pass through the county on the way to Washington, he believed it advisable to be prepared for an emergency.

The lesson of the siege on a house at 506 First street southeast Tuesday night, when a mad gunman held the Washington police force at bay until routed by tear gas bombs, was not lost on the commissioner when he began the inspection tour. Chief of Police Alvie A. Moxley also approved the idea of tear gas equipment and plans for the purchase were made at an impromptu conference.

Commissioner Diamond, who recently was appointed county commissioner in charge of police, made the inspection trip to familiarize himself with the workings of the department and to become betttr acquainted with the members of the force. He has been an earnest student of police methods and problems and has taken steps to improve the efficiency and morale of the force.

The commissioner said he found the department in good shape. He was especially interested in the signal light system evolved by Sergt. Leroy Rodgers for the Bethesda substation.

ARLINGTON DRIVERS GET PERMITS SOON

Licenses Will Be Given to Motorists on Monday at Courthouse.

ARLINGTON COUNTY BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Opportunity for Arlington County (Va.) residents to obtain automobile operators permits as provided by the recent act of the Virginia General Assembly will be afforded Monday in the offices of Sheriff Howard B. Fields at the courthouse.

Then Sergt. P. L. Thornton, of the State police, and State Motor Vehicle Inspector Wayne Carr will assist persons to get the license, which they must have by July 1, 1933, according to the law.

On Tuesday, July 12, the officers will be in the offices of A. L. Kelley & Son at Ballston and on July 16 they will be at the Falls Church Police Station. After July 1, 1933, all applicants will have to take an examination and pay a fee of 50 cents.

A statement made at a meeting of the Arlington County Civic Federation Tuesday by Arthur Orr that the State highway department had failed to keep its promise to have a direct highway from the new Memorial Bridge to Falls Church was contradicted yesterday by Harry C. Saffell.

He quoted a letter from Col. H. G. Shirley, State highway commissioner, which read in part: "The commission not only spent $30,000 in purchasing rights of way, but has expended more than $90,000. It feels that after this expenditure the Federal Government should construct the road through the Fort Myer property to the bridge."

Saffell said that he believes the State commission has done more than it promised.

Delegate to Firemen's Convention in Crash

A Bethesda delegate to the volunteer firemen's convention at Frostburg, and his wife, narrowly escaped injury yesterday while on their way to the convention. The delegate, John M. Smith, chairman of the Bethesda delegation, was driving on the Frederick pike near Gaithersburg when the car skidded and overturned. Neither was hurt and the trip was continued.

FAIRFAX TRIMS PAY OF TWO 15 PER CENT

Revenue Commissioner and Treasurer of County Are Named in Slash.

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Fairfax 166.

The Fairfax County board of supervisors at its monthly meeting yesterday set the salaries of the county treasurer and county commissioner of revenue in accordance with the State law passed at the last session of the Assembly. The law fixed the basic salary according to what was paid the two officials in 1930. The local board was authorized to raise or lower this figure 15 per cent.

The board voted to reduce the two salaries 15 per cent for the balance of this year. The salary of the treasurer was fixed at $5,087.50 for the current year and the salary of the commissioner of revenue fixed at $5,085.25. The salary for the balance of the year is paid monthly, of which the county will pay two-thirds and the State one-third.

The newly created Trial Justice Court was assigned the clerks old quarters in the old County Clerks Office Building. The Fairfax County Chamber of Commerce, which has occupied these rooms, was requested to vacate prior to July 15. The trade body was given the privilege of using the old board room in the same building as its headquarters.

County Manager F. N. Larkin reported that the uncollected county road taxes for the past two years totaled $42,826.42 and the balance in that fund at present was approximately $8,000. The uncollected taxes in the regular county funds totaled $23,246.60. The board voted to ask the permission of the County Circuit Court to sell three abandoned county gravel pits, one near Annandale, another at Gum Springs and the other on Edsel road.

The contract for the traffic survey by the Federal Bureau of Public Roads which has been conducted for the past year was extended until the latter part of September with the understanding that Fairfax County was relieved from any other contribution of either funds or personnel.

Gaithersburg Barn Destroyed by Fire

Pumphouse Also Is Razed; Damage Estimated at $10,000.

Fire last night destroyed the large cow barn of Douglas Diamond, brother of the Montgomery County police commissioner, near Gaithersburg, on the Quince Orchard road. It also razed a nearby pumphouse and badly damaged the tile silo of the farm. Other buildings were saved by the Gaithersburg-Washington Grove and Rockville fire departments. Damage was estimated at $10,000.

Handicapped by lack of water, the firemen battled the flames with water hauled from Gaithersburg in milk trucks and poured into the booster tanks of the fire engines.

Approximately 50 tons of hay and 5 tons of feed were stored in the loft of the barn. Milking equipment and fittings also were destroyed. The milking of some 65 head of pure-bred cows had been nearly completed and only about 5 were in the barn when the fire was discovered. These were driven to safety.

5 Hurt as Trucks Crash in Maryland

Woman Is Among Injured; Washingtonian Victim of Heavy Collision.

Havre de Grace, Md., July 6 (A.P.).—Four men and a woman were brought to the Havre de Grace Hospital today for medical treatment following a collision between two trucks on which they were riding on the Philadelphia road between Abington and Aberdeen.

Those treated for cuts and bruises were George Bell, Negro, of Bloxon, Va.; Morris Greshensen, of 544 Irving street northwest, Washington; Carroll Idhammer, of Alexandria, Va.; Charles Cross, of Owings Mills, and Mrs. Gertrude Clemens, of Randallstown.

Police said Bell attempted to pass a truck when his heavy vehicle, bound for the Eastern Shore, struck Cross' truck. A short time before Bell had given Idhammer and Greshensen a ride. Mrs. Clemens was riding with Cross.

SIX IN HYATTSVILLE TRIED IN RUM CASES

2 Women Fined $50 Each; Wheeler Elected Mayor of North Brentwood.

A father and son and a mother and daughter were among the six persons tried yesterday in Hyattsville Police Court on charges of possession of liquor.

Mrs. Julia Stuck and her daughter, Mrs. Katherine Sauberlich, both of Bladensburg, were fined $50 each. Leon White, of Takoma Park, was also fined $50, but his father, Luther White, was freed on similar charges.

Charles Diggs, of Fairmont Heights, was fined $50, and Charles Dustin, of Laurel, asked a jury trial.

Mrs. Myrtle Resch, of Baltimore, received slight lacerations yesterday when the car in which she was riding was in collision with two trucks on Baltimore boulevard near College Park. Meyer Freishtat, who gave his address as 429 Kenyon street northwest, was arrested on charges of reckless driving. He was the alleged operator of one of the trucks.

No action will be taken against the police of Brentwood on charges that they have been stopping automobiles leaving William F. Burke's roadhouse, the Brentwood town council has decided. The council held that Burke, a former Washington policeman, did not have sufficient evidence to back up his accusations. Burke said the policemen stopped automobiles leaving his place and asked the occupants if they had been able to buy liquor in the roadhouse.

The Granges of Prince Georges and Charles Counties will have a joint picnic on August 11 at Chapel Point in place of the August meeting of the Prince Georges unit, it has been decided. The committee on arrangements includes P. E. Clark, assistant county agent for Prince Georges; Mrs. Joseph H. Blandford, Alex Gude, P. D. Brown, agent for Charles County; Neil Hamilton and Miss Adelaide Gray.

By a vote of 3 to 1, former Councilman Julius Wheeler has been elected Mayor of North Brentwood over Councilman Peter Randall. Wheeler received 143 votes to Randall's 42. Jerome Thomas was elected treasurer withotu opposition, as were Frank Holmes from the Second Ward, and the Rev. William H. Thomas from the Third.

Prince Georges County will take over the maintenance of the road from Silesia School to River View, on the Potomac, if the right of way can be obtained, the county commissioners have decided. The road is 3½ miles long. A bridge, to cost not more than $1,700, has been authorized by the board to be built on the Largo road over the Southwest Branch by John Berberich.

Poles to carry the street car trolley wires have already been placed at the side of Rhode Island avenue in Mount Rainier, in preparation for the removal of the poles in the center of the street. Arrangements are also being made for paving the center portion between the car tracks.

RKO-KEITH'S

"WHAT PRICE HOLLYWOOD," RKO-Pathe's picturization of an original story by Adela Rogers St. John, adapted to the screen by Gene Fowler and Rowland Brown, starring Constance Bennett, supported by Lowell Sherman. Directed by George Cukor. Reviewed Wednesday night by Dorothea Lewis.

This expose of the high prices of Hollywood (the newest movie trend) is well worth its admission charge, for it boasts two stellar performances in the work of Constance Bennett and Lowell Sherman, lots and lots of laughs and sustained interest.

Adela Rogers St. John's "original" story is too long and a bit patched up here and there from "real life" stories and studio gossip, but it's exceedingly entertaining, reflecting, as it does, all the extremes of the cinema capital. From satirical humor it moves to tragedy, back to fun, then to moral-pointing, takes time out for jabs at fans and flickers and somehow reaches a happy ending.

Mary Evans, the prettiest waitress in the Brown Derby, gets her big break by waiting on Director Maximilian Carey when he's drunk and impressionable. From a bit for which he hires her, fires her and hires her again, Mary goes rapidly up, to become "America's pal" and to marry a millionaire playboy, Lonny Borden.

Having reached the pinnacle, Mary, according to the laws of gravity and Hollywood, has to come down again. She starts by losing Lonny follows it up by rumored scandal because she befriends Max Carey, now jobless and perpetually drunk, and reaches a grand climax of headline publicity when Carey kills himself in her home.

We're quite ready to go completely overboard for Constance Bennett in this one. The erstwhile icy one has melted into warmth and merriment and moments of impishness, and you'll like her Garbo murmurings to a pictured Gable and her nice Dietrichian singing.

Lowell Sherman is at his picture-stealing again, well supplied with an excellent character part and highly amusing dialogue. Gregory Ratoff and Neil Hamilton are better than good at their respective jobs.

A newsreel and a cartoon comedy complete a worth-while bill.

ABOUT THE SHOWSHOPS

With NELSON B. BELL

TOO many, "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm" may suggest just another good, old-time story put into film form, but to Signor Orangelo Ratto, manager of Loew's Palace Theater, where it is scheduled to open tomorrow, its coming is a matter of far greater significance. It marks a sort of hiatus in the development of creative showmanship, as you might say; it should inspire to deeds of greatness that somehow seem to be absent.

To follow Signor Ratto's trend of thought it is necessary to go back 19 years in the history of the theater in Washington. Lacking one year of two decades ago, then, Angie was enjoying his first job in a showshop—that of prop boy at the Columbia Theater, then dedicated to the furtherance of the art of the stage, rather than the screen. The first gigantic—or so it seemed to him at the time—production upon which he was called to expend earnest thought and effort was "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm." The immediate problem that confronted him was the stage coach used in the play. It was too big and cumbersome to get into the theater and backstage!

It will be recalled by all old-timers familiar with the structural peculiarities of the Columbia that stage productions had to be taken through the lobby and backstage through a door adjoining those used by the public in entering the auditorium, which latter remain the same now as then.

Signor Ratto finally solved his problem by knocking down the coach and lugging it backstage in something like 100 separate and detached pieces—most of which he succeeded in getting put back together again in something remotely resembling their original form.

Now Signor Ratto marvels that the much more elaborate production to be thown upon his silver sheet can be brought into the theater, coach and all, in a can, carried by a messenger boy. The only feat he is able to summon to mind comparable to his achievement in connection with the original "Rebecca" would be to dismantle the messenger boy, a performance in which, regrettably, there appears at the moment to be no ever-towering utilitarian purpose or value!

Just as he was finishing his act with Miss Mona in the final presentation of the vaudeville bill at the Earle Tuesday night, Herman Hyde, the musical comedian with all the trick, fall-away instruments, received a wire from New York advising him that he had only that hour become the father of an 8-pound baby son. Whereupon he proceeded to go crazy right!

In honor of the event, George Dewey Washington, the barytone, who follows him on the bill, added "Mighty Lak' a Rose" to his repertoire. Run the lyrics over to yourself!

With Constance Bennett already occupying the screen at RKO-Keith's in "What Price Hollywood," the remaining attractions for the new week in the downtown, first-run motion picture theaters will be as follows: Earle, James Cagney in "Winner Take All," and Al Trahan headlining the vaudeville; Loew's Fox, Violet Heming and Alexander Kirkland in "Almost Married," and Conchita Montenegro in "On the Riviera" revue, with Wesley Eddy; Metropolitan, Zane Grey's "South Sea Adventures" and Lupe Velez and Leo Carillo in "Broken Wing;" Columbia, Anthony Bushell and Marion Shilling in "Shop Angel;" Palace, Marian Nixon and Ralph Bellamy in "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm."

There are said to be many laughs to be had from Homer Croy's latest book, "The Last Word." It is a collection of real and imaginary headstone inscriptions, published by "Chic" Sale.

Graucho Marx's advance epitaph is, "I hope they buried me near a straight man."

And then there's Irvin S. Cobb's: "Here lies Irvin S. Cobb, not that it makes any difference." And Oliver Hardy's, teammate of Stan Laurel: "I shouldn't have et that." And another amusing one by Rex Bell: "After Hollywood, nothing is a surprise!"

And for all of us chatter writers, just to beat you to it, I suggest:

Still lying, lying still!

BOLSTERED NATS MEET TRIBE IN TWIN BILL TODAY

This MORNING with SHIRLEY L. POVICH

IT'S an ill wind that blows nobody good. When Bill Dickey stirred the breezes at Griffith Stadium Monday with the right that broke Carl Reynolds' jaw, it was a break also for Dave Harris.

Harris, the Greensboro sheriff, has been arresting everybody's attention lately with the lengthy wallops he has been dropping in all sectors of the park, and when Dickey incapacitated Reynolds for a period of six weeks, give or take a few days, the punch catapulted the sheriff into the Nats' line-up.

The sheriff is not the man to gloat over another's misfortune, and indeed it took a half dozen older heads to restrain him from replying to Dickey in kind when the New York catcher connected with Reynolds' chin, but when the heat of combat subsided it was gleefully apparent to Harris that his chance had come to play the outfield as a regular.

Dave Harris' greatest admirer is Dave Harris. The sheriff, who wears the badge of his office every offseason down in North Carolina, and who is famed in that locality for handling obstreperous mountaineers on pay night, holds no illusions about his hitting. In Dave Harris' mind, he's the answer to a manager's prayers if it is hitting that the manager is worrying about.

"Put me in the line-up and I'll hit .450 in this league," Harris has often told Walter Johnson. "I'm a good pinch hitter, but I can't go in there hot and cold and keep my average up. I've got to be in there every day to do this club some good. I'm fast, too; don't worry about that."

The sheriff may be exaggerating a bit, but he isn't lying. He can hit, as his .380 average testifies. Two years ago he led all the American League pinch hitters with a mark of better than .350, and a pinch hitter who can maintain an average around .300 is a valuable specimen of slugger.

With the Nats, Harris has never been able to oust one of the regular outfielders despite his slugging ability. His specialty has been pinch-hitting and usually he doesn't go to work until 4:45 p. m., when the Nats are a couple of runs behind and in need of a base hit by somebody.

But in his last three games, with Sammy West recuperating from an injured back, Harris has been permitted to play full time and the sheriff has responded with two home runs, a triple, double and two singles in ten times at the plate. That is slugging in anybody's league, including Walter Johnson's, and the Nats' manager needed little persuasion to include Dave in the future line-ups.

Harris gives the ball a grand ride when he connects, and his .380 average illustrates that he doesn't always miss. He's better against left handers than right handers, but Clark Griffith opines he'd be as great a hitter as Al Simmons if he didn't let a lot of good ones go by. Like all free swingers, the sheriff often strikes out, but he can miss one pitch by three feet and knock the next one for three bases and occasion no surprise among the league's pitchers.

The sheriff came up to the major leagues as a third baseman with the Braves five years ago, but when they wouldn't let him wear shinguards, breast protector and mask in the infield, he gave it up for outfielding and concentration on his hitting.

There were rumors at Biloxi that the Nats would send Harris to Chattanooga to bolster that club, but the reports didn't worry the sheriff.

"They'll never let me out of this league," said Dave. "I'm too good a hitter. They'd have to get waivers on me and they'd never get by Connie Mack. I'll stay in this league for a long while."

Joe Boley Is Released Outright by Cleveland

Cleveland, July 5 (A.P.).—Joe Boley, former Philadelphia Athletics shortstop, was given an unconditional release today by the Cleveland Indians. Boley was signed by the Tribe June 11 in the hopes he would bolster the infield.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—A $250,000 insurance policy was placed today on Gene Sarazen, British and United States open golf champion, by his manager, Ray McCarthy. One hundred thousand of the amount covers Gene's hands alone.

Mitchell and Muehleisen Favored

Top Seeded Players in D. C. Championship Near Finals.

Rain Delays Matches; Play to Be Resumed Tomorrow.

THE orbits of two young tennis players, one of them from San Francisco and the other from Washington—Dolf Muehleisen and Dooly Mitchell—are swinging closer and closer each day as the annual District of Columbia tennis championship continues on the courts at Wardman Park Hotel, and it begins to appear likely that they will collide with a shattering tennis explosion Sunday afternoon, with the championship at stake.

Muehleisen has bowled over four local players of note in his ruthless march to the quarter-final round. In the first round he was given a default over Tom O'Neill, then swamped Youngson Yen, Chinese Legation attache, 6—2, 6—0, and Harry Hill, a public parks player, 6—2, 6—1. Following the defeat of Hill he went on to set aside Gilbert Hunt, best of the local youngsters, 6—2, 6—3.

Ritzenberg Among Victims.

Mitchell's march has been less impressive, but local fans know that his early round performances are not always to be compared with his later stage accomplishments. In the first round he beat Hy Ritzenberg, 6—1, 6—3, then Lieut. Tom Sherburne, Army tournament semifinalists, 6—0, 6—4, and finally, Maurice O'Neill, after a great deal of trouble, 7—3, 8—6.

Both players face stormy paths on the way to their hoped-for crossroads, Mitchell particularly, for he must meet Bud Markey in the next round. Markey has not been very active in tournament tennis this season, excepting his win of the Middle Atlantic doubles, but his game is at its peak and there is a possibility of a recurrence of last year's quarter-final round of the District tournament, when Markey defeated Mitchell in a stunning upset. If victorious against Markey, Mitchell will meet the winner of the Tom Mangan-Gene Hermann match.

Muehleisen Meets Farrin.

There will be an Army-Navy duel when Muehleisen resumes play, for he will meet Ensign Jimmy Farrin, a Navy Leech Cup player. If successful against Farrin, Muehleisen will meet either his Leech Cup doubles partner, Lieut. Stanley Robinson, champion of the Army; Tony Latona, or Bob Considine. Robinson and Latona are a round behind the field. They attempted to start their match yesterday morning, but rain checked them after two games. The winner meets Considine.

There will be no play today while the courts are being tuned up for an active week-end of tennis, which will consummate in the crowning of the forty-fifth District champion.

McManus Is Hero In Beating Browns

Red Sox Manager Doubles to Clinch 5-4 Victory, Climaxing Rallies.

Boston, July 6 (A.P.).—Manager Marty McManus, of the Red Sox, returned to the game today and brought victory to his charges when he doubled with two out in the ninth to score Roy Johnson and chalk up a 5-to-4 win over the St. Louis Browns.

The Browns had a 4-to-0 lead at the end of the first half of the fourth inning. Thereafter Boston made all of its ten hits off George Blaeholder. On the other hand, "Lefty" Weiland, of the Hose, shut out the Browns and restricted them to three hits for the balance of the game.

Arthur Scharein, late of the Texas League, making his debut at third base for the Browns, got a double and a single on his first two trips to the plate.

FIELD OF 105 IN CANADA OPEN GOLF

OTTAWA, Ontario, July 6 (A.P.).—Headed by Walter Hagen, defending champion, and the field of American professionals who have made the event a happy hunting ground for the past dozen years, 105 players lined up today for the start of the annual Canadian open golf championship tomorrow.

Hagen, fresh from victory in the Western open, had failed to check in tonight.

With the sole exception of Gene Sarazen, new British and American open champion, who decided not to compete, the field for the 72 holes of medal play over the 6,770 yards of the par 73 Ottawa Hunt Club course listed all the prominent professionals available in the United States and Canada.

International Touch Added.

The international touch was provided by Jose Jurado, diminutive Argentinian, and Tomekichi Miyamoto, Japanese professional.

From the United States came the cream of the professional list—Billy Burke, 1931 American open champion; Leo Diegel, four times winner of the Canadian open; Bobby Cruickshank and Macdonald Smith, runners-up, respectively, to Sarazen in the American and British open; as well as Phil Perkins, the British amateur, now a professional who seemed for two hours to have won the American classic.

Two former American open champions, Tommy Armour and Johnny Farrell, also were among the entries, along with George Von Elm, who started the "gentleman golfer" clan; Horton Smith, Ed Dudley, Tony Manero, Mortie and Olin Dutra, "Wiffy" Cox, Al Watrous and Fred Morrison.

Canada's main defense against this brilliant field was Lex Robinson, newly crowned Canadian professional champion, and a scattering of pros and amateurs. No Canadian has managed to keep the open championship in the dominion since the World War.

SEVERE TEST TONIGHT FOR GROBMEIER

THE final chapter in the rise and fall of Fred Grobmeier is expected to be read tonight at Griffith Stadium when the scrawny scissors expert, whose winning streak here is as long as his legs, meets rough and ready Gino Garibaldi, who shows signs of replacing Grobmeier as a local favorite.

The match is one of five exhibitions which will begin at 8:30 o'clock. Women, with paying escorts, will be admitted free of charge. The feature match goes on about 10:30, if nothing untoward happens in the preliminaries.

Injun to Try Knuckles On Blackstock.

The preliminaries this week should be tolerably good. An amusing match should be the Chief White Feather-Marshall Blackstock affair. Both boys go in for a quantity of bareknuckle stuff and if luck is with them may land some blows tonight. White Feather still holds the record for real venom in the ring, with his clean knockout on the point of Tiger Nelson's chin last fall. Blackstock is another good punching bag.

Rudy Dusek meets Lou Plummer, one of the Notre Dame football players who made good. Lou beat Rudy's little brother, Ernie Dusek, and the honor of the Dusek family is likely to be avenged, for Rudy is still an unhealthy gent to meet in anybody's rassling ring.

Bronowicz Meets Jack Zarnos.

Frank Brunowicz, who seems to be building up a following here, meets Jack Zarnos, and Vic Christy, a convert from amateurism, dabbles with paunchy Pat O'Shocker.

But it is the feature which carries the big punch tonight. Garibaldi is as good as any wrestler extant today. He has everything except a brimful of personality—or he probably would be champion, for he can do things that Londos, Lewis and the other high salaried boys dassent.

Radio Chains Attack Ruling Limiting Fight Broadcasts

NEW YORK, July 6 (A.P.).—The New York State Athletic Commission's decision that none but "boxing experts" could broadcast accounts of boxing matches in this State in the future brought statements today from the major networks mildly-threatening war and definitely charging "a serious blow at the freedom of broadcasting."

"The National Broadcasting Co. always has and always will continue to select its own announcers for fight broadcasts," said John F. Royal, vice president in charge of programs.

Charles Francis Coe, novelist, and Graham McNamee broadcast for N. B. C. the account of the match in which Jack Sharkey won the heavyweight title from Max Schmeling, and to which the athletic commission expressed its objections by banning all but "boxing sports writers, judges or referees" from future broadcasts.

Although N. B. C. is understood to have a long-term agreement with Madison Square Garden regarding the broadcasting of matches, it was indicated that the company might ignore such broadcasts in the future rather than submit to outside direction.

The commission's ruling was the second reverse in a sports way that the broadcasters have encountered recently. Previously twelve major Eastern colleges decided to forgo permission for the broadcasting of football games because of the adverse effect on gate receipts.

The statement of the Columbia Broadcasting Co., which did not put the Sharkey-Schmeling fight on the air, said:

"The State Athletic Commission, in composing a virtual censorship, has dealt a serious blow at the freedom of broadcasting. This arbitrary ruling undoubtedly will serve to handicap the broadcasters' service to the public. It is no more logical for the commission to choose or to approve broadcasters of fights than to choose or to approve those who cover fights for the press."

Olympic Test Today for 9 Crews

California Is Choice, With Penn A. C. Regarded Highly.

Four Trial Heats on Tap Today; Finals on Saturday.

By HENRY McLEMORE.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 6 (U. P.).—Nine beautifully conditioned and confident crews, representing the pick of the country's college and club eights, were encamped on the shores of Lake Quinsigamond tonight, awaiting the Olympic trials tomorrow. Four trial heats are scheduled tomorrow, with semifinals Friday and the finals Saturday.

A stroll along boathouse row just after sundown today revealed a nine-sided argument. Each of the crews—California Varsity, California Jayvees, Washington, Harvard, Yale, Columbia Grads, Syracuse, Princeton and Penn A. C.—had its backers, who believe that when the competition is completed Saturday their choice will have stood the test and earned the right to represent the United States in the 1932 Olympiad at Los Angeles.

Bears Rated Choices At 2 to 1.

California's Golden Bears, who won the intercollegiate championship at Poughkeepsie going away, have the most supporters, and tonight are 2-to-1 favorites. The Bears have been awarded the post of favorite not only because of the magnificent display of power and rhythm they unleashed at Poughkeepsie but because California crews have a way of reaching their peak in an Olympic year. This year the Bears have a particularly strong incentive, for the Olympic championship will be contested on the Long Beach Channel in their own State. The Californians will use the same boating they employed at Poughkeepsie.

The veteran Penn A. C. boatload is favored to come through if the Californians are bumped off. Unbeaten in their last 23 starts, the Quakers are here to disprove the old belief that "cocktail" trained club crews are always inferior to college boatloads. Six of the nine men in the boat have been rowing together since 1929, and were members of the crew that won the international championship in 1930.

Following is the program for tomorrow's preliminary heats of the Olympic rowing eliminations, the numbers signifying the rowing lanes:

First heat, 4 p. m.—No. 1, Columbia University Rowing Club; No. 2, Harvard.

Second heat, 4:30 p. m.—No. 1, Princeton University Rowing Association; No. 2, University of California.

Third heat, 5 p. m.—No. 1, Penn Athletic Club; No. 2, Syracuse University.

Fourth heat, 5:30 p. m.—No. 1, University of Washington; No. 2, Yale; No. 3, California junior varsity.

Victory of Pirates Protested by Giants

Pittsburgh, July 6 (A.P.).—Bill Terry, manager of the New York Giants, announced today he had forwarded a protest of yesterday's Pirates-Giants game to John A. Heydler, president of the National League.

The protest is based on Terry's contention that some of the Pirate players assisted Tony Piet, Pittsburgh second baseman, back to the plate after he had collided with Catcher Frank Hogan in the sixth inning.

The Pirates won the game.

U. S. May Exempt Eastman in Trials

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Ben Eastman's record-breaking feats on the track this year probably have won him a place on the United States Olympic Team for 800 meters without the necessity of competing in the final team tryouts at Polo Alto, Calif., July 15 and 16.

If the rest of the selection committee feel the same way as Joseph T. England, committee chairman, and Lawson Robertson, team coach, an exception will be made in Eastman's case to further his ambition to win both the 800 and 400 meter titles in the Los Angeles games.

"Big Ben's" coach, Robert L. (Dink) Templeton, of Stanford, already had said Eastman would compete only in the 400-meter trials. He was defeated at that distance in the intercollegiates last week by Bill Carr, of Pennsylvania, who won by 2 yards in the world record time of 47 seconds.

On the record, Eastman is the world's outstanding runner at 800 meters and 880 yards. He is undefeated at those distances in his two-year, intercollegiate career, and has set world marks in both during the present season.

Pirates Win 5th and 6th Straight

Lengthen Lead With Double Defeat of Giants, 4-2, 3-1.

Cubs Beats Phils as Brooklyn Splits With Reds.

PITTSBURGH, July 6 (A.P.).—The Pittsburgh Pirates took a firmer grip on first place in the National League today, sweeping a double-header with the New York Giants, 4 to 2 and 3 to 1. The double victory was the Pirates' sixth successive triumph and the thirteenth in their last fifteen games.

In the first game Steve Swetonic held the Giants to six hits to win his ninth game of the season. Larry French, pitching the nightcap, held the Giants to eight scattered hits while his teammates bunched four of their eleven blows off Adolfo Luque in the sixth and seventh innings.

WORKMAN RIDES FALL APPLE TO EASY WIN AT ARLINGTON

Choice Beats Dyak by 3 Lengths

I Say and Higher Set Early Pace, Finish Out of Money.

Nituma Wins on Foul by Esseff in Latonia Cofeature.

ARLINGTON PARK, Ill., July 6 (A.P.).—C. V. Whitney's Fall Apple, confidently ridden by Jockey R. Workman, won the Oak Park purse at 1 mile by three lengths today. Dyak was second and Swift and True finished third.

I Say and Higher were the early pacemakers, but soon tired rounding into the home stretch. Fall Apple, which had been third, moved up in a commanding position, and easily drew away from his rivals. Fall Apple was heavily backed by a coterie of New York players and paid only $4.26. He ran the mile in 1:36 4-5 over a fast strip.

First Disqualification At Latonia.

The first disqualification of the current meeting marked the running of the Florence purse, cofeature, when Dixiana's Esseff was set back in favor of Sewell Combs' Nituma. Esseff lead throughout, but appeared to interfere with the fast-closing Nituma while tiring badly at the end.

By virtue of the steward's action Oswego Princess was awarded second money and Cousin Nora third place. Nituma was a 3-to-2 favorite in the betting.

Blenheim Coasts Home At Empire.

Empire City Race Track, July 6 (A.P.).—Blenheim, the Wheatley Stable's greatly improved colt, hung up his fourth straight victory when he outclassed three other route travelers in the Empire City handicap mile and a quarter feature of the opening day program here this afternoon. With Hank Mills sitting still, the Son of Blandford coasted home with four lengths to spare over the Audley Farms' Rocky News, to capture the winner's share of $3,950. Pencader, from the Brandywine Stable, lost the place by two lengths and beat off Wishing Star, a James Butler colorbearer, for the short end of the purse.

Blenheim's triumph was recorded with greater ease than were his successes in the Brooklyn and Brookdale handicaps at Aqueduct. He covdred the 10 furlongs in 2:03 3-5 and was the 11-to-20 favorite.

STOCKS MARK RALLY IN BRISKER TRADING

Buying of Foreign Loans Adds General Stimulus to Rising Trend.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Ignoring a new low for steel ingot production, stocks took their cue from the strong foreign bond list today and indulged in a rally which, for the present market, was fairly active, especially during the late trading

Wall street had distinct hopes that news from Lausanne would be constructive and with this as leverage, stocks improved rather consistently during the afternoon.

Shorts apparently were impressed by buying of European government bonds coming from foreign sources. Doubtless the inference was that purchasers on the other side of the ocean were acting on information rather than impulse; at any rate, the gains made by German loans seemed too large to overlook. Corn, wheat and cotton contributed liberally to the general improvement.

Phone Upsets Market.

American Telephone, with a break of nearly 2 points to 75, a new record low, made the market uneasy during the first hour or so, but resistance of that leader at the quotation mentioned found other prominent shares hardening and the tone thereafter was firm. Telephone closed ¾ point net higher.

United States Steel, American Can, Westinghouse, Eastman, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, National Biscuit, Bethlehem, Allied Chemical and Du Pont rose from a major fraction to more than a point net. American Tobacco shares were stronger coincident with appearance of a bullish earnings estimate for the first half. Other tobaccos moved sympathetically. Oils were helped by further statistical improvement and the ability of prices to hold.

International Shoe was run down half a dozen points and closed near the low. Procter & Gamble preferred broke 9 on a few odd-lot sales. Preference issues generally were erratic. Total business amounted to 727,930 shares.

Steel Operation Lower.

The Iron Age estimate of steel ingot activity placed operations at 12 per cent of theoretical capacity, which level, said the review, was probably the lowest on record. Fourth of July shutdowns were largely responsible for the shrinkage from 15 per cent a week ago and some immediate pickup is logical, but there seems to be little hope that any resemblance to an important change for the better can occur before late summer or early autumn.

Current conditions have aroused unusual interest in the action to be taken later this month on preferred dividends of the two leading companies.

Automobile output tapered off toward the end of June. Some manufacturers who heretofore have not been interested in low-priced cars are reported to be considering introduction of such lines as a stimulant to income, but Wall street anticipates a lean year for that industry. General Motors' sales figures for last month are due Friday.

Export Copper Market Price War Is Waged

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—A miniature price war continues in the export copper market as an outcome of the recent withdrawal of several members from Copper Exporters, Inc., copper trade interests said today.

It was reported that the producers who quit the foreign selling body have continued this week to sell copper at 5 cents a pound abroad. This is the lowest price in history, and a figure which the copper trade says means little or no profit to the sellers.

The Belgian Katanga Co. is said to have been the first to offer metal at this price, which was promptly met by the other retiring members.

THE MARKETS AT A GLANCE

What the Stock Market Did

	Wed.	Tues.
Number of advances	229	123
Number of declines	120	196
Stocks unchanged	121	114
Total issues traded	470	433

Stocks.

Steel ingot low is ignored by stocks in a distinctive rally, apparently inspired by hope of a favorable reparations settlement at Lausanne. Net gains were small. Advance arouses shorts to action.

Bonds.

Foreign loans again dominate the market, adding two to four points gains. Debt parley outlook gives impetus to rise. Domestic bonds are firm, except utility groups, which closed a fraction lower.

Curb.

Trading developed strength after early uncertainty. Oils and utilities firmed. American Gas & Electric common recorded gains. Sales totaled 80,000 shares.

Wheat.

Black rust menace and the worst harvest weather in ten years were factors in boosting grain values. Price of wheat mounted two cents for best grades. Corn and oats made advances.

Cotton.

Trend was again upward, and the market climbed $1.50 per bale. Advances recorded for all deliveries, netting 27 to 30 points. Crop outlook and stronger financial prices are factors in the improvement.

QUITTING GOLD FEAR IS ENDED IN AMERICA

European Withdrawals Halt as Foreign Balances of Dollars Are Drained.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

The possibility that the United States might be forced to abandon the gold standard now is conceded to be ended, the Monthly Business Review of Lincoln National Bank states, adding that the run on the American gold stock slowed down and virtually halted during the third week in June.

Foreign depositors in that week pulled down their short-term credits in this country to what amounts to a working balance and it is therefore presumed that they own no more dollars which they can afford to turn into gold for shipment home.

Foreign short-term credits here are now estimated at approximately $700,000,000, the Review states, and the total is divided between many countries. This is thought to be approximately sufficient to handle only current international transactions.

New Investment Firm.

Announcement of a new investment securities firm, Slauson & White, was made yesterday by Don W. Slauson, of that partnership. Mr. Slauson, with two associates, has established an investment security business of its own under the foregoing title with office at 309 People's Life Insurance Building, Fourteenth and H streets northwest.

The firm is specialising as Washington representatives of the Independence Fund of North America, Inc., with headquarters at 1 Cedar street, New York City, which is designed to afford means of acquiring economic independence through planned savings, planned earnings and cumulative profits based upon earning securities.

Charles Delmar, president of Lincoln Service Corporation, industrial bankers, announces the election of Frank B. Severance, cashier of the First National Bank of Gaithersburg, Md., to the board of directors of Lincoln Service Corporation.

Name for Operations.

At a meeting of directors of the First National Old Colony Corporation yesterday, it was voted, for convenience of operation, to conduct its business in the New England States except Connecticut, under the name of the First of Boston Corporation of Massachusetts and in the remaining States and abroad under the name of the First of Boston Corporation. These corporate changes do not involve any change of policy, personnel or the number or location of offices.

Elliott McEldowney, for the last seven years associated with the advertising department of Henry L. Doherty & Co. and Cities Service Co., has succeeded Frank Le Roy Blanchard as director of advertising and news. Mr. Blanchard, long prominent in national advertising circles, is retiring. He has been in charge of the Doherty and Cities Service advertising activities for many years and Mr. McEldowney has been his assistant.

At their monthly meeting yesterday the board of directors of Washington Loan & Trust Co. declared the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent on the capital stock of the company, payable August 1. Books will be closed for transfer of stock from July 26 to August 1, both dates inclusive.

FOREIGN BONDS LEAD AGAIN IN PRICE RISE

Issues Advance 2 to 4 Points in Dominating Markets; Domestics Firm.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Another strong upsurge in foreign government bonds, with many issues gaining 2 to 4 points, dominated interest in the bond market today. Buying was based on reports that an early agreement on reparations was likely at the Lausanne conference.

Domestic bonds were firm, except for the utility group, which shaded Tuesday's closing prices by a small fraction, and U. S. Governments which eased somewhat on reports from Washington that the final outcome of present negotiations over relief legislation was in doubt.

Transactions totaled $11,961,000 par value against $9,813,000 yesterday.

Foreigns Stir Interest.

While there have been many past disappointments based on splurges of strength in foreign government bonds, which frequently attract considerable speculation, investment bankers showed keen interest in the strength of the foreign list today.

German government bonds went to new highs for the year. The 7s closed at 67 for a gain of 3¼ points and the 5½s closed 3 points higher at 47½. A number of German state and municipal bonds moved up 2 to 6 points.

British government bonds reacted 1 to 2¾ points, respectively, for the 5½s and the 5s, and French government loans were barely steady. But other foreign governments followed the lead of the German classification.

Austrians Are Up.

Austrian 7s were up 2 points. Cuba Republic 5½s gained more than 2. Gains of 2 to 4 points were made by Kingdom of Denmark 4½s and 6s, Kingdom of Italy 6s and Japanese government 5½s.

Nickel Plate 6s led an advance in the railroad list, gaining 8¾ points on unconfirmed rumors that the Interstate Commerce Commission would favor consolidation of that road with the Chesapeake & Ohio under the latter's grouping plan.

Second grade rails were bid up fairly actively, but first grades were quiet. Industrial and utility bonds showed little change.

CURB PRICES HIGHER DESPITE EARLY LOSS

Uncertainty Is Followed by Strength With Many Issues Recording Gains.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—The curb maket developed considerable strength in the afternoon trading today, after moving uncertainly during the earlier hours of the session.

Oils were firm almost from the start, as the weekly statistics showed a further drop of 51,800 barrels in daily average crude production. In the aggregate, however, trading remained light. The day's turnover was about 80,000 shares.

Standard Oil of Indiana closed at 18¾, up ½, and only ½ under the year's high. Humble rose a point, and International Petroleum rose fractionally. Gulf, however, sagged nearly a point in realizing.

Utilities generally stiffened in the late trading, although a few lightly traded preferred issues which sold off in the morning failed to come back. American Gas & Electric common closed up ⅝, while the preferred finished at 60, off 4½. Electric Bond & Share common was also up fractionally, while the preferred issues were lower.

Some of the foreign issues were again in demand. British American Tobacco "B" gained nearly 2 points, and Brazilian Traction advanced ¾ in a fair turnover Woolworth, Ltd., advanced ⅝ to 10½, or within ¼ of the year's top. Swift International, foreign affiliate of Swift & Co., rose more than a point, while Swift & Co. shares advanced ½ point.

Deere gained a fraction, apparently in sympathy with a brisk upturn in wheat. Carnation Co. and Columbia Pictures were other firm spots. Mead Johnson, however, tumbled more than 4 points, and Great Atlantic & Pacific lost 3.

Common Dividend Cut By Machine & Foundry

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Directors of the American Machine & Foundry Co. today ordered a quarterly dividend of 20 cents a share on the common stock, as reduced from 35 cents previously.

The quarterly dividend of International Cigar Machinery Co., a subsidiary, was reduced to 37½ cents from 62½ cents. Both dividends are payable August 1 to stock of record July 20.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

(Associated Press.)

London.—Continued profit taking and hesitation owing to uncertainty at Lausanne caused business to slacken. Most sections declined, but German bonds and cable and wireless were firm exceptions. The closing was irregular.

Paris.—After an irregular opening due to Wall street uneasiness, prices on the bourse rallied, being encouraged by the rise in rentes. Initial losses were wiped out, with bank shares and electrical issues the firmest. International shares and oils were steady. The close was firm.

Berlin.—Prices on the boerse were generally firm and the market closed cheerful.

GRAIN VALUES CLIMB ON HARVEST MENACE

Black Rust Report Is Factor Also in Price Gains for Wheat.

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—Reports of the worst harvest weather in ten years for United States winter wheat southwest did much to lift grain values today.

News of black rust spreading in Manitoba Province, Canada, had an additional bullish effect. Upturns in wheat prices, however, were apparently due less to any forceful buying than to absence of hedging pressure, receipts at primary points today totaling but 984,000 bushels against 2,833,000 a year ago.

Wheat closed firm, 1½ to 2 cents above yesterday's finish; corn, 1 to 1½ up; oats, ½ to ⅞ advanced, and provisions showing a rise of 10 to 15 cents.

Highest prices of the day in wheat came just at the last. Increased realization of the damaging results of further torrential rainfalls in harvest regions already soaking for weeks past acted as the main stimulus.

Estimate in Texas.

One specific instance was a report that in Texas territory where the crop was originally estimated at 40,000,000 bushels, some experts now put the maximum at only 14,000,000 or under. Meanwhile, advices were at hand that unwelcome rains had been general up into Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska, as well as far through the Ohio Valley.

New development of black rust was heard from not only in Canada but in important wheat producing provinces of Jugoslavia. Emphasizing the Jugoslavia reports was a material upturn in closing wheat quotations at Liverpool. Notice was also taken of dispatches saying overflowing streams were washing away large quantities of shocked wheat in Kansas and Nebraska, and that there had been extensive damage by hail over wide stretches of Kansas. There were likewise late complaints from North Dakota that wheat was not filling well, and that many fields near Fargo were turning white.

Corn, oats and rye were helped upward by wheat strength and by some export business in corn.

Provisions responded to a jump in hog values to the highest point since October last.

Rush of Buying Sends Price of Hogs to $5.35

Chicago, July 6 (A.P.).—In burst of buying activity hog prices were pushed up another 10 to 15 cents today, reaching a top price of $5.35 a hundredweight, which is the highest price reported in Chicago's stockyards since the last week in October. Small supplies and a short week were responsible for the advance.

An abbreviated supply of cattle this week also spurred buyers into action and at the close fed steers and yearlings were active and unevenly strong to 25 cents higher than yesterday's prices.

Sheep were 15 to 25 cents higher.

COTTON ADVANCES IN STRONG MARKET

Rally Adds Nearly $1.50 Per Bale; Crop Outlook Encourages Rise.

New York, July 6 (A.P.).—Cotton showed renewed strength today, advancing approximately $1.50 per bale. October rose to 6.22, or a little more than a cent a pound above the low records established last month. Continued nervousness over the crop outlook, coupled with a firmer stock market and an advance in wheat, were factors that influenced the buying. October closed at 6.21 with the general market closing firm at new advances of 27 to 30 points.

An opening advance of 1 to 2 points reflected steady Liverpool cables and further reports of showers in the South. The market showed some signs of hesitation at the start, but offerings were rapidly absorbed and demand became more active on publication of the weather map which confirmed reports of rains, particularly in the Central belt. Slight reactions followed forecasts for improving Southern weather, but the market firmed again during the afternoon when the buying became more active. Inquiry seemed to be influenced partially by more optimistic views as to the outcome of the Lausanne Conference, although nothing definite developed in that connection during market hours.

July contracts sold up to 6.06 and December to 6.35, making net advances of 28 to 31 points on active months, and the close was within a point of the best on most positions.

Two more private crop reports were issued. One estimated the acreage planted at 37,200,000, or a decrease of 9.7 per cent. The other placed acreage at 37,864,000, or a decrease of 8.1 per cent, and estimated the July 1 condition at 75.3. These fig

Bateson Star as 1,000 See Swim Meet at Tech Pool

AN unofficial District A. A. U. record for the 50-yard free style was established last night by Phil Bateson, well known in the local tank world, who stroked off the distance in 25 1-5 seconds to better (by 2-5 second) the recognized mark now held by Max Rote, George Washington University captain.

It was the feature event of the District A. A. U's "warm-up" meet, prior to the running off of the annual A. A. U. championships at Tech High Pool Saturday. Nearly 1,000 witnessed the race last night, with floodlights illuminating the Tech tank.

Another interesting event was the 100-yard men's breaststroke, which fell to Bill McDonald, who nosed out Constancio Alvarado, former member of the Philippine Olympic Swimming Team. McDonald's time was 1 minute 21 1-5 seconds.

In the lowboard diving events, the two District A. A. U. lowboard champions, Lois Bates and Johnnie Broaddus, easily took first places.

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

CY YOUNG'S feat of pitching a no-hit major league baseball game at the age of 41 is a record yet unequaled, and experts of the diamond say it is likely to stand for a long time. Young also has a record of 22 years as a pitcher in the majors.

He is one of the four moundsmen of all time in the majors who ever pitched a perfect game—that is, no man on the opposing team reached first. This game was played in 1904 against Philadelphia. His no-hit game at the age of 41 was played against the Yankees in 1908.

Strange as it seems, although Young pitched consistent big league baseball from 1890 to 1912, he never led his league in any year in pitching percentage, and he never played in a world series game.

All that remains of an old mosque in the ancient Hungarian city, Eger, is a graceful, slender minaret which stands 115 feet high. The shaft was built of well-fitted blocks of stone held together not by mortar or cement, but by lead.

It was at Eger that important history of western Europe was written when a Hungarian amazon, Katica Dodo, led a small army of native women successfully against the invading Turk. Ruins of the ancient castle which was the stronghold of the women warriors are still in the little city.

Mary, granddaughter of James IV, and later Queen of Scotland, was not only the first woman golfer, but she was the original "golf widow," though not in the modern sense. It was Mary who played golf so soon after her husband's death that she was severely criticized.

Any reader wanting further proof of anything depicted here should address the author, care of The Washington Post, and inclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for reply.

POLICEMAN'S DEATH TO BE PROBED TODAY

Carpenter, Captured After Wild Siege, Not Sorry for Murder.

An inquest in the death of Policeman Elmer A. Swanson, who was killed in an attempt to capture the crazed gunman who Tuesday night barricaded himself in his home at 506 First street southeast, will be held at the District Morgue at 11:30 a. m. today.

Nicholas A. Long, the 64-year-old carpenter, whose repeated volleys of shotgun and revolver fire kept police at bay for more than two hours and terrorized the neighborhood, showed no remorse for the murder of Swanson or the wounding of two other policemen in the affray. Long has lived here but two months, coming from National, Md., a small town near Prossburg.

A. C. Poulsen, who was shot four times through the shoulder when he grappled with Long, finally subduing him, is reported recovering at Emergency Hospital.

Swanson, the father of four children, who lived at 4118 Beck street southeast, was shot in the head as he advanced on the crazed carpenter.

Fired at Two Policemen.

Long started his two-hour reign of terror by firing at two policemen who came to the house to investigate a report of trouble. Earlier in the day, he had threatened to kill his wife and family.

Barricaded in the house, Long could be seen standing near the front windows during the lulls in the shooting. A shotgun and a revolver in the hands of the small and apparently mild man frustrated the repeated efforts of more than 300 policemen to capture him.

Lodged in a cell at the Fourth Precinct Station, Long said that he was not sorry for what he had done and that he wanted to die anyway.

Roomer Survives Siege.

Hidden in a closet of the house during the battle, Robert E. Taylor, a roomer in the house, barely escaped death at Long's hands. Police bullets also missed the man when he attempted to give himself up, the police mistaking him for the gunman. Taylor, a cripple, remained in the closet until the odor of the gas bombs became unbearable, and then ran to a rear window where he protested his innocence. Taylor was booked as a witness to appear at the inquest.

He said that Long had threatened to kill him if he made any attempt to give himself up, and that the crazed man fired several bullets at him while he was standing at the rear window surrendering himself.

Members of Long's family asked for police protection when he threatened to kill them, but when the desk sergeant of the Fourth Precinct offered to send some reserve officers to the house they left without giving any further information.

Hubert Edgar Long, 35, of 210 First street southeast, son of the gunman, entered th house and was told to leave and take his mother, wife and two brothers who were sitting in front of the dwelling with him. They then heard a crash of glass and two shots.

According to his sons, Long had been regularly employed and was not in the habit of drinking. They said he had not been drinking prior to his outburst. His wife, who is being treated at Providence Hospital for nervous shock, said, "he was always a mean man."

Injured in Battle.

The policemen injured in the shooting affray were Poulsen, Bedford E. Spittle and Watson Salkeld, who were the first to arrive on the scene; Robert R. Klotz and D. L. Guest. None of the injuries was serious and only Poulsen and Spittle were struck by any of the madman's bullets. The others were treated for the effects of the tear gas, as were a number of bystanders.

A double-barreled shotgun, a revolver and a rifle were used by Long in holding the police at bay. He used the shotgun and the revolver mostly.

Swanson, who died at Providence Hospital, was a rookie on the force. His wife, who was with him, collapsed. She will receive a monthly pension of $100.

Swanson's body was taken to the undertaking parlors of W. H. Sardo Co., where it will remain today. The body will be sent to Milwaukee, Wis., tonight if Mrs. Swanson decides against burial here.

Two Youths Are Hurt When Auto Jumps Road

Eugene Sims, 19 years old, of 511 F street northwest, and Lewis Sims, 18 years old, of Silver Spring, Md., were treated at Georgetown Hospital yesterday for injuries received in an automobile accident near East Falls Church, Va.

Lewis suffered a fractured right leg and jaw, while Eugene received severe lacerations to his face. The machine in which the pair were riding jumped the road, police said.

Man Severely Injured In Fall From Building

Found lying semiconscious on a vacant lot near Dupont Circle early yesterday, Herbert Ehrsam, 26, of the Dupont Apartments, was taken to Emergency Hospital by Policeman E. I. McNale, of the Third Precinct, where physicians declared he was suffering from a fractured arm, fractured leg and severe lacerations.

Ehrsam, police said, declared he fell from a second-floor window of his apartment house. He was unable to explain how the accident occurred.

Man Injured in Fall Off Scaffold.

Samuel Randolph, 42, 923 E street southwest, colored, suffered a fractured left leg when he fell from a scaffold on a new building of the Bureau of Standards, where he was working yesterday. He was treated at the Emergency Hospital, where his condition was said to be undetermined.

LATIN REVOLTS LAID TO ECONOMIC CRISIS

Old Type of Rebel Missing in Recent Uprisings, Class at G. W. U. Is Told.

Revolutions in Latin America during the past three years have been provoked by economic conditions brought about "by unscrupulous dictators aided and abetted by international bankers," Dr. Samuel Guy Inman, of Columbia University, told the George Washington University's conference on Hispanic American affairs yesterday.

A social struggle, rather than the old type of revolution in which a few desperadoes or politicians fight for office, is foreseen by Dr. Inman. The lecturer described the type of leader who appeared after the World War, who looked upon South America as an undeveloped piece of real estate, needing only money for modernization.

"The newly appointed agents of North American banks began to assure him there would be no difficulty providing he would give them sufficiently tight mortgages," Dr. Inman said. "So the dictator and the banker outdid each other in hurrying the modernization of this big piece of property."

"So long as the dictator was able to carry out an active program of public works and sustain himself by contracts and awards to friends and to the army, which supported him, he held power. But when the great economic crisis hit Latin America, the growing democratic element, opposed to such dictatorships, had the opportunity to assert itself," the speaker pointed out.

He explained that the tremendous slump in Latin-American bonds in the fall of 1931, when 122 of these loans shrunk 80½ per cent, brought one of the most serious breaks in the friendship of American countries that has ever occurred. He declared that these countries are now facing not only the general world depression, but larger charges for foreign debts than are the countries of Europe, which must pay war debts.

"They face a tremendous struggle in the years to come with little but poverty to be expected," he said.

In a lecture today Dr. Inman will consider new awakened forces in Latin America from the standpoint of Communism.

Swim Instructors Learn New Tactics

Lesson Is Given by Leader of Red Cross Prior to City-Wide Drive.

Swimming instructors from 23 pools and 50 organizations yesterday received mass swimming teaching methods at the municipal pool on the Monument Grounds from Commodore W. E. Longfellow, of the American Red Cross.

The instruction is in preparation for the city-wide "Learn to Swim Week," which will begin Monday. It is sponsored by the Red Cross.

Practically every organization pool for white and colored is aligned with the swimming campaign committee, and so are the hotel pools as well as the big outdoor commercial pools. It is expected that 2,000 persons will learn to swim next week.

RISK FIRM IS SUED IN HEIRLOOM THEFT

Claim Unpaid After Loss of Washington Articles, Says Capital Woman.

Mrs. Mary M. Lee, 2140 Wyoming avenue northwest, yesterday filed suit in the District Supreme Court against the Automobile Insurance Co. of Hartford, Conn., for $14,500 for the alleged loss of valuable heirlooms of George Washington.

Mrs. Lee claimed in her suit filed by Attorney John E. Laskey that she insured heirlooms valued at $62,000 with the Hartford company. Shortly afterward she went to Europe and while there notified Mabel E. Ashley, a friend, that she desired an inspection to be made of her home. The inspection developed that heirlooms valued at thousands of dollars had been stolen during her absence.

The stolen articles included Washington salt stands, valued at $3,000; Washington casters, valued at $8,000; salt spoons, valued at $500; finger bowls and wine glasses, valued at $3,000. Despite demands upon the insurance company, she said, the claim she made has not been met.

Several other Washington heirlooms valued at $29,000 were not stolen. These were in the same closet that contained the missing articles. Among the valuables not missing was a portrait of Washington by Houdon, valued at $25,000.

Daughter of Naval Commander Killed

Joan Baker Dies as Auto Crash Injures Mother and Sister.

Joan Baker, 9, daughter of Lieut. Comdr. Charles A. Baker, U. S. N., of Washington, was killed and two other members of the family were critically injured yesterday in an automobile accident near Colorado Springs, Colo., according to an Associated Press dispatch.

The child, with her mother, Mrs. Lee Rochester Baker, and a sister, Patricia, 5, was en route to the West Coast to join her father, who is stationed aboard the U. S. S. Richmond. Mrs. Baker and Patricia were seriously injured.

The family lives in Washington at 2911 Oliver avenue northwest. Lieut. Commander Baker was stationed at the Navy Department for some time, having been transferred to the Richmond in May, 1930. Mrs. Baker and the children stopped in Chicago for the Democratic convention and later continued their journey to Long Beach, Calif. Lieut. Comdr. Baker's mother, Mrs. Laura Holt Baker, lives at 3620 Sixteenth street northwest.

LAW LEAGUE NAMES WEISS AS PRESIDENT

Bonus Army Gets Sympathy; Name of Roosevelt Is Cheered and Booed.

Need for adequate leadership in the United States, coupled with expressions of sympathy for the bonus forces, characterized speeches made at a lengthy session of the Commercial Law League of America at Wardman Park Hotel last night at which new officers were nominated.

Sol Weiss, of New Orleans, was the sole nominee for president. David L. Fultz, of New York, and George B. Shaeffer, of Detroit, were nominated for vice president. Thad M. Talcott, of South Bend, Ind., was the only nominee for treasurer, as was Thomas M. Garrison, of New York, for recording secretary.

The following were nominated to fill two places on the executive committee: W. Percy McDonald, of Memphis, Tenn.; David Bloodgood, of Milwaukee; Joseph G. Shapiro, of Bridgeport, Conn.; Joseph Burke, of Minneapolis, and Joseph H. Fry, of New York.

Election rules were suspended in the cases of Mr. Weiss, Mr. Talcott and Mr. Garrison, and they were formally elected. The other officers will be elected by ballot today, after which the new officers will be formally installed.

William B. Burruss addressed the lawyers on "Shakespeare, the Salesman," pointing out that Shakespeare made a successful job of selling more than 300 plays and 700 characters to posterity.

That the lawyers are well divided on their choice of the next President of the United States was indicated when one speaker lauded Gov. Roosevelt. Loud applause broke out, punctuated with boos, culminating with cries of "Hurray for Hoover."

Lawrence J. Heller, of Washington, drew applause when he suggested that the bonus forces be organized into one camp in Maryland or Virginia and be given work on roads and other construction projects.

Alexander A. Davis Found Dead by Maid; Rites to Be Tomorrow.

Alexander A. Davis, prominent civic leader of Woodridge, Va., was found dead yesterday in a room of a hotel at 608 Ninth street northwest. He was found by a maid, who notified Thomas Johnson, manager of the hotel.

A physician from Emergency Hospital was summoned and pronounced Mr. Davis dead. A certificate of death due to natural causes was issued by the coroner.

Mr. Davis had been here only a few days, it was learned. He owned and operated a country club at Woodridge and took an active part in civic affairs of the township.

Surviving are a son, Roland Davis, of 1712 Sixteenth street northwest, a brother, T. Powell Davis, and a sister, both of Woodridge.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at his Woodridge home.

W. W. MILLAN HEAD OF PUBLIC WELFARE

Succeeds John Joy Edson as Board Chairman; Idle Fund Body Named.

W. W. Millan, former vice chairman of the Board of Public Welfare, yesterday succeeded John Joy Edison as chairman after the latter had declined renomination. Both had held the two executive positions since the formation of the board on July 1, 1926.

At the same time the board named a permanent committee to supervise the administration of the $350,000 appropriation for unemployment relief in the District. This group, headed by Sidney F. Taliaferro, former Commissioner, will meet at 3 o'clock this afternoon to select a director and to draft regulations for the work.

Other members of the committee are Mr. Millan, Mrs. Charles A. Goldsmith, Mrs. Carolle F. Cook and Dr. H. J. Crosson.

Mr. Edson, chairman of the board of the Washington Loan & Trust Co., has been engaged in public welfare work in Washington for a generation. He became a member of the Board of Charities in 1900 and its president in 1906, in which capacity he served until the welfare board was organized. He has also taken especial interest in prison welfare and was instrumental in inaugurating through Capt. M. M. Barnard, superintendent of prisons, the so-called honor system in District penal institutions.

Likewise, Mr. Millan has for a number of years been engaged in welfare activities. A member of the bar for 40 years and treasurer of the District Bar Association for 20 years, he has resided in Washington since 1893. He was chairman of the Board of Children's Guardians until it was merged with the welfare board.

A record number of contracts were awarded by the District Commissioners last month in anticipation of 1933 appropriations, R. M. Brennan, chief clerk of the engineer department, announced yesterday. Thirty-nine projects and $1,928,560 were involved.

The majority of jobs were street improvement and sewer construction though three building projects helped boost the financial total. They are the Children's Tuberculosis Sanatorium, the power plant at the District Reformatory, and the Gidding School addition. Street work amounted to about $500,000.

The Catalano Construction Co., of Baltimore, yesterday submitted the lowest bid on the construction of a 21-bed infirmary at the District Training School. The estimate is $75,500.

Man With Razor Slashes Another

Veterans' Clerk, 67, Beaten and Robbed of $40 by Intruder.

Attacked, beaten and severely slashed by a man brandishing a razor who entered his home at 3528 Quebec street northwest, last night, Dudley T. Hasson, 67, a clerk in the Veterans' Administration, was robbed of $40. He was taken to Georgetown Hospital for treatment.

Hasson told police the man knocked on his door and when he answered it he recognized the man as one he hired some time ago to cut his grass. They talked several minutes, Hasson said, when his visitor suddenly drew a razor and attacked him.

The pair rolled about on the floor, Hasson declared, and during the struggle his left hand was severely cut. His assailant finally jumped to his feet, grabbed a pair of trousers hanging nearby and escaped. Hasson said there was $40 in the pockets.

NEW TAXICAB RULES GO IN EFFECT TODAY

Drivers Not to Be Allowed to Work More Than 12 Hours in 24-Hour Period.

The Public Utilities Commission yesterday was preparing instructions to the Police Department to enforce all provisions of the long-delayed taxicab order, save that relating to meters, at once. The instructions will be issued today.

Most of the other regulations have to do with the cleanliness of the cab and driver, safety requirements, equipment and the prohibition against operating a radio while a cab is in motion. While one rule states that an operator must wear a coat or duster at all times, it is understood that this requirement is not to be rigidly enforced.

Another provision states that a taxi driver must be 21 years old and of "good moral character," while the last rule is that no driver shall "operate a taxicab more than 12 hours in a 24-hour period."

There is considerable uncertainty among District officials as to the effect the congressional ban on meters will have on the appeal from the commission's order now pending in the District Court of Appeals. As the District appropriations act provides that no money shall be spent in enforcing the meter regulation, it is interpreted that the corporation counsel will be unable to defend the order any further in court.

People's Counsel Richmond B. Keech and the City and Bell Cab Corporations carried the fight to the appellate court.

Two Arrested in Theft Of Jewelry From Store

Jewelry valued at $10, stolen from a store at 931 F street northwest yesterday, was recovered. Thomas Walsh, 28, of Philadelphia, and Francis Marley, 32, no fixed address, were arrested in connection with the robbery.

Eugene E. Behrend, manager of the store which is located on the second floor of the F street address, said entrance was gained by breaking the show window.

Work Starts Soon On New Auditorium

First Pile-Driver Is Placed in Position to Lay Foundation.

Construction will start soon on the new Government Auditorium at Constitution avenue and Thirteenth street northwest. Yesterday the first pile driver was moved into the excavation and placed in position to drive the building's foundation.

The auditorium will be between the site of the new Interstate Commerce Commission Building at Twelfth street and the new Department of Labor Building at Fourteenth street, for which a program of construction has been worked out to progress continuously until completion of the three buildings.

The contractor, James Stewart & Co., of New York, is now having steel fabricated for the three connected buildings. Erection of framework will start at Twelfth and at Fourteenth street and work toward the middle, so it is expected that the foundation for the centrally located auditorium will be ready by the time the steel reaches it.

Patriotic Clubs Establish Camp

District D. A. R. Sponsors for Summer Retreat on Port Tobacco River.

A summer camp for the clubs of the Sons and Daughters of the Republic has been established at "Old Landing," on the Port Tobacco River, in Maryland, it was announced yesterday by the District of Columbia Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Situated on the estate of Mrs. E. L. Sutton, a member of the D. A. R., the camp was promoted by Miss Helen Harman, past regent of the organization, assisted by Mrs. Harry Colfax Grove, now regent; Miss Elizabeth Malott Barnes, State chairman; Miss Mary F. Bickford, and Mrs. Bessie Wells Palmbici, acting State chairman.

The "sons" of the Mount Vernon and Nathan Hale Clubs will visit the camp Saturday for a program of boating, swimming, crabbing and fishing. The "daughters" will visit the camp July 19. Thereafter, at ten-day intervals, parties will be arranged.

Francis P. Harris, 26 years old, and his wife, Mrs. Mary Ellen Harris, 24, were arrested in their home at 1665 Lamont street northwest, by police of the Second Precinct last night and charged with illegal possession of one gallon of alleged liquor and 24 bottles of alleged beer.

BUDGETS OF CHEST ORGANIZATIONS CUT

Salaries of Staff Itself Are Reduced; Funds of Some Agencies Nearly Gone.

An indirect attempt to cut the salaries of paid workers of organizations connected with the Community Chest was made yesterday when the board of trustees of the Chest voted to slash each budget by an amount equal to 10 per cent of all salaries more than $1,000.

This action was taken on recommendation of the executive committee of the Chest. The boards of the various agencies affected will be left to make this reduction as they see fit.

The reduction followed an announcement that all salaries of $1,000 and more of the Chest staff had been cut 10 per cent while those under $1,000 had been cut 5 per cent.

In explaining the reduction, President Edwin C. Graham pointed out available funds were already insufficient to meet the welfare needs of the community.

Treasurer William J. Flather, jr., reported that with the funds on hand and the carrying forward of last year's deficit of $134,000, the chest would end the year in exactly the same position that it started, provided no further appropriations were made to any agency.

It was learned, however, that certain of the relief agencies will have exhausted their funds by the end of the month and that additional money will be necessary if the welfare needs of the city are to be met.

Death of Man Struck By Car Is Accidental

A verdict of accidental death was returned yesterday by the coroner's jury at an inquest in the death of Norman Harrell, 53 years old, of 107 Fifth street southeast, who was fatally injured by an automobile Monday night while he was crossing the street in front of his home.

Miss Yvonne M. Beuchert, 18, 201 Fifth street northeast, who was operating the vehicle, testified that Harrell was walking without looking at the approaching traffic. Witnesses corroborated the testimony. Funeral services for Mr. Harrell will be held at his home, 2 p. m. tomorrow and will be followed by burial in the Cedar Hill Cemetery.

Organizations which were represented at the meeting included the Petworth Womans Club, Petworth Citizens Association, several parent-teacher associations and home and school associations. Mrs. Alfred C. Norcross is chairman of the joint committee.
